The Devil's Woodyard in Trinidad, West Indies, is a mud volcano. The difference is that, instead of lava, a mud volcano emits gases and vapors through a base of mud.

Archaeology Books In Demand at Public Libraries in Area

Booming interest in archaeology, from both armchair enthusiasts and amateur dig-it-yourself fans, has brought increasing demand at the Jackson County library for books and magazine articles in this subject, according to Library Director Helen E. Webster.

Impetus was given the trend in 1951, she added, with the publication of the best-selling book, "Gods, Graves and Scholars," by C. W. Ceram. Interest has been growing since.

"Testimony of the Spade," by Geoffrey Bibby, a companion volume to "Gods, Graves and Scholars," was published in 1956. In introducing the reader to the archeologists whose discoveries have led the way into the past, the book traces the story of the "barbarians" of northern Europe from their cave-dwelling ancestors to the time of Caesar.

Two Recent Books

Two other recent books, Leonard Cottrell's "Lost Cities" and Herman Schreiber's "Vanished Cities," tell about the once-great, long-lost cities that have been brought to light by present day archeologists.

Biblical archaeology is described in such books as Caigie's "Bible and Spade," Charles Woolley's "Excavations at Ur," Percy Wiseman's "New Discoveries in Babylonia about Genesis" and "The Secret of the Hittites," by Marek.

Material is also available at the library on archaeological discoveries in North America. Some of the books are Frank Hibben's "The Lost Americans" and "Treasure in the Dust," A. H. Verrill's "America's Ancient Civilizations," and "Under Your Feet; the Story of the American Mound Builder," by Mrs. Blanche King. Central and South American discoveries are described in "Columbus Came Late," by Gregory Mason, "Yucatan," by Lawrence Dame, E. L. Hewitt's "Ancient Andean Life," and Hiram Bingham's exciting book about his own discoveries in the Peruvian Andes, "Lost City of the Incas; the Story of Machue Picchu and its Builders."

Practical Information

In addition to the above books, the library has practical information on how to become an archaeologist, how to find sites, how a dig is organized, what tools and excavation techniques are used, and on evaluating the finds.

For such aids Gordon Willey's "Methods and Theory in American Archaeology," and Kathleen Kenyon's "Beginnings in Archaeology" are suggested. A humorous light is cast on the subject by Eleanor Lothrop in "Throw Me a Bone; What Happens When You Marry an Archaeologist."

Slashing Victim Tells of Love

Portland - (UP) - Alfred Gust, a Fort Lewis soldier originally from Texas, was found guilty after a jury trial here Thursday of slashing at a woman with a knife on a downtown Portland street. The jurors recommended mental treatment.

Gust was charged with only one of three slashing incidents that took place within a 24-hour period last summer. A pre-sentence investigation was asked.

One of his victims, 19-year-old Patricia Grimes, attended Gust's trial and told newsmen outside the courtroom that she had fallen in love with the 21-year-old Texan after first feeling sorry for him. She said their romance blossomed after his mother wrote asking her to visit Gust in jail. Since then, she said, pity turned to love and now she will stand by him. Gust had no comment.

To interest the younger reader in the field there are "Buried Cities," by Jennie Hall, "Americans Before Columbus," by Elizabeth Baity, "The Wonderful World of Archaeology," by Ronald Jessup, and "The First Book of Archaeology," by Nora Benjamin Kubie.

Any of the books mentioned may be obtained by request through any community library of the Jackson County library system.

Edward Fitzgerald had to pay for the first printing of "The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam."

Myers Elected Head Of Area Principals

John Myers, elementary school principal at Phoenix, was elected president of the southern region of the Oregon Elementary School Principals' association at a recent meeting in Salem.

He also was chairman of a panel of southern Oregon principals which appeared at the conference. The panel discussed the role of the elementary school in the guidance program.

Other members of the panel included Gene Farthing, Talent, who discussed the role of the elementary school principal in parental guidance; Mrs. Myrna Frink, Griffin Creek, who took the subject of the elementary school principal's role in teacher guidance; and Verne Spiers, Lincoln school, Ashland, who discussed the elementary school principal and student guidance.

Twenty-one elementary school principals from Jackson county attended the meeting.

Too much rain is a frequent agricultural problem in Norway. The Norwegians sometimes have to spray the clouds with silver iodide so that the clouds are blown away without turning into rain.

How well we keep the world's peace depends first on how well we keep the world's people.

If great injustices, if inequalities in health, food or education exist anywhere... we all face a constant threat to peace.

Now 19 Specialized United Nations agencies and international organizations work around the world to eliminate these inequalities, to diminish these basic causes of wars.

Their activities... plus the more publicized political discussions... make the United Nations mankind's last great instrument of survival.

first things first

Be an ambassador of the United Nations in your neighborhood. Our government—officially and actively—supports the United Nations, but it is your good will and understanding that is its best guarantee of continued success.
