

Army Life Not To Briton's Liking

Southampton, England—(UPI)—British rock and roll singer, Terry Dene will stay in the army for a while despite the "emotional strain," army officials said today.

Dene, 19, who says he patterns his singing style and gyrations after those of Elvis Presley, has found the British army tougher sledding than GI Elvis has the American.

He was inducted last week with Presley-style press and television coverage, but two days later was in bed in a psychiatric ward because of the emotional strain.

However, the army said, press reports that he was getting a medical discharge today were "quite true."

Parliament was going into the whole Dene issue today after wide-spread criticism of the way his six-day army career turned out.

Elvis, in the meantime, was contentedly serving with an armored division in Germany, relaxing from his jeep-driving duties in a hotel suite he has rented and commuting to his barracks in a hand-built sports car.

Most dangerous day of the week to drive is Saturday.
