Hope Grows Dim For Lost Scouts

Tucson, Ariz.—UPI—Hope that three thinly-clad Boy Scouts, exposed to hip-deep snow and without food, are alive practically vanished today when rescuers reached a lonely cabin high on Mount Baldy and found it empty.

That ranger cabin was the goal of three youngsters last Saturday when they set out to climb the 9,000-foot mountain in Santa Rita Range, only to get trapped in the Southern Arizona blizzard.

Finding the cabin bare, 150 rescuers on horseback, snow shoes, skis and in planes, did not give up completely. They now are concentrating on the possibility the boys found one of several abandoned mines in the area and "holed in."

The ancient Egyptians observed New Year's Day on Sept. 21.

Smith had stopped his truck on the John Day highway 2 1/2 miles north of Vale when the lights failed on both truck and trailer.

Expected Snowfall Fails To Develop

Portland—UPI—An expected snow storm in the Portland area failed to develop Monday.

The weather man had forecast up to two inches of snow for the Portland area before warming conditions turned it to rain.

Forecasters said, however, that the first of two storm fronts off the coast failed to bring in precipitation as it moved inland. Warm air ahead of the second storm front raised temperatures enough so that rain fell instead of snow.

The weather man added that the city was "on the ragged" edge of getting snow as late in the afternoon Monday sleet was falling in northeast Portland.

The Health Education and Welfare Department contended that the dye should be banned completely.

Empire Builders Discuss Caravan

Tentative plans for a proposed wagon caravan to the 4-H summer school in Corvallis next year were discussed at a meeting of the Jackson county 4-H Empire Builders council recently.

Committees were appointed to look into the proposal, and a report is scheduled to be given at the next meeting.

The council also discussed changing the manner in which the fat stock is judged at the Jackson county 4-H fair. A proposal to award ribbons for prime, choice and good instead of first through 10th was discussed. Judging in prime, choice and good would assure that all members with animals of prime quality would be the first sold at the auction, with choice and good following.

Prison Inmates Given Last Chance

Jackson, Mich.—UPI—A group of rebellious inmates at Southern Michigan prison were given one last chance to return to work today or face disciplinary action.

Warden William Bannan acted swiftly Monday when some 300 convicts staged a sit-down strike at Southern Michigan, the world's largest walled prison with 5,000 inmates and scene of a bloody riot six years ago.

Bannan ordered all prisoners back to their cells and addressed them over the prison loudspeaker system. There was no violence.

Afterwards, the 300 strikers were told to return to work but 169 refused to comply and stayed in their cells. Bannan said if the restive inmates did not begin work today he would send them to a prison disciplinary court.
