

Denning Winner Of FFA Contest

Central Point - Don Denning, Crater High school student, Central Point, received first place in the Crater High school Future Farmers of America public speaking contest held Thursday, reported Ed Griggs, chapter adviser.

Don, a sophomore will represent the Crater FFA at the district contest to be held in Phoenix High school in January.

David Foote, also of Crater High school, placed second in the contest. He spoke on the production of hogs and use of vitamin B-12. Denning talked on the problem of decreasing FFA membership.

Contest judges were Gene Winters, Jackson county extension agent and Bill Brewster, Sams Valley elementary school principal.

Following the district contest in Phoenix High school, the first and second place winners will enter the sectional contest to be held in Crater High school in February. The winner of that contest will be entered in the competition during the FFA state convention in Corvallis, later going to the regional and national STANDAWAY SKIRT - She's a doll in this trapeze silhouette. It's in a crisp tafeta woven of Eastman "Chromespun" acetate. The standaway skirt is topped by a loosely fitted, scalloped-edge jacket. The luxurious texture and color are locked in for keeps.

contest, Griggs explained. Allen Barnes and Don Ryan presented chapter farmer pins entered in the competition during the FFA state convention in Corvallis, later going to the regional and national

Regulus Missile in Economy Drive

Washington - UP - The Navy's supersonic Regulus II today joined two other missiles abandoned by the Defense Department in the last three weeks as an economy measure.

The Navy announced Thursday night it had cancelled production of the Regulus II guided missile for an estimated saving of $100 million. The Navy has invested about $78 million in the project to date.

The Navy also announced plans to eliminate 9,000 civilian jobs in cutbacks at 30 facilities in 17 states.

Prices, Wages Blamed
The reductions were scheduled to take place mainly over the next two years and were attributed to a "general reduction in the Navy establishment" because of rising prices, wages and procurement costs.

The Regulus missile was produced by Chance Vought Aircraft, Inc., Dallas, Tex., which only Wednesday suffered cancellation of its F8U3 supersonic fighter program in favor of the F4H1 all weather jet fighter of McDonnell Aircraft Co., St. Louis.

On Nov. 29 the Air Force cancelled its Rascal air to surface rocket. On Dec. 12 the same service called off plans to develop the Goose, a long-range ground to air decoy missile.
