Constitutional Convention, Stronger Merit System Urged in Hatfield Talk

On other topics, Hatfield said:

Manageable government: "I urge a constitutional convention as the only feasible way in which we can achieve the comprehensive revision that will give us framework for a more manageable government."

Efficient government: "We can strengthen the competence of our government by reinforcing the merit system in the selection of state employees" and in "more efficient use of manpower through electronic marvels."

Boards and commissions: "I propose that the Hydroelectric Commission be abolished and its duties absorbed by the Water Resources Board and that the state engineer's office be amalgamated with the water resources board."

Education: "I recommend enlarging the State Board of Higher Education from nine to 12 members and the State Board of Education from seven to nine members . . . I urge that the superintendent of public instruction be appointed rather than elected."

He also favored selective admission to higher education institutions and creation of a state scholarship fund for deserving students.

Senior citizens: "Property taxes should be waived for those over 65 years of age having a gross income of less than $2,500 and whose true cash value on their residence does not exceed $7,500."

Highways: "Either we increase our state's gasoline tax one cent a gallon–an amount equal to $6.66 per year for the average driver of 10,000 miles–or we forego some of the opportunities that exist in the federal matching program now under way."

Judicial reform: "Circuit judges should be moved up to the Supreme Court bench on a pro-tem basis . . . I would advocate further adoption of the maximum sentence law."

Natural resources: "Our state policy and administration should include adequate and farsighted administration of our timber tax laws. These laws and policies must be both stabilized and standardized to insure growth of forest crops for the equal and guaranteed use of the future."

Unemployment compensation: "Employers have already been forced to adjust their taxes to the new situation and still further sacrifices by affected parties may be temporarily necessary."

State institutions: "The outpatient program at Oregon institutions should be strengthened . . . we should use available funds to try to reduce the number of patients needing institutional care."

Election reform: "I urge that pre-election reports of campaign expenditures and contributions be required so that voters will have a better idea of the political forces involved."

City-county reform: "I urge that in implementing the county home rule measure approved by the electorate in November you allow the greatest flexibility possible for those who will adapt their county government to the needs of the future."

Succession and retirement of governors: "I suggest you consider returning the line of succession whereby the secretary of state acts for the governor in his absence or succeeds him upon death or disability. Thereafter the state treasurer, the president of the Senate and the speaker of the House, in that order, would form the line of succession."

Centennial exposition: "I recommend you make as an early order of business a complete inquiry into centennial organization and planning . . . perhaps personally headed by the presiding officers of the House and Senate–so that you might be satisfied we are on the right track."

Legislative procedures: ". . . introduction of electronic voting equipment."

Agriculture: "I believe the State Fair Commission should be abolished and its duties and responsibilities returned to the Department of Agriculture . . . I recommend that the Board of Agriculture be reorganized to provide that the seven member board serve six-year staggered terms, that there be a near balance of political affiliation on the board and that no two members come from the same commodity interest."

Labor: "Encouragement should be given to national or state insistence on broadening of requirements for secret ballots in elections and strict accounting of union funds. The anti-picketing law of 1953 should be repealed."

State offices: As well as urging that the superintendent of public instruction be appointive rather than elective, he urged that the attorney general and labor commissioner be appointive also.

Teamster Lawyer Returns To Stand

Tacoma, Wash. – (UPI) – A veteran teamsters attorney was to take the stand again today to discuss Dave Beck's financial dealings with the Teamsters Union as the former international union president's income tax evasion trial reopened in federal court here.

Samuel B. Bassett was expected to discuss the accord and satisfaction agreement through which Beck has paid the Teamsters Union $370,000.

As the court recessed Friday, Bassett testified that he had only scanty knowledge of the transaction. He said he took no part in negotiation of the agreement.

He testified he was only a "messenger boy" between Seattle attorney George Kachlein and the union in drawing up the accord and satisfaction document.

Beck is being tried on charges of evading $240,000 in income taxes for 1950 through 1953.

Medford Couple Plead Guilty in Municipal Court

Joycelin Jean Rushing, 19, and Billy Joe Rushing, 28, both of 2986 Buckshot Hill rd., pleaded guilty in Medford municipal court today to charges of prostitution and receiving a prostitute's earnings, respectively.

Mrs. Rushing was given a 50-day suspended sentence by Municipal Judge Noreen Kelly. Rushing's penalty is a $50 fine or 25 day in jail. He was confined.

The pair were arrested Saturday night in downtown Medford after police received an anonymous call.

Mrs. Rushing admitted she had accompanied a man that evening to his hotel room and received $5, police said.

She further admitted in a signed statement that she turned over the money to Rushing "so that he and a friend could eat dinner."

Police said Rushing admitted receiving the money and knowing whence it had come.

Mrs. Rushing told police in her statement that she and Rushing had been married June 19, 1958 and that she had begun prostitution the following month.

She stated they had also operated in Sacramento, Calif., and in Hollis, Okla., and she solicited "about two or three times a week." She told police she had earned $400 or $500 altogether, and turned it over to her husband.

Space Capsule To Carry Man Into Orbit Ordered

Washington –(UPI)– The National Aeronautics and Space Administration today ordered McDonnell Aircraft Corp., St. Louis, to build the first U. S. "space capsule" to carry a man into an orbit around the earth.

The work is expected to take at least two years, informed officials said. The space agency said the manned satellite would cost more than $15 million.

McDonnell will design, develop and build the satellite.

12 Competitors

It was selected from among 12 companies who submitted bids in a government competition.

The powerful rocket booster, probably an Atlas missile, will hurl the manned satellite or space capsule into orbit.

The purpose, NASA said, will be to "carry a human passenger through the atmosphere, into orbital flight, and safely back to earth again."

With the satellite and its human occupants, the United States will be able to study the psychological and physiological effects of space flight on man.

Research will cover the reaction of a man to weightlessness as he travels around the earth on a virtually gravity-free state.

Studies Limited

Studies of weightlessness up to now have been limited to manned flights in jet aircraft and to the launching of a monkey in an Army Jupiter missile.

In the jet, pilots arched sharply over the top of the plane's trajectory. Neither the men nor the monkey were weightless for more than a few minutes.

The space capsule will also enable studies of man's reaction to very high acceleration during the launching through the atmosphere and very high deceleration on reentering the atmosphere.

The manned space flight operation is called Project Mercury.

Dr. T. Keith Glenna, NASA administrator, has said it would take "several" years to get a man into space.

More than two million people attended the Texas State Fair at Dallas in 1955.

Mikoyan Prediction Said Only Wishing

Washington–(UPI)–Sen. Alexander Wiley (R.-Wis.) today labeled as "wishful thinking" Soviety Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan's prediction that socialism was "inevitable" in the United States.

"Socialism will go down–not freedom," Wiley said.

Mikoyan made his forecast in a speech in Chicago last week.

Wiley, the top-ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations committee, said socialism "subordinates the individual to the state, or to an autocratic group."

He said that by repressing freedom, the Communist nations were "creating 'human atomic bombs'–with unpredictable time fuses–that may one day explode and blow the leaders off their dictatorial thrones."
