

Yong GOP Board Meets in County

The state executive board of the Young Republican Federation of Oregon were guests of the Jackson County Young Republicans last week end.

Jim Ragland, chairman of the Jackson county group, introduced Wesley Phillips of Gladstone, state chairman, at a no-host dinner at the Rogue Riviera in Gold Hill Saturday night. Phillips urged further campaigning by Young Republicans to assure a Republican victory Nov. 4.

Phillips also discussed candidates for the congressional seat from the fourth district, and said the election of Paul Geddes, Roseburg candidate for congressman, was a necessity for the state.

Other members of the board present included Jane Tomlin, cochairman; Jim Tomlin, state treasurer; Margaret Blue, state secretary; George Curtis, board representative from Clackamas county; and Marie Hill, board representative from Multnomah county.

A state board meeting was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stathos, and was attended by board representatives from the University of Oregon and Lane county.

Young Republicans were reminded of the state convention in Salem Dec. 5, 6, and 7.

Peacemaker Enters Scientific Arena Of Mental Disease

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

New York —UPI— A peacemaker has entered the scientific arena where "organicists" and "psycho-dynamicists" do wordy battle over the largely unknown causes of mental diseases, saying (in effect): You're both right — as far as you go. Get your ideas together and you'll both be entirely right.

"Organicists" argue all mental diseases have to be caused by disturbances in the chemistry or structure or both of the organ of the mind which is the brain.

"Psycho-dynamicists" argue the mind stores conflicts and undigested fears and frustrations and these influence its workings and collide in such ways as to cause mental diseases. If either could prove his case, there would be no argument, naturally.

Dr. Otto F. Ehrenthel, the would-be peacemaker, offered this argument: Disturbances in brain chemistry and/or structure make insanity possible. The stored conflicts and undigested fears and frustrations determine the direction and the manifestations of the insanity. He reasoned there could be no active mental disease such as schizophrenia, without both processes working.

This should be accepted by both sides, he continued, "even in cases where it is impossible to demonstrate a structural and—or chemical disturbance. These cases make up the majority of patients in mental hospitals. Indeed, the brains of extremely insane persons consistently fail to reveal any physical disturbance. "Psycho-dynamicists" point to this as a strong indication if not proof that they're right. "Organicists" say it only shows science has a lot to learn about the brain.

Ehrenthel said no one should disagree with this: "Thinking, listening, seeing, talking, feeling are all biological processes taking place in the brain." And there can be no "biological process" without changes in body chemistry and in "electricity and in structure of cells and tissues." There is a difference, to be sure, between an arm paralyzed because of a nerve injury—and an arm paralyzed because the mind of its owner is gripped by hysteria. But the hysteria has brought about the physical disturbances of structure and—or chemistry which paralyze the arm.

To illustrate, he cited a patient of his who was in his late 50s before he broke down with the mental disease. This man had suffered all his life from a congenital underdevelopment which prevented him from glorying in the mere state of being male. But he lived a normal life until hardening of the arteries of the brain brought about marked disturbances in its chemistry and structure.

Ehrenthel said that if this physical change had been the only factor, the man would probably have deteriorated into a "vegetable," which can happen in persons with hardening brain arteries. But this man had hallucinations — he was utterly detached from reality. The significant thing was the direction of the hallucinations. He believed that Superman came for him every night and together they soared over the earth.

Ehrenthel is a member of the staff at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Bedford, Mass., and of Tufts University School of Medicine. He presented his reconciling views to mental disease scientists through the American Psychiatric Association.

New Pope Veteran Of Successful Term As Vatican Diplomat

By United Press International
"Traveler of God"—"fully a pastor"—"a man who always sees the good side of things."

These are a few of the descriptions used by those who know the new pope, elevated from Angelo Giuseppe Cardinal Roncalli.

He also is described as the good natured son of an Italian share-cropper. He has served 27 years as a successful Vatican diplomat.

It is said he was always a bishop at heart and when the late Pope Pius XII created him a cardinal in 1953 he was less thrilled by the cardinal's red hat than by the chance to devote himself at last to episcopal work.

"Here I have a new chance," he said at the time, "to be entirely a pastor. "I am convinced that the ministry of the pastor is the most fascinating, the finest that a man can be offered in his life."

Mission To France
A radiant smile lighted his severe but kindly face. As a cardinal, the 76-year-old prelate's door was always open to anyone — friend or foe. It was this openness and his humorous joviality that earned him success in one of the most difficult posts in Vatican diplomatic history — nuncio to Paris in the stormy postwar years, when French leaders had not forgotten that the Vatican had maintained relations with the wartime government of the late Marshal Philippe Petain.

Slowly and steadily he sowed the seeds of good will and when he left the Paris post in 1953, after more than eight years, relations between the Vatican and France were excellent.

But his tolerance and forbearance could not be taken for appeasement. When the Christian Democrats of Venice in 1956 started talking of forming a city government with the pro-Communist Socialists of Pietro Nenni, he issued a pastoral letter which minced no words in condemning the idea from a religious viewpoint.

Knowledge of Languages
Cardinal Roncalli became known as a learned historian and art lover. He speaks Italian, Latin, Greek, French and some Turkish, which he learned as apostolic delegate in Istanbul. He also is familiar with German, Spanish, Romanian and has some knowledge of Oriental languages. In his capacity of 139th bishop and 43rd patriarch of Venice, he held the same post which was held by Giuseppe Cardinal Sarto when he was elected pope in 1903 to become Pius X.

He is a native of a small North Italian village and his church career was unseasonal.

He was born Nov. 25, 1881 in the village of Sotto il Monte near Bergamo about 40 miles east of Milan, the third of 13 children. One of his sisters and two of his brothers still live there on the family farm. The family has been there for five centuries.

His father had counted on Angelo Giuseppe to help him in the fields, but when at the age of 11, his third child and eldest son said he wanted to be a priest, the father raised no objections.
