Women's Annual Exposition Displays Now Open to Men

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
New York — (UP) — Each year for the last 35 years, they've called the event the women's international exposition. But this year, it's a misnomer. The guys have joined the dolls.

Officials of the Women's National Institute, which sponsors the annual display of handicrafts from the world over, said the decision to let the men participate was sort of a turn-about-is-fair-play.

"We thought somebody should recognize their skills," said Mrs. Rebecca Feinberg, a lawyer, and coordinator of the exhibits. "After all, the men are letting the women in. Look at Mary Roebing."

Mrs. Roebing, president of the Trent Trust Company, last week became the first woman on the board of governors of the American Stock Exchange.

The 11 men represent only a small portion of the overall show, which opened today and will run through November 9.

There are 404 exhibits, from 46 nations including Hungary and Czechoslovakia. Men Show Paintings

The men are showing oil paintings, character dolls, crystal candelabra, and weaving.

Ceramics, art, hand-wrought jewelry, cuddly toys and other works of children are included for the first time. And special awards will cite the younger set for their work in community betterment.

"We thought it was time someone accented juvenile decency instead of delinquency," said Mrs. Feinberg.

The exposition's youngest exhibitor is 5-year-old Jeanie Jankowski, of the Bronx, N.Y., who made rag doll, with curls from bronze steel wool scrubbing pads.

Each year, the exposition is concentrated proof that today's woman is just as apt with her hands as her mother or grandmother.

"I sometimes think even more so," said Mrs. Feinberg. She said the exposition gets bigger and better each year, and that more women are taking up handicrafts not only to satisfy the creative urge but "because they're bored with all those bad shows on television."

Started in 1923
The late Mrs. Julia Elmira Kimball, a wealthy New Yorker, started the exposition in 1923 with two aims—to promote international understanding, and give women an opportunity to communicate through the creative arts.

Mrs. Feinberg said that weaving apparently rates as number one craft in popularity polls today. The number of entries jumped sharply from last year.

Hand-made rugs are perennials at the fair. But one exhibit pulling droves of visitors is a 24-inch doll, a replica of Queen Elizabeth II of Great Britain in her coronation gown.

A Bayside, N.Y., housewife, Mrs. Charles Bosansky, made it. "Eleven thousand seed pearls sewn on that dress... three thousand gold and silver beads," Mrs. Bosansky counted off. She said an exposition rule that any item has to have been made in the last year gave her some trouble on timing. The sewing was long and tedious, and relatives came to visit as the deadline for entries drew near.

"I finally had to suggest that they go home," she confessed.

Employment On West Coast Down

San Francisco — (UP) — Employment on the West Coast was about 1 per cent below last year for the period from mid-August to mid-September, the Department of Labor reported today.

Max D. Kossoris, western regional director of the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, said employment of wage and salary workers for California, Washington and Oregon rose seasonally by 41,800 during the period to a mid-September total of 5,848,700.

He said employment remained 52,800 below the figure for a year ago.

California had 4,550,200 employed in mid-September. Oregon 492,500 and Washington 800,000.

Average weekly earnings in manufacturing were higher in all three states in mid-September with California workers averaging $99.20, Washington 96.98 and Oregon $94.26. The national average for manufacturing was $85.17.

Caril Fugate Trial Recessed

Lincoln, Neb. — (UP) — The first degree murder trial of Caril Ann Fugate today was recessed until 9 a.m. Tuesday after the prosecution asked permission to add the names of two additional witnesses to those previously endorsed by the court.

The court, over the objections of defense attorney John McArthur, permitted the addition of the two witnesses but that the same time granted a defense request for a 24-hour continuance.

The names of the additional witnesses are Dale Smallcomb and Lee Lamson, former service station employees here.

County Attorney Elmer Scheele would not disclose their connection with the case. McArthur said he did not know what testimony they would offer.

Popular Music Composer Dies

New York — (UP) — Harry Revel, 52, composer of "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking?" and many other of the nation's most popular songs in the 1930s, was found dead today in his home.

Death was attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage.

The British-born Revel, who wrote the musical scores for many Broadway musical comedies and Hollywood films during the 1930s and 1940s, was one of the country's foremost composers of popular songs.

His songs included: "Stay As Sweet As You Are," "Love Thy Neighbor," "With My Eyes Wide Open I'm Dreaming," "Paris In The Spring," "You Can't Have Everything," "There's a Lull In My Life," "The Loveliness of You" and "A Star Fell Out of Heaven."
