The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a Judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

EVELYN D.—I'm in love with another man.
FRED D.—I don't want to live in a fool's paradise any longer.

EVELYN D.—My husband and I have been married 15 years and have two young children. My husband is a fine person—a considerate husband and good father—but I'm afraid I have never been in love with him.

That is my problem. I managed to convince myself that Fred would be the right "match" for me, but I have never known the experience of being in love—until recently.

The man happens to be a business associate of my husband's. I have known him almost as long as I've known my husband, yet we rarely talk together. There is always a great deal of tension when we are alone together. He is a bachelor and I have good reason to believe he has been in love with me all these years. I don't want to break up my home, but my husband says that if things are this way he'll release me and let me marry the other man.

fairly certain that Evelyn overlooks many of the real signs of love in her marriage. The fact that her husband considers her a good and devoted wife indicates that she has felt and shown loyalty, consideration and tenderness. We suspect that these feelings would become intensified if she had the maturity to recognize the genuine article and would try to express her feelings more actively instead of withdrawing into a self-induced dream.
