

Feuding Liberate Family Patches Up Difficulties

Hollywood - (UP) - The feuding Liberate family, George and Lee, have kissed and made up. Pianist Lee and mom, smiling at each other, revealed the reunion to a reporter in their Sherman Oaks home - the one with the piano-shaped swimming pool.

"Mom doesn't criticize my real estate ventures any more," said Lee. "She thought I was plunging in too deep before. But that was only because some envious people misled her because I was the most successful person in the family."

Friends Criticized

Only three months ago, the Liberate - once one of show business' closest families - turned cold toward each other amid the following events:

"Mom criticized some of the friends Lee had at his Palm Springs home and said they were taking him for a ride."

"Mom was quoted as saying she didn't watch either of her sons' acts since they broke up. George plays the violin."

"George took to the road with his own show with the parting comment that he could do very well on his own."

"Lee pointed out that George's brief venture into the frozen pizza business was not exactly a success."

"George and I speak to each other all the time now," said Lee. "He called me from from Dallas just the other day and read me the clippings about his show. We even had dinner recently."

Mom said she really didn't have anything against Lee's celebrity friends.

Can Never Relax

"It's just that with celebrities around all the time, you can never relax," she said. "That's another reason I'm moving away from this place. I'm just an ordinary woman from Milwaukee and anyone who would think I'd be moving for the second time in 10 years?"

"We finally decided that it would be best for everyone if we each live alone with our own friends and families," said Lee. "After all, we all have different tastes and we get along better when one person doesn't interfere with the other's pleasures."

Mom said she watches the boys' shows all the time now.
