

Bosses Honored at Dinner

Insurance Women of Jackson county held their annual Boss's Night banquet January 20 at the Rogue Valley Country Club. A cocktail hour preceded the banquet. Approximately 40 members, employers and guests attended. Following the banquet a program was held, with Miss Jacqueline Walker as mistress of ceremonies. Entertainment was provided by The Shadows, instrumental and vocal group of St. Mary's school students.

Mrs. Roberta Martin conducted an installation ceremony for the new officers. The new officers are president, Mrs. Lois Stephen; vice-president, Miss Walker; and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Pat Haven. Retiring officers are president, Mrs. Carolyn Bagley; vice-president, Mrs. Marie Louise Nordwick and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Eunice Carter. Mrs. Stephen presented the retiring president, Mrs. Bagley with a gift from the members. Corsages were presented to Mrs. Stephen and Mrs. Bagley.

Decorations in the Centennial theme were in tones of copper, ivory and brown. General chairman for the event was Miss Florence Robinson. She was assisted by Mrs. Stephen, Mrs. Haven and Miss Walker.

Woman Attends Council Session

Mrs. Lyman Smith and Mrs. C. C. Peterson attended an executive meeting of the Oregon Council of Epsilon Sigma Alpha international sorority, January 17 in Portland. The nominating committee asked Mrs. Smith to be a candidate for state second vice-president and the annual election will be held here in April.

A report of the Portland meeting will be given January 26 at a session at Mrs. Peterson's home. Members and guests are asked to come dressed as their "suppressed desire" as another in their study of "Parties 4 to 40."

An exhibit of dry arrangements will also be held. The last meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Jessie Stagg.

Viennese Charm Described By Visitor from Medford

By MARGARET SCHULER
Vienna — Viennese charm — the expression is no misnomer. An inherent courtesy is as natural to a Viennese as breathing, and the "kiss the hand," the "bitte" and "danke" — from the little children to elderly cavaliers — in lulling German, is spontaneous and ineffably charming. It is a heritage from the good old days — "gute alte zeit" when, heading a mighty empire, Vienna was in its heyday — Europe's most blue blooded capital, characterized by the prestige of culture, elegance and grandeur.

From that carefully stratified society, courtly manners seeped down to the ordinary rank and file, and still survive in casual charm.

The richness of Vienna's history you appreciate when you walk through the heart of the inner city and see the number of imperial palaces, the magnificently stylized gardens, splashing fountains, the poets, musicians and mighty heroes immortalized and perpetuated in marble and bronze; when you look to the top of highly ornamented buildings and see white angels, golden saints and green bronze gods, silhouetted against Vienna's ever-changing sky.

There is vicarious pleasure in wandering through the palaces and in reconstructing the splendor of balls and theatricals, when showering crystal chandeliers reflected the thousands of lighted candles and in visualizing the infant prodigy, Mozart, with his klavier in the bedazzling picture.

That Vienna is gone, but the symbols linger. Many people today still revel in the past glories — through rear view windows. The shadow of the Hapsburg family hovers over them. Older people even wistfully hope to restore the old order of the monarchy, and to have once again the Franz Josef regime — in a streamlined form. It is interesting to note that although with the collapse of the empire in 1918 titles of nobility were abolished, they continue to be used, and old names today have that same importance that was an intricate part of the feudal way of life.

Pleasantly nostalgic though it is for them to contemplate a return to the old glitter, it must be a delusion. Obviously, a new Vienna has superseded the old. Along with the new buildings, new transportation, new industries, is a new social class. And it is this class who have the automobiles, who buy the ball gowns and jewelry, who sit in the loges at the opera, who have the coveted season tickets for the creme de creme of Vienna music, the Philharmonic. It is they who whirl to that emblem of the enchanting city — the Strauss waltzes.

And they do it all with graceful, easy courtliness which makes for a lovable people.

Gold Hill PTA Hears Talk by Speech Expert

Gold Hill — Gold Hill parents and teachers heard Dr. Leon Mulling of Southern Oregon college, Ashland, talk in conjunction with slides he showed concerning youngsters with speech defects, at a recent meeting of the Gold Hill Parent-teacher association. He was introduced to the group by Mrs. Ida Von Buskirk, program chairman of the unit. Anyone wishing to consult Mr. Mulling about a child's speech problems may contact him at the college.

H. D. Force, president of the association, presided over the business session. Under a new ruling, persons working on PTA committees that find it necessary to charge items must present these bills before the close of the school year to the treasurer, Mrs. Jerry Herrington, or the person making the charge will be held responsible for the bill.

Also approved was the purchase of a large folding table, $50 for which was in the budget for this year's PTA. The table will be used for school activities and by the unit.

Named to serve on the nominating committee were H. D. Force, Mrs. Wilda Franks, and Mrs. Delos Walker. A report will be presented at the next meeting.

Refreshments furnished by parents of children in the fifth grade were served in the Hanby school cafeteria by hostesses for the evening, Mrs. Leonard McMahon, Mrs. Floyd Taylor and Mrs. James Cornutt.

Grandmothers Plan Meeting Monday
Rogue Grandmother club will meet for a dessert luncheon Monday, January 26, at 12:30 p.m. at the Girls Community club. Business meeting will be held following the luncheon.
