SAFEBWAY

Descriptions Transmitted

In Texas an independent school district sold exclusive rights to broadcast its high school football games to a radio station, but the telephone company had a line in the field's pressbox and used it to transmit play by play descriptions of the football games to another radio station that put this on the air. The school district has asked the telephone company and the other radio station to stop this activity, but they refused to do so. The school district then asked the Attorney General of the State of Texas for an opinion regarding their right to sell the exclusive broadcast privileges. The Attorney General replied that the district had the right. The Texas court agreed with the Attorney General and ordered the unauthorized broadcasts stopped.

This is another area in which there are only a few cases that have actually come to the courts. Those that have been decided, however, are almost entirely in agreement in upholding the right to sell broadcast privileges.

VOTER CASTE CHECK

Bordeaux, France - (AP) - Sunday's election nearly cost one confused voter 150,000 francs ($375). He placed an envelope containing a check for that amount in the urn, and walked out of the polling place with his ballot. The envelope with the check was found by a vote counter, who knew just what to do with it. He happened to be a local bank teller.
