

Days of Crusades Gone; Women's Work Not Done

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
New York — Gone are the days when the crusades of a Carrie Nation or Carrie Chapman Catt stirred the nation.

But the woman in search of a cause can find one readily in her own community, says Anna Lord Strauss, a leader in public affairs projects.

She said that today the issues, the causes, may not always be so clear cut as was the fight for prohibition or for woman suffrage.

But there are still plenty in the fields of better schools, better hospitalization and medical care, better government and better race relations, to name a few.

"There is such an infinite amount of work to be done," she said, "that I often wonder at a woman expressing boredom."

Miss Strauss, whose great-grandmother was the suffragist leader, Lucretia Mott, is president of the Carrie Chapman Catt Memorial fund, a research and educational project set up by the League of Women Voters.

This month marks the anniversary of the birth of Mrs. Catt, who campaigned for suffrage until the amendment was written into the Constitution in 1919 and ratified in 1920.

Today's crusader has a wonderful chance to make her community "the best possible place for her family and her neighbors to live," Miss Strauss said.

"In doing so, better government often is the key. Sometimes it is just lack of citizen support which encourages a 'don't care' attitude in public officials.

"But if the local government is as good as citizens can make it, the state and national will follow."

"If we as individuals worked to make this country as good as it is possible to be made, we would never need worry about Communism."

"Certainly, having the vote means that women have the key to full citizenship. But unless we use the key, we are just as locked out as we used to be."

Not a Feminist
Miss Strauss, member of a prominent New York family, is former president of the League of Women Voters of the United States. She has served on numerous presidential committees on education, welfare and economics, and in 1951 was a member of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations General Assembly.

She is a woman of medium height, with bright brown eyes, graying hair and unbounded energy. She has traveled the world to talk of woman's role in public life, but she is not a feminist — "at least not a militant one," she smiled.

"That type can be trying." But she is critical of any country which has not given women the right to vote — pointing out that all the new, independent nations have. But Switzerland, for example, has not.

"There the men pulled a switch in their campaign to prevent suffrage," she said. "Elections are held on Sunday, and some of them complained they wouldn't get Sunday dinner with their wives off at the polls."

Teacher Explains Special Classes
Karl A. Hayes, principal of the special education classes at Jackson county, was guest speaker for the Wednesday Study club program at the last meeting.

Mr. Hayes explained the nature of his work and ran slides showing the young students engaged in various arts, crafts, music, domestic science and playground activities.

Mr. Hayes stated that increased funds are needed to train teachers and to continue this special educational work.

Miss Mary Pat Lucy, Jackson county extension agent, will give the lesson at a meeting of Lone Pine Extension unit to be held Thursday, January 15, at 10:30 a.m. at Roxy Ann Grange hall on Spring street.

The topic will be "Posture and Exercise."

Members are asked to take quotations on the history of Jackson county for a discussion on the coming centennial celebration, and to be ready with ideas for program planning for the coming year.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Clarence Childers, Mrs. Max Terzenbach, Mrs. Earl Richardson and Mrs. J. J. Pyle. Baby sitting will be available at the home of Mrs. E. W. Pfeister, 1345 Brookdale road, telephone SPing 2-8087.

Mrs. Henry Dooms Club President
Mrs. Henry Dooms will assume the duties of president of the Wagonah club at a meeting Thursday, January 15, at the home of Mrs. Blaine Iversen, 550 Fairview avenue, Ashland. The business meeting is scheduled for 11 a.m., a pot-luck luncheon will be served at 12 noon and cards will follow.

Upper Rogue Group Meets at Tocksteins
Upper Rogue Grange Home Economic club held the January meeting at the home of Mrs. G. M. Tockstein. Luncheon was served by Mrs. Tockstein and Mrs. Ranald Axtell, co-hostesses.

Mesdames Grieve, Eastin and Moorhead were appointed to the executive board by Mrs. Tockstein.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Asbjorn Mykelby, with Mrs. Wyles Berry as co-hostess. It is set for February 12.

Members are asked to take table service to each meeting.

Meeting Planned For Bridge Club
St. Anne's Benefit Duplicate Bridge club will meet Friday, January 16, at the home of Mrs. Vincent P. Nicoletti, 31 Crater Lake avenue.

