

Russian Ballet Film Coming; Tickets on Sale

Tickets are now on sale for the film of the famous Bolshoi Ballet group of Moscow, Russia, which will be shown here Tuesday, November 25, for one performance only at the Craterian theater. Curtain time will be 8:30 p.m.

Tickets are on sale at the Craterian from 9 a.m. to 12 noon, from 1 to 3 p.m. and after 7 p.m.

Bringing of the Bolshoi film to the United States is part of the recent exchange agreement between this country and the Soviet Union for an exchange of cultural products. The Bolshoi ballet group is recognized "as a hallmark by which all other ballet groups must be judged."

The film was produced in London last year when the entire ballet troupe made its first historic visit to Convent Garden in London and danced for Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II. The film was made with a series of multi-cameras designed to capture the full theatrical impact of a live ballet performance, in a live-man color and on wide screen.

Prima ballerina Galina Ulanova dances the classic "Giselle" and the film is completed by six other ballet divertissements typical of the Russian repertory. Included are excerpts for the Bolshoi's production of "The Fountain of Bakhisarai," "Swan Lake," "Ivan Susanin" and "Faust" as well as "Spring

Self-Help Packages Explained

There are more than 50 types of CARE self-help packages, it was pointed out today in connection with the current campaign in Medford to raise funds for CARE packages for Greece. The project is being sponsored here by Medford Travel Study club of the Oregon Federation of Women's clubs.

The packages range from $1 and $2 school kits that make it possible for children to go to school, or may even be used by adults to learn to read, to $90 packages for sewing machines on which girls and women can be trained to earn their living. There are also $20 kits of tools to train men in various trades.

CARE also contributes funds for special purchases such as livestock for agricultural commodities or centers, special equipment for schools and medicine, drugs and medical equipment for health clinics and hospitals.

Mrs. Walter Brown, Klamath Falls, president of Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs, states that wherever there is need of tools, CARE attempts to fill it. The saw, the preserving jar, the hoe, the needle and thread, and the slide rule are all tools of self-support, and tools of recovery.

Nobody Able To Get Close To Nation's Ft. Knox Gold Horde

By ELMER C. WALZER
UPI Financial Editor
New York (UPI)—A United Press International reporter wanted to visit Ft. Knox to look at the $12 billion in gold that's supposed to lie there under protection of an army.

A message comes in from Washington on this subject: "Regarding mission to Ft. Knox, director of the mint advises that nobody, but nobody, gets closer than one-quarter mile to the building."

"If reporter wants to stop by to see what the building looks like—from a distance of one quarter mile—that can be arranged."

In that case, director of the mint would have his man go to the gate and give reporter the standard background material.

There's a big difference between Ft. Knox and the New York Federal Reserve Bank. Here in New York lies a fortune of $8,500,000,000 of solid gold, gleaming down 85 feet below street level in impenetrable vaults.

The Fed isn't afraid of visitors. One, armed with proper credentials of say a newspaper reporter, can visit the vaults and paw over the gold. They'll even let him lift a 28-pound bar worth $14,000. A gold bar of that weight and value is about the size of a best seller volume.

people who need help, and they know the Americans have cared enough to try to help them," Mrs. Brown states. "This awareness strengthens their faith in their own abilities and encourages them in turn to greater initiative."

"CARE" boxes will be found in Leon's, Buster Brown Shoe Store, Karl's Shoe Store, Pichel Real Estate, Johnson-Stewart Shoe Store, Home Appliance company, U. S. National bank, First National bank, Rogue Valley bank, J. C. Penney company, Mann's, Pick's, Western Thrift, Summit Grocery, Top Notch cafe, Rogue restaurant, Modern Beauty shop, and the Medford hotel through Saturday, November 22.

A race horse must win the Triple-Crown as a three year old.

Nobody's talking about this reluctance to permit anyone to take a look at the $12 billion Ft. Knox gold. But it is a bit odd.

There's one difference between the two gold hoards. That at Ft. Knox belongs to us—it's U. S. property. The gold at the New York Federal Reserve is ear-marked—set aside—for foreign nations who trust us to keep it in the impenetrable vaults of the Federal Reserve Bank.

If anyone should have the opportunity to steal a bar of gold, it wouldn't do him much good unless he could smuggle it out of the country and that's practically impossible.

We don't know how good those vaults are at the fort. We do know the ones at the Fed here are burglar proof. And just in case anyone gets reckless there are 120 guards at the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

But there must be many more guards at Ft. Knox, armed with artillery, and who knows but what there might be an atomic weapon or two.

Suppose that $12 billion in gold isn't at Ft. Knox. Suppose it sank down deep into the ground.

The Old Story
The situation might be like the story that used to go around during the good old days of gold standards when one could buy gold for $20.67 per fine ounce and use it for a door stop or any other item he desired.

The story was that all the nations of the world pooled their gold and cached it in an island in a lonely part of the Pacific Ocean in an impenetrable, inaccessible location known to very few people.

Each year an expedition went to the island, made a cursory inspection and returned home. The island was able to receive messages but couldn't send messages. Each time a gold transfer was made from one nation to another the keeper of the gold would shift the bars to the receiving nation's vault and a bookkeeping entry told of the change. Faith of the gold's existence was all that was needed to make the transaction binding.

