Reed College Bomb Threats Admitted

Portland - (UP) - Police said today a 45-year-old merchant patrolman has admitted making at least three of five telephoned bomb threats to Reed College here since Nov. 12.

Howard W. Eggleston was arrested on a charge of threatening to commit a felony and was released on $1000 bail. Eggleston told officers that students at the school had insulted him and "tried to run me down with their cars..." Police received calls on Nov. 12 and 18 saying "the mess hall at Reed College is going to be bombed this afternoon at 5:30 or 6." Another threat was made that a bomb would go off in Doyle hall on the campus, police said. Police eliminated students as suspects because warnings referred to "mess hall" instead of "commons," the name students use for their eating place.

Demilitarized Free City as Status for Berlin Demanded

At this point he raised his voice and said, "we are, therefore, in a position of acting the same way as the West acted, namely, they disregarded the Potsdam and other agreements."

"The best way to liquidate the present cancerous tumor is recognition of the existing systems and setting up a new city. If the majority of the people of West Berlin prefer capitalism, let them have it." Western observers in Bonn predicted the Big Three and West Germany will firmly reject Russia's bold new move to oust the West out of Berlin.

Japanese Prince Breaks Tradition

Tokyo - (UP) - Japan's Crown Prince Akihito became engaged today to a pretty young commoner in a love match that broke 2,618 years of tradition and brought joy to the nation.

The Imperial Household Council announced after a 42-minute meeting that Akihito, 24, will marry 24-year-old Michiko Shoda, Catholic-educated daughter of a wealthy but non-royal flour mill executive.

The 38-word announcement shattered a tradition that began in 660 B.C., when the legendary Emperor Jimmu, descendant of the sun goddess Amaterasu, ascended the throne of Japan. No commoner ever has reigned as empress of Japan.

It was a love match. Akihito met and fell in love with Michiko two summers ago on a tennis court at a fashionable mountain resort. He fought the traditionalists and insisted he be allowed to select his own wife.

Wedding plans were not immediately announced but there was every indication the marriage would come between May and December next year, possibly on Dec. 23, the prince's 26th birthday.

Akihito's friends, teachers and high government officials said there was no doubt this was a true love match which had no parallel in Japanese history.

Beck's High Living Costly To Union

Tacoma, Wash. - (UP) - It cost the Teamsters Union about $60 a day to pay for Dave Beck's high-living during a six-year period, according to evidence in his income tax trial.

Beck, former Teamster Union president, is accused of evading payment of $240,000 in income taxes in 1950-53. Government exhibits introduced Wednesday showed Beck helped himself to a total of $107,799 during the years 1948-53. This money bought such items ranging from aspirin to xylophones, and paid for cutting the lawn at his luxurious Seattle home.

All but $8,353 of the $107,799 came from the account of the Western Conference of Teamsters. The remainder came from the treasury of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, according to the testimony.

Missing Minister Found Working as Shill in Las Vegas

Las Vegas, Nev. - (UP) - The soft-spoken man in the blue suit strolled up to the roulette table at the Golden Gate club and placed two chips on the red.

That, said one of the casino operators, is the Rev. Maurice D. Tulloch, a shill. He explained that a shill's activity is legal here and consists of gambling at various games to keep the action lively.

But a Baptist minister? Tulloch, 50, a preacher for the past 18 years, has been missing since Sept. 29 when he disappeared from a church seminar at Hutcheson, Kan., sponsored by the American Baptist Convention. He was located here

Wednesday and he told this. Tulloch, who at the time of his disappearance was pastor of the First Baptist Church of Sabetha, Kan., said he gave up the ministry because "all the church people are always harping at other churches."

Divorce Action Pending
Adding to his decision to get away from it all, he said, was a pending divorce action involving his wife and mother of his two children.

"I probably in the past preached against the ills of gambling," Tulloch said, "but this job has given me the best chance I've ever had to study human nature."

"In that sense, I think this is one of the most important jobs I've ever had." He said he plans to remain here and will not return to his family now living in Kansas City.

Tulloch, who attends church every Sunday here, has been working at the Golden Gate club, a small downtown casino, since Oct. 3. Tulloch said he arrived here with about $20 in his pocket and decided to seek a shill job when a waitress in a restaurant told him one was open.

Casino operators said they had to teach him how to gamble. They pay him $48 a week. Tulloch was married to his wife, Nellie, for 25 years. They have a son, Loren, 25, and a daughter, 19.

Since arriving here he has hired an attorney who has written Mrs. Tulloch asking for a divorce and seeking to give her power of attorney.

He said he uses his spare time on research for a textbook he plans to write called "Practical Thinking for Christian People."

"We're very happy with him," operators of the casino said. "He's a good shill despite the fact he's had no experience."