Anyone wishing to learn duplicate bridge is invited to play with the group and may phone either Mrs. Nicoletti, SPing 3-1406, or Mrs. Robert A. Naumes, SPing 2-4273.

The club plays from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. to enable mothers with school age children to attend.

Tied for high score at the December meeting were Mrs. Nicoletti, Mrs. Paul Haviland, Mrs. J. J. Finegan and Mrs. Farrell Fisch.

Newlyweds Honeymoon In Islands

Hornbrook — Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Newton Jr. are at home now at 303 North Oregon Street, Yreka, Calif., following their recent marriage and a three-weeks honeymoon which took them to the Hawaiian islands.

Mrs. Newton is the former Miss Dorothy Ann Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Smith, Hornbrook. Mr. Newton's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Albert H. Newton of Yreka.

The ceremony was held in St. Thomas Aquinas Catholic Cathedral in Reno, Nev. November 29, with the Rev. Monsignor G. Smith officiating. Baskets of white chrysanthemums decorated the church for the wedding.

Given in marriage by her father, the blonde bride wore a white bouffant gown of chantilly lace and accordion pleated nylon net tiers over white satin. The gown, waist length, had a boat neck trimmed with sequins, and her shoulder length illusion veil was held by a pearl tiara.

She carried a white prayer book topped with orchids and Stephanotis.

Sister is Attendant
Mrs. Edward M. Smith, Orland, Calif. was matron of honor for her sister-in-law. Her dress was a sheath of beige lace worn with a corsage of bronze tiger orchids.

The bridegroom's brother, Michael Newton, Berkeley, Calif., served as best man, and seating the guests were Carl Hickey, Sacramento, and Dana McCargar, Yreka. Ernest Burton of Ft. Jones, cousin of the bride, was altar boy.

The choir sang, accompanied by the church organist.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Smith wore a turquoise blue dress with matching hat and a white orchid. Mrs. Newton chose a sheath of rose beige lace with which she wore a lavender orchid.

Reception Held
A reception was held in the Nevada Room of the Mapes hotel. About 60 guests attended. Miss Kathleen Williams, Redding, Calif., presided at the guest book.

For traveling, the bride wore a green print silk dress and mink stole. During their honeymoon in the islands, the young couple were entertained at a cocktail party by Admiral Robert Hickey of the Pacific Fleet, whose brother Carl was one of the ushers at the wedding.

Admiral Hickey is a long-time friend of both the Smith and the Newton families.

The bride was born in Hornbrook, and attended Hornbrook grammar school and Yreka high school. She is a graduate of San Jose State college where her sorority was Gamma Phi Beta. She is a grammar school teacher in Yreka.

Mr. Newton, also a graduate of Yreka high school attended St. Mary's college Hastings Law School, and the University of Colorado Law School. Early this month, he was sworn in as district attorney for Siskiyou County.

Before her wedding, the bride was honored at several showers in Scott Valley, Yreka and Hornbrook. The largest was that given Nov. 7 at the home of Mrs. Henley Clawson in Hornbrook, which was attended by 63 friends of the bride.

Upper Rogue Group Meets at Tocksteins
Upper Rogue Grange Home Economic club held the January meeting at the home of Mrs. G. M. Tockstein. Luncheon was served by Mrs. Tockstein and Mrs. Ranald Axtell, co-hostesses.

Mesdames Grieve, Eastin and Moorhead were appointed to the executive board by Mrs. Tockstein.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Asbjorn Mykelby, with Mrs. Wyles Berry as co-hostess. It is set for February 12.

Members are asked to take table service to each meeting.

Meeting Planned For Bridge Club
St. Anne's Benefit Duplicate Bridge club will meet Friday, January 16, at the home of Mrs. Vincent P. Nicoletti, 31 Crater Lake avenue.

Vocational Grant Available From Altrusa; Two Report

Two Southern Oregon College students who are attending with the aid of Altrusa vocational grants, were guests at the Medford Altrusa club dinner meeting at Ping's Garden recently.

Mrs. Mildred Marshall, Rogue River, who received her first teaching certificate upon graduation from high school in 1922, told the group that after the death of her husband it became necessary for her to return to work. She found that she would need additional training to return to the teaching profession.