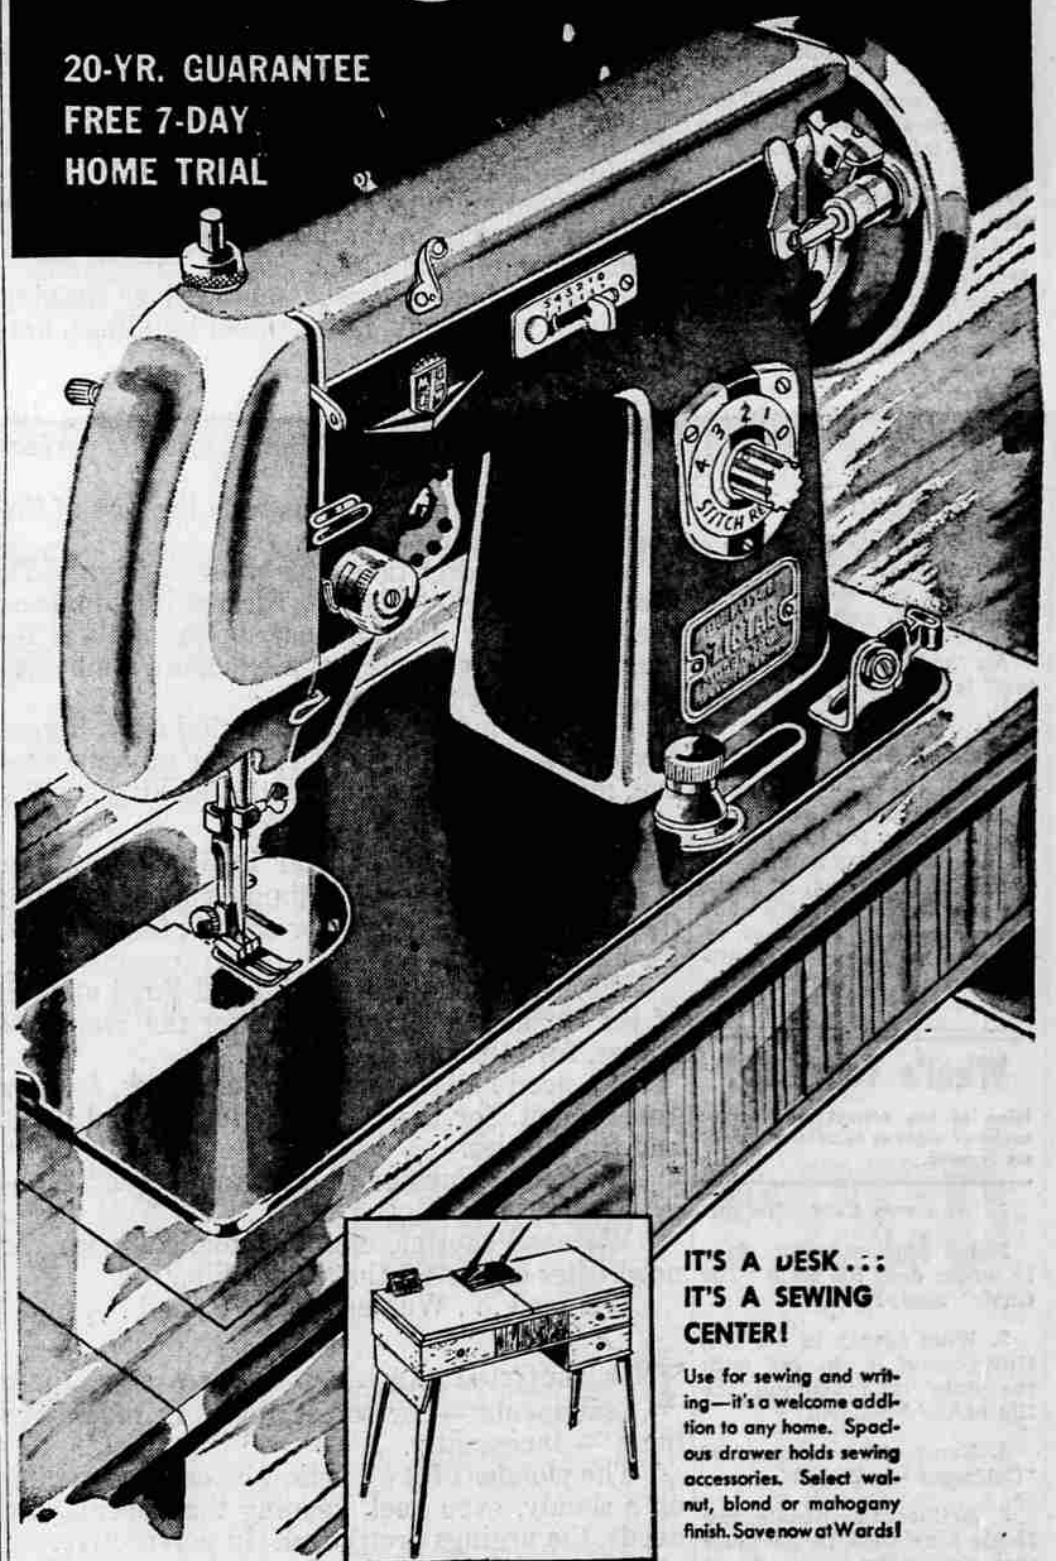

As the expedition neared the island one sunny day, the small inspection group was horrified to find it had sunk
