Stock Prices Drop In Quieter Trading

New York - (UPI) - Stocks declined in quieter trading in the week end session today.

Lacking new developments in the news to push prices higher, the trading element elected to take profits here and there in the list. At the same time there was selective buying in special issues and isolated stocks of the major groups.

Tobacco shares met fairly good demand on their recent higher earnings reports, some dividend increases and more anticipated. Strength also was noted in individual issues of the building, amusement, chemical, beverage, electronic, and oil groups.

Steels, motors, most of the oils, chemicals, and televisions receded.