With the help of a grant from the local Altrusa club she enrolled at the college, taking time out one semester to teach in Rogue River. A Founders' Fund grant from Altrusa International was made for her senior year, and at the end of this winter term she qualified for a degree of bachelor of science in education. Mrs. Marshall hopes to be able to work with retarded children.

Mrs. Don Little, Central Point, who has also received local and Altrusa International grants, will receive her degree in June. She will be fulfilling her student-teacher requirements at Central Point this spring. Mrs. Little, who has three children, said that she had no employed experience prior to her marriage.

When it became necessary recently for her to seek employment she decided upon teaching, which would leave her as much time as possible with her family. The Altrusa grants together with a state scholarship enabled her to complete the necessary training.

His firm is a member of the couture group of the New York Dress Institute which this week is showing its spring styles to women's and fashion editors.

Monte-Sano's firm has chopped coat and suit sleeve lengths to a new high—above the elbow—and, said the designer, "chopped 10 years off the appearance of the wearer."

The above-elbow sleeve he said was a "natural outgrowth of the push up sleeve which women loved. But why push up; why not cut off. The shorter sleeve is younger looking."

Here are highlights of collections from other firms so far:
Nettie Rosenstein—This veteran designer, back at work after a one-season "sabbatical," cinched waistlines, scooped necklines, and featured and shirtwaist dress.

Cardigan Featured
Claire McCardell clothes by Townley — Mildred Orrick, who became head designer for this firm after the death of Miss McCardell, feature the cardigan-jacket suit. The firm also is selling the chemise—with belt.

Paul Farnes—This manufacturer favors suits with slim skirts and short jackets. Jackets are semi-fitted or slightly bloused.

B. H. Wrang—The classic shirtwaist reigns at his this house famous for its casual, young suburbanite fashions. Wrang also introduces the "slipcover" dress, Oriental style.

Edward Abbott—Designer Wilson Folmer fixes the waistline at normal, with ease of silhouette above and below. "Puffery" is his term for a silhouette with bulk above the waistline.

Ann Fogarty—This designer sticks with two silhouettes for which she long has been known—the sheath and the shirtwaist.

Pretty Party Dish
New York—UPI—Molded potato salad makes a pretty party dish.

Bring 1 1/2 cups water to boil. Remove from fire, add 2 tablespoons instant minced onion, and stir in 1 envelope instant mashed potato. Mix 1/4 cup each prepared mustard and mayonnaise and blend into hot potatoes.

Add 1 cup diced celery, 1/4 cup diced green pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped drained sweet pickle, 1 tablespoon chopped pimiento, 2 chopped hard cooked eggs, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/8 teaspoon white pepper, and mix well.

Brush 1 1/2 quart mold or individual molds with salad oil, line with strips of green pepper, 2 sliced hard cooked eggs and sliced olives. Gently press salad into mold and chill. Serves 6.

New York—UPI—Spread thin slices of bread with mayonnaise, then sprinkle with shredded cheese, sliced ripe olives and a dash of oregano. Roll and fasten with a pick, butter lightly and bake in a hot oven until golden brown. Wonderful with hot soup.

Jet Age Affects Fashions

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
New York—UPI — Today's styles change faster for the same reason we get to Europe quicker. The jet age is responsible, says a leading suit and coat designer.

"Fashion's transition is faster because our world is growing smaller," said Vincent Monte-Sano, vice-president of Monte-Sano and Pruzan, and son of the firm's co-founder. "A new style is communicated so rapidly it soon becomes an old style."

Monte-Sano said however that the demise of the chemise could be blamed on the fashion itself—because it "looked great on only a few women and like the dickens on the majority."

"A woman buys an outfit because it flatters her," said Monte-Sano, whose firm Monday previewed its spring collection. "If she gets a lift, it then follows that she will draw compliments from others. There is a lot to be said for the psychological effect of a dress."

Sleeves Above Elbow
His firm is a member of the couture group of the New York Dress Institute which this week is showing its spring styles to women's and fashion editors.

Monte-Sano's firm has chopped coat and suit sleeve lengths to a new high—above the elbow—and, said the designer, "chopped 10 years off the appearance of the wearer."

The above-elbow sleeve he said was a "natural outgrowth of the push up sleeve which women loved. But why push up; why not cut off. The shorter sleeve is younger looking."

