

Family Council

Mrs. M. H.—I would like to marry again.
Emily K.—We'll take care of her.

Mrs. M. H.—I was widowed a few months ago and I am so lonely I just feel like dying. My son and daughter, who are both married, keep telling me that I am acting like a fool—that I have them and there is no reason to be lonely. But I can't help myself. I am sick of looking at the four walls.

Another widow in the neighborhood has been coming in to see me a lot, but my daughter chases her away. She says we are no good for each other because we just keep crying and talking about our troubles.

It may sound silly, but even though I'm past 65 I would like to get married again. Just to have a companion all your own and not have to depend on your children for everything means a lot. My daughter thinks I am insane when I talk like that.

Emily H.—My brother and I have done our best to take good care of Mother since Dad died. We visit her at least once a day. I often stop in a couple of times to see how she is getting along. She has a nice home and garden to take care of and she could be content if she didn't keep brooding all the time or making up crazy dreams about getting married.

Mother doesn't seem to realize that she would bring all kinds of trouble on herself if she got married. No man is going to marry her for her beauty at her age. As far as companionship is concerned, men manage to find it without marriage. The only reason anyone would marry Mom is for her money and her good cooking.

With the two of us to look after her, Mom doesn't have to worry about anything.

The Council: From both accounts, it appears to us that Mrs. M. H. is being kept a prisoner by her son and daughter.

Emily has her mother's situation all wrapped up. She knows exactly what her mother should and shouldn't do. Even more, she knows what her mother shouldn't feel. She is taking such "good care" of her mother that she has decided to hold the keys to the woman's mind and heart.

Mrs. M. H. now feels very helpless because of the shock of her recent loss. She has, therefore, allowed her children to take her over lock, stock and barrel. She'll have to make an effort to free herself from them if she wishes to make a reasonably pleasant life for herself in the future.

It is natural for Mrs. M. H. to think in terms of marriage as a way out of her loneliness, but marriages made for this sole reason are seldom successful. Good marriages, even among elderly persons, usually come about as a result of happy and active living.

We would suggest that Mrs. M. H. try to get active in her community and church. If she feels like having a good cry with a widow friend, she should do it. But there are other social relationships that she would enjoy discovering. If she thinks of this phase of her life as a brand new phase of a long voyage, she'll look forward to each day with some sense of adventure and will waste no time looking at the four walls.

Body, Fender Tools Reported Missing

Approximately $250 worth of miscellaneous body and fender tools and a one-half inch drill valued at $125 were stolen last week from the Ober Logging company, 1245 Biddle rd., Medford, according to city police.

A window was broken to gain entrance to the store, police said. The theft happened sometime between Nov. 19 and 20 and was reported to police Tuesday.
