State Protected Land Had 272 Fires

A total of 272 fires occurred on state-protected land in the Southwest district of the state department of forestry during the 1958 fire season, District Warden Curt Nesheim reported Wednesday.

The number is more than double the 118 recorded in 1957. Nesheim attributed the larger total this year to lightning and a longer siege of "fire weather." Summer and early fall were hot and extremely dry.

Lightning caused 127 fires compared to nine in 1957. A total of 145 fires this year were listed as man-caused. The number was 118 in the previous season.

Fires during 1958 burned approximately 1,200 acres in the district. Acreage burned in 1957 was 714. Largest blaze of the past season swept over 396 acres on Sardine creek. It broke out on Aug. 19 and was listed as man-caused.
