

Experienced Doctor Says There Is An 'Alcoholic Personality'

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

New York (UPI)—A physician widely experienced with alcoholics disputes the growing scientific suspicion that there is no such thing as "the alcoholic personality." There is such a personality, said Dr. Robert I. Levy, but you can get confused by it taking a number of forms.

It is closely connected with another symbolic function. The first feeling of alcoholic personality "this impression: 'I feel pleasure. That is because I am lovable.' Or it may go this way: 'I feel pleasure. I have been forgiven.'"

Quotes From the News

By United Press International

Cleveland, Ohio — Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan on Russian boasts that they are going to catch up and overtake us in living standards and productivity: "A long time ago, Lenin told us to learn from the Americans' business-like attitude and their ability to organize industry. We are attempting to do just that."

Bakersfield, Calif. — Leslie Stafford Jr., the 45-year-old well digger who fought free of a tomb of sand and gravel after he was once given up for dead: "I don't know exactly what I was thinking all the time, I just prayed."

Philadelphia — M. O. Anderson, superintendent of Independence Hall, on an offer by the London foundry which cast the Liberty Bell to repair the crack in it: "The cracked bell . . . is the greatest symbol of freedom in the United States and possibly throughout the entire world. I'm sure we wouldn't be interested in having the crack removed."

Washington — An intimate of Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson referring to the showdown between Johnson and Vice President Richard Nixon on the Senate's opening day on revision of Senate rules to gag filibusters: "This will not be a panty-waist fight. This is a plain struggle between Johnson and Nixon."

Khrushchev Rejects Commune System As 'Old-Fashioned'

Washington — (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in his recent Moscow talk with Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) rejected the commune system recently instituted in Communist China.

Humphrey, writing in the Jan. 12 issue of Life magazine about his eight-hour talk with the Soviet boss, said Khrushchev called the system "old-fashioned and reactionary . . . not nearly so good as the state farm and collective farms" in Russia.

Humphrey also said Khrushchev noted that communes were based on the principle, "from each according to his abilities, to each according to his needs." Khrushchev said, "You know that won't work because you can't get production without incentive."

"Rather Capitalistic" — The Minnesota congressman said he asked the Communist leader if his statement on incentive wasn't "rather capitalistic." Khrushchev replied: "Call it what you will, it works."

Khrushchev, Humphrey wrote, also told how he laid a propaganda trap for President Eisenhower and how the President "walked right into