Here are highlights of collections from other firms so far:
Nettie Rosenstein—This veteran designer, back at work after a one-season "sabbatical," cinched waistlines, scooped necklines, and featured and shirtwaist dress.

Cardigan Featured
Claire McCardell clothes by Townley — Mildred Orrick, who became head designer for this firm after the death of Miss McCardell, feature the cardigan-jacket suit. The firm also is selling the chemise—with belt.

Paul Farnes—This manufacturer favors suits with slim skirts and short jackets. Jackets are semi-fitted or slightly bloused.

B. H. Wrang—The classic shirtwaist reigns at his this house famous for its casual, young suburbanite fashions. Wrang also introduces the "slipcover" dress, Oriental style.

Edward Abbott—Designer Wilson Folmer fixes the waistline at normal, with ease of silhouette above and below. "Puffery" is his term for a silhouette with bulk above the waistline.

Ann Fogarty—This designer sticks with two silhouettes for which she long has been known—the sheath and the shirtwaist.

Pretty Party Dish
New York—UPI—Molded potato salad makes a pretty party dish.

Bring 1 1/2 cups water to boil. Remove from fire, add 2 tablespoons instant minced onion, and stir in 1 envelope instant mashed potato. Mix 1/4 cup each prepared mustard and mayonnaise and blend into hot potatoes.

Add 1 cup diced celery, 1/4 cup diced green pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped drained sweet pickle, 1 tablespoon chopped pimiento, 2 chopped hard cooked eggs, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/8 teaspoon white pepper, and mix well.

Brush 1 1/2 quart mold or individual molds with salad oil, line with strips of green pepper, 2 sliced hard cooked eggs and sliced olives. Gently press salad into mold and chill. Serves 6.

New York—UPI—Spread thin slices of bread with mayonnaise, then sprinkle with shredded cheese, sliced ripe olives and a dash of oregano. Roll and fasten with a pick, butter lightly and bake in a hot oven until golden brown. Wonderful with hot soup.

Men Better Than Women In Weight Losing Tests

Chicago (Science Service)—Men outclass women when it comes to losing weight, medical reports show.

Three separate studies have revealed that a far higher percentage of men than women were able to achieve a modest success of a 20-pound weight loss, two scientists reported.

Men are even more successful than women when both sexes are trying to lose 40 pounds, Dr. Albert Stunkard, psychiatrist at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, and Miss Mavis McLaren-Hume of the department of nutrition at New York Hospital, explained.

They offered no reason for this apparent male success. "Sex of the patients has not, to our knowledge, been previously suggested as a possible factor in the success of efforts at weight reduction," they said.

At least three other criteria for predicting success have been suggested. They are the "night-eating syndrome" in which the patient eats at night, the outcome of previous attempts at dieting, and the amount of anxiety in the patient.

Men Better Than Women In Weight Losing Tests

A review of literature and a study of 100 patients at New York Hospital revealed that none of these had any validity as indications of success at weight reduction.

Weight reduction is a difficult business, the researchers pointed out. Success occurs when the patient and physician alike give up the naively optimistic idea that weight reduction will follow as a matter of course once treatment is begun. They must realize that treatment is more than just prescribing and following a diet, the scientists concluded in their report in the Archives of Internal Medicine (January).

At least three other criteria for predicting success have been suggested. They are the "night-eating syndrome" in which the patient eats at night, the outcome of previous attempts at dieting, and the amount of anxiety in the patient.

A review of literature and a study of 100 patients at New York Hospital revealed that none of these had any validity as indications of success at weight reduction.

Weight reduction is a difficult business, the researchers pointed out. Success occurs when the patient and physician alike give up the naively optimistic idea that weight reduction will follow as a matter of course once treatment is begun. They must realize that treatment is more than just prescribing and following a diet, the scientists concluded in their report in the Archives of Internal Medicine (January).

At least three other criteria for predicting success have been suggested. They are the "night-eating syndrome" in which the patient eats at night, the outcome of previous attempts at dieting, and the amount of anxiety in the patient.

A review of literature and a study of 100 patients at New York Hospital revealed that none of these had any validity as indications of success at weight reduction.

Weight reduction is a difficult business, the researchers pointed out. Success occurs when the patient and physician alike give up the naively optimistic idea that weight reduction will follow as a matter of course once treatment is begun. They must realize that treatment is more than just prescribing and following a diet, the scientists concluded in their report in the Archives of Internal Medicine (January).

