Russian Children Healthier Than U.S. Counterparts

Philadelphia —(UPI)— Obeying the party line is health habit No. 1 in Russia — and one result is a crop of children who are healthier generally than their American counterparts.

This is the diagnosis of Dr. Joseph Stokes Jr., President of the American Pediatric Society, who recenty returned from a study tour of Russia to lay the groundwork for a long-range cultural exchange program.

"It seemed to me that the Russians do a much better job of preventive care than we do here," he explained, "and the result is that you have generally healthier children."

Dr. Stokes observed that children in the "lower-economic groups" in America often do not receive proper care because they are not taken to physicians or clinics.

"But in Russia," he said, "every baby must be brought to the hospital once a month for the first six months, then every other month up to one year, and then two or four times a year after that until the age of seven, when the school authorities take over. At that time their medical case histories are turned over to the school doctors."

"A number of phases of our medical research, however, are more advanced than over there," Dr. Stokes said, explaining that we have made greater strides, for example, in the field of rheumatic fever, which is one of the top child killers in Russia.

The No. 1 killer in the United States, he said, is accidents.

"We have so many more automobiles on the streets than in Russia. There they have more trucks, and the trucks move much slower. I can't say what it will be like two years from now."

Dr. Stokes, who is Physician-In-Chief at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, traveled in Russia under the auspices of the American Friends Service Committee. The exchange, which included other U.S. doctors, was arranged in cooperation with the Soviet Societies for Cultural Relations with Foreign Countries.

EXPENSIVE FIXING

Miami —(UPI)— Mayor Robert High said Tuesday he's through "fixing" parking tickets for his friends. He admitted that over the past he has paid about $200 worth of ticket fines out of his own pocket. "I just can't afford it anymore," said High.
