Philippine Senator Says Women Can Swing Election

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

New York—(UPI)—Politicians cater to the woman voter in the Philippines as in the United States, says the islands' only lady senator.

Mrs. Pacita Madrigal Gonzalez says that in her homeland women make up 52 per cent of the total registered vote; and they make for some of the most ardent party workers at the local, district and national level.

"Very definitely, our women can swing any election," she said.

"Magsaysay, the late president, gave full credit to the women for putting him in."

Mrs. Gonzalez is the first woman the Philippines has sent to the United Nations General Assembly. From New York, she continues to Paris for the seventh general conference of UNESCO.

Comedy Opening Tonight

"The Solid Gold Cadillac" opens tonight for a five-day run at the Footlighter theater at the Fairgrounds. The little theater production of the popular Howard Teichmann-George Kaufman play is directed by Frank Buchter.

Ruth Kilbourn, who has earned praise for past performances in Footlighter roles, plays the leading role of the rather unconventional actress who becomes involved in the management of a huge corporation, much to the dismay of the company officers.

The supporting cast is said to be well chosen, and dress rehearsals indicate a smooth presentation of this sophisticated comedy which was such a hit on Broadway and as a movie.

This will be the first time that the play has been given in this area, and the first time Footlighters have attempted a production with multiple scene changes.

Curtain time tonight will be 8:30 o'clock and the play will be repeated nightly through Saturday. Tickets are on sale at Swem's and Purucker's, and may also be bought at the door.

New Pins In Style

New York—Pins of all sizes, shapes and descriptions are literally bursting out all over the fashion picture this season, the Fashion Coordination institute reports, and appear in some completely new ways and places.

As the stress on beauty and femininity increases, the mobility of pins enables them to carry a note of glittering, glamorous elegance from the top of milady's head to her toes, according to the institute. Pins are worn in the hair and on hats, on the new fabric shoes and a lot of new places in between, the institute says.

Clipped to a transparent head band, they glitter as though suspended by magic in the flattering new hair-dos after dark. They provide a daytime head accent when placed on the new, deep, head-hugging hats.

Pins with new texture, new shapes and new dimensions are showing up on the collars of the new coats to provide them with a note of "outdoor" elegance.

One of the faintest pin notes of all, sparked by Paris, is that of wearing a pair of delicate beauties pinned to the right glove of the new, longer-length gloves that are such necessary companions to the shorter-sleeved suits and coats, the institute reports.

Pins in matching pairs on shoes is a trend sparked by the new soft fabric shoes for dress-up. The institute points out that these glittering beauties are most smartly pinned off center on the simple new pumps to provide a comfortable and enchanting "beauty spot" to lovely feet and legs.

Pear Ripening

Most fruits are most delicious when allowed to ripen or mature on the tree or plant. However pears are an exception. Tree ripened pears have a coarse and gritty flesh. Mature, hard pears develop fine flavor and smooth texture when ripened in a paper bag at room temperature (60-70 degrees). When they yield to slight pressure at the base of the stem they are ripe and ready to eat. Pears may be green, yellow or partially russet in color, depending on variety. After the pears have ripened, store them in the refrigerator to prevent spoilage.

Psycho-Analyst Explains Teenager Telephone Habit

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International

New York—(UPI)—Adolescents who hang on the phone for hours on end are — of all things — defending their ego. And the bizarre positions—head on floor, feet on chair—and strange body movements during the telephone conversation are like a tranquilizer to the adolescent.

That's how an expert in psycho-analysis, Dr. Gerald H. J. Pearson, puts it in a new book, "Adolescence and the Conflict of Generations" (W. W. Norton).

Telephone addicts, said the child psychiatrist, are driven by a desire somewhat akin to the child's earlier infantile need for actual bodily contact with the mother.

"The child would like to relinquish all ego boundaries and melt into the mother's body as well as into her ego," he explained.

When he's defending his ego on the phone, the adolescent really "wishes the other person to be himself and he to be the other person."

His weak and helpless ego feels stronger as it merges with the other teenager's ego. Therefore, the conversations, said Dr. Pearson, have the flavor of each person talking to himself.

In some cases, the expert traces the adolescent's need to talk endlessly on the phone to examples set by similarly addicted mothers.

Certain adult women spend the greater part of most mornings in long conversations with one or two friends. These conversations have occurred daily year after year throughout most of the adolescent's life.

It would be unusual if the adolescent... in such a family did not have the tendency to behave in the same way as the mother," Dr. Pearson said.

On the tranquilizing effects of body movements during teen-age phone conversations, Dr. Pearson said:

"There is a great increase in the sexual drive at puberty, an increase with which the adolescent is temporarily incapable of dealing with satisfaction.

"The pressure of sexual drives is increased by the restrictive attitude of the social organization. The result is a great increase in tension in the individual."