At least three other criteria for predicting success have been suggested. They are the "night-eating syndrome" in which the patient eats at night, the outcome of previous attempts at dieting, and the amount of anxiety in the patient.

A review of literature and a study of 100 patients at New York Hospital revealed that none of these had any validity as indications of success at weight reduction.

Weight reduction is a difficult business, the researchers pointed out. Success occurs when the patient and physician alike give up the naively optimistic idea that weight reduction will follow as a matter of course once treatment is begun. They must realize that treatment is more than just prescribing and following a diet, the scientists concluded in their report in the Archives of Internal Medicine (January).

At least three other criteria for predicting success have been suggested. They are the "night-eating syndrome" in which the patient eats at night, the outcome of previous attempts at dieting, and the amount of anxiety in the patient.

A review of literature and a study of 100 patients at New York Hospital revealed that none of these had any validity as indications of success at weight reduction.

Weight reduction is a difficult business, the researchers pointed out. Success occurs when the patient and physician alike give up the naively optimistic idea that weight reduction will follow as a matter of course once treatment is begun. They must realize that treatment is more than just prescribing and following a diet, the scientists concluded in their report in the Archives of Internal Medicine (January).

At least three other criteria for predicting success have been suggested. They are the "night-eating syndrome" in which the patient eats at night, the outcome of previous

Men Better Than Women In Weight Losing Tests

Chicago (Science Service)—Men outclass women when it comes to losing weight, medical reports show.

Three separate studies have revealed that a far higher percentage of men than women were able to achieve a modest success of a 20-pound weight loss, two scientists reported.

Men are even more successful than women when both sexes are trying to lose 40 pounds, Dr. Albert Stunkard, psychiatrist at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, and Miss Mavis McLaren-Hume of the department of nutrition at New York Hospital, explained.

They offered no reason for this apparent male success. "Sex of the patients has not, to our knowledge, been previously suggested as a possible factor in the success of efforts at weight reduction," they said.

At least three other criteria for predicting success have been suggested. They are the "night-eating syndrome" in which the patient eats at night, the outcome of previous attempts at dieting, and the amount of anxiety in the patient.

A review of literature and a study of 100 patients at New York Hospital revealed that none of these had any validity as indications of success at weight reduction.

Weight reduction is a difficult business, the researchers pointed out. Success occurs when the patient and physician alike give up the naively optimistic idea that weight reduction will follow as a matter of course once treatment is begun. They must realize that treatment is more than just prescribing and following a diet, the scientists concluded in their report in the Archives of Internal Medicine (January).

At least three other criteria for predicting success have been suggested. They are the "night-eating syndrome" in which the patient eats at night, the outcome of previous attempts at dieting, and the amount of anxiety in the patient.

A review of literature and a study of 100 patients at New York Hospital revealed that none of these had any validity as indications of success at weight reduction.

Weight reduction is a difficult business, the researchers pointed out. Success occurs when the patient and physician alike give up the naively optimistic idea that weight reduction will follow as a matter of course once treatment is begun. They must realize that treatment is more than just prescribing and following a diet, the scientists concluded in their report in the Archives of Internal Medicine (January).

At least three other criteria for predicting success have been suggested. They are the "night-eating syndrome" in which the patient eats at night, the outcome of previous attempts at dieting, and the amount of anxiety in the patient.

A review of literature and a study of 100 patients at New York Hospital revealed that none of these had any validity as indications of success at weight reduction.

Weight reduction is a difficult business, the researchers pointed out. Success occurs when the patient and physician alike give up the naively optimistic idea that weight reduction will follow as a matter of course once treatment is begun. They must realize that treatment is more than just prescribing and following a diet, the scientists concluded in their report in the Archives of Internal Medicine (January).

At least three other criteria for predicting success have been suggested. They are the "night-eating syndrome" in which the patient eats at night, the outcome of previous attempts at dieting, and the amount of anxiety in the patient.

A review of literature and a study of 100 patients at New York Hospital revealed that none of these had any validity as indications of success at weight reduction.

Weight reduction is a difficult business, the researchers pointed out. Success occurs when the patient and physician alike give up the naively optimistic idea that weight reduction will follow as a matter of course once treatment is begun. They must realize that treatment is more than just prescribing and following a diet, the scientists concluded in their report in the Archives of Internal Medicine (January).

