

THESE ARE THE LEADERS....

... because their affiliation with the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce demonstrates a willingness to accept responsibility, participate in cooperative action and support stable community growth.

Their combined cash investment over the years represents faith in the economic future of Jackson County. It indicates faith in themselves that through organized effort they can carry out a program of attracting new wealth and making our region a better place in which to live.

These leaders have contributed a great deal toward reasons for pride in your community. For example: It was their funds that paid the cost of initial research on the new hospital; it was their money that initiated action on Rogue water studies and paid for research regarding wood waste utilization and job stabilization. Their dollars helped to stimulate better airline service and a start on the recently announced road to Klamath Falls. It is their money that pays for fact gathering, design, publishing and distribution of 100,000 folders annually to conventions, tourists, residential and industrial prospects.

None of these things happen without those willing to back the cost of a chamber program over the long pull. Your expression of pride regarding developments continually occurring in Jackson County may well be directed toward these business and professional men whose membership in the Chamber of Commerce set them apart as leaders in community growth. Not all communities are so fortunate.

BOARD of DIRECTORS, JACKSON COUNTY CHAMBER of COMMERCE

While past accomplishments merit community pride, future projects represent an opportunity and challenge to the individual. "Chambers of Commerce are people working together on tomorrow's needs today." Therefore, the invitation to join forces with other business leaders in the community toward building a better Jackson County will always remain open. Community cooperation will be doubly important during the year ahead — Oregon's Centennial Year! Full and far-sighted participation in the State's Centennial Exposition and International Trade Fair is certain to pay big dividends. Your place on the membership rolls and committee rosters awaits only an indication of your interest. Why not find out more about the Chamber program by calling SPring 2-6293?
