Tot Tenders
The Tot Tenders 4-H club met at the home of Mary Kay Hockstatter, 924 Jasper st., Medford. The girls' assignments were to make some paper object that a child from one to six years old could play with.

We talked over what to do if a girl is absent more than three times without an excuse. Mrs. Hockstatter said that she thinks we should all attend or drop out because taking care of a child properly is important.

Refreshments were served by Faye Lewis and the meeting was adjourned.

Shady Cove 4-H Club
The Shady Cove 4-H club elected officers at a recent meeting. New officers are Marilyn Leaming, president; Toni Grow, vice president; Patricia Akins, secretary; Shirley Minor, reporter; Don Whitman, game leader; and Dawn Oliver, song leader.

The name of the club has not yet been decided. We have had a few suggestions, but our leaders, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Weitman, told us that we could have some time to think of some names.

We discussed what we would make the next meeting and we decided to make head scarfs.

Central Point Cudchewers
The Central Point Cudchewers 4-H club met at the home of Sue and Sandy Higinbotham on Taylor rd., Feb. 2. The members answered the roll call by pointing out a part of the cow.

Sandy Higinbotham gave a demonstration on safety around the farm. Jimmy Anhorn read a poem called, "Teaching the Calf to Drink."

Two new members joined. They are Wayne Debrick and John Knox. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Higinbotham.
Sue Higinbotham, Reporter

Howard Bake 'n Stitches
On Jan. 31 our sewing group went on a shopping tour. Five members were present. After the shopping tour we rehearsed our skit.

Valuation of City Permits Increases During January

The total valuation of Medford building permits in January was $390,825, a substantial jump from December's total of $283,661 and from the $314,575 total in January, 1958.

The building department's monthly report shows the largest single permit to be in the amount of $104,000 for a new motel.

A total of 96 permits were issued, compared to 98 in December and 50 a year ago.

Single-Family Homes
Nine permits with a total value of $95,000 were issued last month for new single-family residences. Fourteen totaling $19,230 were issued for enlarging, repairing or remodeling such residences.

A $59,000 permit was issued for a new business building.

Seven permits totaling $90,650 were issued for remodeling or repair of other business structures.

Another permit was issued for an $8,000 motel addition. An $8,000 permit for a "lodging home" was also issued, according to the department's report.

Total fees collected for the permits was listed as $1,646.55, compared to $1,114.35 last month. A total of 893 building inspections were reported for last month, against 891 in December.

Unlicensed Tank Operators Reported

Salem—The state board of health announced last week that numerous reports have been received of unlicensed tank-truck operators charging Oregon homeowners "unreasonable" prices for pumping septic tanks. Elderly people are favorite victims, the board said.

The illegal operators sometimes misrepresent themselves as semi-official "inspectors" to gain the homeowner's confidence, the health board said. After a "free inspection," the operators allegedly point to the high sum level in the tank and urge pumping to prevent trouble.

Don B. Patton, chief of the health board plumbing program, said a properly-functioning septic tank is always full, but an inexperienced person may feel this indicates a need for pumping.

Oregon law requires that all cesspool workers carry a current year's registration card showing evidence of licensing by the state board of health, Patton said. Such cards must be shown on request to prospective customers, and Oregon law also requires that all licensees maintain a $1,000 bond for customer protection.

The fiddlehead, edible frond of the young ostrich fern, is a local delicacy in New Brunswick.