Newlyweds Live At Hamilton Base

Rogue River—Mr. and Mrs. John Carter, who were married November 21, are living at Hamilton Air Force base where the bridegroom is on duty with the United States Air Force. Mrs. Carter is the former Karen Williams, daughter of John Williams, San Rafael, Calif., and the wedding took place in that city.

Mr. Carter is the grandson of Mrs. Lora Carter and brother of David Carter, Rogue River.

Girls Prefer
New York—UPI—American teen-age girls prefer tooth paste to tooth powder, deodorants to anti-perspirants, bobby pins to hair pins and liquid shampoo to lotion and cream varieties, according to a report from a national magazine.

Martha's Memoirs

Does the Outside Of Your House Reflect YOU?

by Martha Morgan
Alice Jameson across the street called this morning to see if I'd have the winter with her and walk down to the little store.

As we passed the frame house on the corner, we both commented on how it has changed since the Sheffields moved in. It has taken on the tidiest look—even the way the snow is shoveled off.

You know, houses have a way of telling about the people who live inside. There's a yellow and white one up on the hill—bright and cheery and well-kept—that almost invites you to come knock on the door. I know I'd like the people who live there.

Often when we drive up to our house I pretend we're looking at it for the first time, and I try to imagine what a stranger would think. Is it neat with a comfortable look, does it seem to be well lived in? I always bustle a little extra after such a bit of pretense, for I do want it to look like a home that's loved!

When I got back from our walk, I decided to make the Sheffields some brownies. When I took them down, Mrs. Sheffield (her name is Sally) asked if I could recommend a doctor for her baby. I suggested the doctor who has taken care of Carma Lyle's boy. When I told her that he recommends Special Morning Milk for babies, she said she knew she'd like him, for it shows he's particular. She said she's never used anything but Special Morning Milk for her baby and he's thrived on it. She's sure it's because of the extra vitamins A and D that are added to Special Morning Milk.

Whenever I take food to any one, I always tuck the recipe in. I've found folks really like to know what they're eating!

DOUBLE CHOCOLATE BROWNIES
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 squares (2 oz.) melted unsweetened chocolate
1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 cup undiluted Morning Milk
1 cup chopped nuts

Blend sugar, butter, egg and vanilla until light and fluffy. Add melted chocolate. Mix well. Mix flour and baking powder together. Add to sugar mixture alternately with Morning Milk. Stir in nuts and mix well. Pour into a buttered 9-inch square pan. Bake at 350° F. for about 25 to 30 minutes. When cool, ice with Fluffy Chocolate Icing: Melt 1 cup (6-oz. package) semi-sweet chocolate pieces and 1/4 cup butter over hot water. Allow to cool thoroughly. Blend 1 1/2 cups sifted powdered sugar and 1/2 cup undiluted Morning Milk alternately into cooled chocolate mixture. Beat briskly until creamy. Spread on brownies. Makes about 2 dozen brownies.

the Healthy Baby milk!

the Healthy Baby milk!

Square Dance Class to Begin

Square dance instruction for beginners is being held at the Old Wagner Creek school. It is stated that the latest class will be held open until Thursday, January 22.

First session will be at 8 p.m. Thursday, January 15, and anyone interested in learning square dancing will be welcome.

The school is reached from downtown Talent by turning on to Wagner avenue and driving for two miles on the paved road. The building will be floodlighted for easy identification.

Additional information is available from Mr. and Mrs. E. Francis Cronin, telephone SPing 3-3171 days, or SPing 3-3475 evenings.

when the lady's Leopard Lithe...

Chances are she watches her weight the Hollywood way. Hollywood Bread has only 46 calories per thin slice. Yet Hollywood gives extra protein and vitamins you need for glowing health.

CLARE KELLY
Co-Starring in "PARTY GIRL" a Empire Production—with Lorraine in "Circuscope and Retrocolor"

FREE! Hollywood Diet and Calorie Guide booklet. Write to Eleanor Day, Dept. 10, 100 W. Monroe St., Chicago 3, Ill.

special formula
Hollywood BREAD
Baked exclusively by
FLUHRER'S BAKERY
Under License by National Bakers Service, Inc., Chicago

Calendar