School Teachers Die in Collision

Fortuna, Calif. – (UPI) – Five children were left motherless Thursday as the result of a collision between a Volkswagen and an empty lumber truck that killed two school teachers.

Dead in the accident on U.S. 101 Wednesday were Mrs. Henry Cooper, 26, mother of one, and Mrs. Bettie Stephens, 32, mother of four.

The women were en route to their homes in Ferndale, in Humboldt county, from school in Mrs. Cooper's auto. A witness to the accident, Harold Dunning, 39, Fortuna, said they were following another car and tried to turn left across the highway into a fruit stand. The driver apparently did not see the oncoming truck as she crossed the road and the two vehicles collided.

Buenos Aires – (UPI) – Labor Minister Alfredo Allende will resign his cabinet post today, the government announced.

The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Clinic

The Boy Whose Sex Is Mixed Up

Many mothers write me pathetic letters expressing their puzzlement and sorrow over a son who is not very masculine. He may be good-looking, and perhaps "almost too good looking for a boy." Perhaps his interests have always been decidedly artistic, and the chances are he has never had any interest in athletics. He may never have cared to go out with a girl. Perhaps, when he was a Boy Scout he got a crush on his leader.

Dr Alvarez

Perhaps, when he came to be 20 or so, he became terribly upset and almost out of his mind when at last he saw clearly that he was not as other men are; that his love interests were directed toward other men, and hence he might never have the happiness of having a wife and a home and children. Perhaps then he was almost floored by the great cruelty of people who teased him and made fun of him. Anyone who would like to see what is done to some artistic and music-loving young men who are somewhat feminine in their interests and make-up should see the play "Tea and Sympathy."

Not Responsible

I don't know how anyone could see this tragic play without feeling sympathy for every unhappy lad who has inherited from some ancestors a tendency to feminine interests and feminine ways of life. Certainly, he is not culpable in any way; he is not responsible for what happened to him before he was born. Let us all remember that, but for the grace of God, this disaster could have happened to any one of us. It was just an accident of genetics or of glandular development.

Curiously, millions of people only get angry with a poor lad like the one in the play who was horribly gypped by nature. Some even want to put him in jail. A few persons when they read something by me on this subject, immediately write their paper to demand that my "filthy column" be removed from their sight.

As I was writing this, I stopped to talk for nearly two hours with a fine young college man who is terribly distressed because he has found that he is to some extent mixed-up in his sex. He can go with girls; he can enjoy their company; and he hopes some day to marry; but he knows this is dangerous for him because he feels such great attraction for an occasional man whom he meets. Such a man is very companionable to him because he can understand my patient's problems and unhappinesses, and his feelings of great loneliness in the world. But, realizing that such close friendships with men are extremly dangerous for him, my patient is fighting to keep away from them.

Needs Help in Battle

As he says, he needs help in this constant psychologic battle, and he asks me where he can find it. He already has tried several psychiatrists but has not gotten help from them. Some of the wisest of these men told him frankly and honestly that they doubted if they or anyone else could change his psychic make-up, any more than they could change the psychic make-up of a normally heterosexual man who adores his wife. This is my strong impression about the subject, and I have studied it for years among both books and patients.

My young patient has gone also to experts on glandular medicine, but they have told him honestly that thorough testing has shown that men like him are usually not at all helped by taking even enormous doses of male hormones. If I had such a son, I would not know where to send him for help. I could give him most help probably by putting in his hands books that would help him to understand his problem. I fear he would have to keep making the fight largely by himself. I would urge him to avoid doing anything that would cause him to be blackmailed or thrown into jail. I would urge him never to marry, simply to get a home or a better "front." It is a miserable trick to play on some poor girl to marry her without the ability to love her properly. I have talked to many women who got caught in such an unhappy marriage, and hence I know whereof I speak. As the last such wife I saw said to me, "I am so affectionate that I can hardly stand living this celibate and lonely life that I got into so unwittingly."

Periarteritis Nodosa

A man says that, one one side of his forehead, he has a number of nodules which hurt him a good deal, and his doctor says they are manifestations of a periarteritis nodosa. He wonders what that is, and what can be done. Peri means around, artery means blood vessel, itis suggests an inflammation, and nodosa means something nodular. So, as we doctors do so often, we have taken a disease which we don't understand and have simply described it in an ancient and foreign language. For some reason, this old trick seems to satisfy us doctors. But it won't quite satisfy the patient because I am afraid his doctor will have a hard time doing anything very curative for him.

Dr .lAvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would be impossible for him to answer requests for information or to attempt to diagnose by mail.
