PGE Seeks Permit For Deschutes Dam

Portland — Portland General Electric company said Wednesday it is filing for a preliminary permit from the Oregon Hydroelectric commission for a $71 million dam on the Deschutes river in central Oregon.

The proposed Round Butte dam would produce 300,000 kilowatts of electricity.

Thomas W. Delzell, PGE's chief executive, said the structure would be the largest hydroelectric project ever built within the confines of Oregon. It would be 440 feet high and contribute one billion kilowatt-hours of electricity annually to the Northwest Power Pool.

Construction site would be several miles upstream from PGE's recently completed Pelton dam project and eight miles southwest of Madras.

A new plastic tile flooring with a coating of adhesive on the underside needs only to be pressed against the floor to adhere tightly.

The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Foundation
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

What Socialized Medicine Is Like

I recently read in the Journal of the American Medical associations a reprint from from California GP of an interview with Dr. Alastair J. Marshall, of Luton, England, who this summer was visiting this country under a Ford Foundation grant.

Dr. Alvarez

He was asked about socialized medicine in England, and he is thoroughly competent to speak on the subject because he is on the Executive Area Council for the National Health System.

He said that today, in England, no general practitioner has access to any hospital. When asked how long it takes to get a patient into an English hospital, he said that people have to wait "in line" two years for a tonsillectomy and two or three years for removal of a diseased gallbladder. When asked how many patients he takes care of, Dr. Marshall said he has 3,600 on his panel (list). Each morning in his office, he sees from 40 to 50 patients. He sees 50 or 60 more in the evening, and in the afternoon he makes from 20 to 50 house visits. The total is from 120 to 140 a day!

In the old days when he was a free agent he saw perhaps 35 patients a day. Obviously, now he cannot practice medicine; all he can do is to give a man with cough a prescription, perhaps No. 32. A man with diarrhea gets prescription No. 43, and a man with abdominal pain gets prescription No. 65. If the man with a cough keeps coming back several times, saying he got no relief, he is sent to a hospital to get an examination to see what is really wrong with his lungs!

Hypochondriacs Problem

Dr. Marshall was asked if hypochondriacs are a problem, and he said, "Yes, they are dreadful. We are knee-deep in them." They have done much to run up the cost of Government medicine to a level three times higher than it had been calculated to be. When Dr. Marshall was asked if he couldn't send some of the neurotic patients to a psychiatrist, he said that it was almost impossible to find one.

When asked how satisfied the people are with this inadequate type of medical practice he said, "most don't seem to care." Many are fairly satisfied because they now get a little medicine, whereas in the old days they just couldn't afford to see a doctor.

As Dr. Marshall said, in an overcrowded office, "every doctor will admit that the quality of his work has deteriorated." And this feeling eventually can ruin the scheme of socialized medicine because today no sensible young man wants to go into medicine.

As Dr. Marshall said, "I would certainly not advise my son to go into it." I have had a number of my British physician friends tell me this. Several said, also, that in order to escape into freedom again, they plan to emigrate to Canada, Australia, or South Africa.

Some of my readers may ask, but why doesn't the Government pay the doctors more? In the first place, the cost of socialized medicine has soared so that the English are now paying more for medical services than they paid before. How the mounting tax burden is to be borne no one knows. But more pay wouldn't make the doctors much happier. What they are objecting to is the killing life, and the lack of time in which even to ask the patients what the trouble is. There is no satisfaction or pride left in what they are doing. No one can see 130 patients a day and do more than, first, glance at the patient's complaint expressed in one or two words, written on a piece of paper by the doctor's nurse; and, second, put down a number designating a medicine.

Filling Out Blanks Problem

We must remember that one of the worst phases of socialized medicine is that the filling out of blanks in quadruplicate may take longer than it does to treat the patient. The doctors are thinking seriously of revolting against all this, and they are now studying the problem. They will not strike against the patients, but they will refuse to fill out the hundreds of "forms" that now have to go to the bureaucracy.

In another excellent interview, reprinted from the Los Angeles Times, L. D. Hotchkiss reported his brief visit to New Zealand, a country which has long been run as a socalistic Utopia. Everyone there is supposed to be taken care of medically from infancy to old age. A man is even buried by the Government. Unfortunately, Hotchkiss' impression was poor. The countryside is one of the most beautiful in the world and the people are delightful, but with all their idealistic schemes, they have gone brokes, and Hotchkiss heard that they are now trying desperately to borrow much money from their neighbors in Australia.

Dr. Alvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would be impossible for him to answer requests for information or to attempt to diagnose by mail.

Teleprinter Rates To Be Increased

Washington—(UPI) — Western Union and the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. had Federal Communications Commission authority today to increase teleprinter services charges by about $13,400,000 a year, effective Dec. 2.

The increases had been scheduled to go into effect next Monday, Dec. 1. But the FCC late Tuesday ordered a one-day delay.

This will give the agency time to issue orders instructing both companies to keep strict accounts in case the hikes later are ordered refunded.

The teleprinter rate boosts would cost AT&T customers an additional $8,400,000 a year and Western Union users about $5,000,000 annually.

More Small Cars Scheduled

Detroit —(UPI)— Two of the "big three" auto companies will begin production of small economy cars early in 1959 and the third will join them later in the year, Ward's Automotive Report said Wednesday.

A spokesman for the authoritative agency said it had "definitely learned" that General Motors and Ford will begin production of small cars early next year and Chrysler would follow suit later in the year.

The agency said GM and Chrysler would centralize their small car manufacturing in the Detroit area although "plant locations can't be disclosed at this early date.

"The move will put some of the clamor and steam back into some of the hardest hit auto plants in metropolitan Detroit," the agency said.

"Detroit will share its small car production with at least two other Midwest and Far West states, but the decision of the big three auto makers to locate in Detroit is probably tantamount to making the auto capital the nation's headquarters for the short wheelbase, economy car."

All three of the companies refused to comment on the report.
