

Yams and Sausage
Easy One-Dish Meal

New York—A quick and easy one-dish meal combines sausages and Louisiana yams. Cook 1 pound link sausages, diced, over low heat until browned. Drain, add 2 medium apples, cored and grated, 1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs, 1/4 cup lemon juice and 1 medium onion, finely chopped. Mix well, turn into 1 1/2 quart casserole, top with 6 medium yams, cooked, peeled and quartered (or substitute 2 1-pound cans yams, drained), sprinkle with 1/4 teaspoon cloves and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Cover and bake in 375-degree oven 30 minutes. Serves 6.

Breakfast Carousal
New York—Hot "apricot merry-go-rounds" wake up sleepy appetites. Place round shredded wheat biscuits in individual cereal bowls. In a saucepan, heat 1 cup apricot juice, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, and 1 tablespoon butter. Pour the heated syrup over the biscuits and top with apricot halves. Serve with milk or cream.

Hearty Chowder
New York—Lima bean, corn and bacon chowder makes a good dish for crisp autumn weather. Use cooked dry lima and canned or fresh corn. Season with onion, thyme and marjoram. Add a couple tablespoons of white wine.

POTPOURRI
Wilber L. Gardner is glad "that I live in a country where a man can take his problems to his congressman and get help." Mr. Gardner's problems, however, were really the problems of his fellow citizens, for Mr. G. became real good and mad some time ago about the shoddy materials used in shoes—particularly children's shoes—and decided to see what could be done about it.

Mr. Gardner, who has been repairing shoes for years and years, said that gradually the material became poorer and poorer and he worried more and more about how parents, with several children, could keep them in shoes which were proper for their growing feet. One day he was working on a pair of small shoes, a tool slipped, went right through a shoe and cut his hand. "I got mad," said Mr. Gardner. "And so I wrote to my congressman." Using his 42-year-old typewriter, with the hunt and peck system, Mr. G. also wrote to a lot of other people. He also took his troubles to The Mail Tribune.

He got action, not only from Congressman Charles Porter (Mr. Porter has four children and knows what shoe problems are) but from the Tribune in the way of a feature story, copies of bills and laws from other nations, lists of names of other shoe repairmen and tanners and cattlemen's association and Grangers. "At first I was a voice in the wilderness," he said. "But now I think we can get a good bill introduced and passed." A bill which will call for labeling of materials used in shoes will be introduced in the next session of The Congress. Mr. Gardner has petitions to be signed, too, and anyone interested may sign on at his shop, 612 East Main street.

Potpourri had a lot of visitors and several letters came last week—all with interesting news or ideas. Mrs. W. W. Howard came in with a clipping from the New York Times, which came from her niece in Montclair, N. J., and which told about the Tri-Carb and Courtesy club in New York. This club is of young men who at first were going to organize a "hot rod" club and then channeled their enthusiasm for cars into the better idea of aiding stranded motorists on the road.

Mrs. Howard knows it is a good idea, for there are such clubs in Jackson county and one, whose members call themselves The Centurians, helped her last summer. Mrs. Howard's car had a flat tire while she was driving in the country, and she was trudging in the direction of town when along came four young men in a car. They took in the situation, stopped and offered to help. "In 10 minutes they had it changed and I was on my way," Mrs. Howard related. "I just decided to tell The Tribune about how wonderful they were, and how much I appreciated their kindness. I'm forever reading about juvenile delinquents, and I wanted to pass along this story on the other side of the picture."

One of the four boys was Dave McCollum, who gave Mrs. Howard one of his Centurian cards bearing his name. Mrs. Milton Sanderson wrote along this line, too, in a note at the bottom of a Grange notice. Mrs. Sanderson had sent in a story about the Grange program, and almost all of it had been provided by teen-agers. "Isn't the number of teen-agers performing amazing," she asked. "Who keeps talking about juvenile delinquency?"

Another visitor was Mrs. Edith Baker, who brought in a twig of spirea—with red autumn leaves mingled with blossoms. Mrs. Baker thought the flower editor (unofficial) of The Tribune should see this specimen of a mixed up shrub. This reminded the flower editor (unofficial) that Leonard Smith of 798 Garfield street, had called in a short time ago to report that he had an Easter lily in bloom. Saturday morning Potpourri had petunias and marigolds still blooming, but if the weather man's prediction came true, they'll all be frozen to the ground by Sunday morning.

An idea with a lot of possibilities came in from Frances Bulkin, Potpourri's former news room pal now enjoying life on a Shady Cove ranch. Prompted by Potpourri's wish that Medford had an art gallery, or at least a better place to exhibit the work of artists from time to time, she wrote: "This thing of the artists not having a regular place for exhibitions, not just AAUW shows, but others, always has bothered me, too. When Footlighters acquired the building on the fairgrounds, I saw it not just for little theater, but as a Little Arts building, something to accommodate also the arts and music groups."

"To begin, the building was county owned. I would not personally be in favor of something for the artists on a public subscription basis, or even another public-owned building, until after the Footlighters building was thoroughly considered and found lacking. I realize the artists would have to have lighting on the walls and perhaps other little things done to make it suitable. The musicians, if they were interested, perhaps also would need something added. I think the building lends itself in atmosphere, size, accommodations and 'chumminess' for these sized groups."

"I should think the music groups could have chamber music events, Sunday afternoon small musicales, either as small money-making affairs or just for those who enjoy such things, at the Footlighter building. They could use the lounge for post-concert talk and refreshments, which is such fun." After the usual discouraging reading of the course of international events, Potpourri found this quotation, sent by John Gribble, both interesting and hopeful. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, when 72, speaking at a dinner of the Harvard Law association, said: "As I grow older I grow calm... I do not lose my hopes... I think it probable that civilization somehow will last as long as I care to look ahead... perhaps with smaller numbers, but bred to splendor and greatness by science. I think it not improbable that man, like the grub that prepares a chamber for the winged thing it never has seen but is to be—that man may have cosmic destinies he does not understand. And so, beyond the vision of battling races and an impoverished earth, I catch a dreaming glimpse of peace."—O.S.

Mushroom Institute Says Eat Them Raw
Chicago — Try eating fresh mushrooms raw as appetizers or as a snack. The American Mushroom Institute says it's possible to eat fresh mushrooms without peeling them. Cut off a thin slice from the stem end and cut in quarters. Chill and dunk them in this sauce: Mix 2 packages (3 ounces) of cream cheese; a whole cucumber with skin on, grated; two tablespoons grated onion; 1 teaspoon prepared mustard; 1/4 teaspoon t a b a s c o sauce; salt and pepper to taste. You can serve the sauce in a hollowed-out head of cabbage or pineapple halves. A new dam has a fish ladder over two and one-half miles long which is said to be the longest in the world.
