Mr. and Mrs. William Patton, reigning as Rex II and queen of the annual Mardi Gras ball of Tudor guild, held Friday night at Rogue Valley Country club.

PTA To Observe Founders' Day And Centennial

Gold Hill—Gold Hill Parent-Teacher association will hold a joint celebration in observance of Founder's day and Oregon's birthday in conjunction with a business session of the unit Thursday, February 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the Hanby school gymnasium.

H. D. Force, president of the group said that past presidents of the local unit will be honored at this time. The tribute which will be made to them in the centennial theme is being arranged by Mrs. Ogden Kellogg, vice-president, and Mrs. Paul Molloy, hospitality chairman of the association.

C. A. Meyer, Central Point, will be guest speaker for the evening. Mrs. Ida von Buskirk, program chairman announced. Special entertainment will be provided by about 40 fifth and sixth grade girls of the two drill teams, who will participate in separate drills and songs under the direction of their different leaders, Mrs. von Buskirk, fifth grade and Mrs. Mildred Black, sixth grade.

Museum Adds Showings Of Van Gogh Film

Portland—Because of demand, additional showings of the "Introduction to van Gogh," program have been scheduled at the Portland museum. The program will be shown in the museum auditorium every hour on the hour on weekdays, beginning at 1 p.m. The introduction, which is a color slide with sound track presentation, runs for 27 minutes and presents the life and work of the artist during the decade 1880-1890.

Brief gallery talks will follow the introduction. These will not be gallery tours, which are not practicable when attendance is high, but short talks in one of the galleries, on a single aspect of the painter's work. They will be given by staff and trained volunteers as indicated above on every weekday, but not on Saturdays and Sundays when the galleries are crowded.

The special introduction for young people takes the place of the program for adults each day at 4 p.m. for after school visitors, and at 2 and 4 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. The introductions will not be shown on Wednesdays at 8 and 9 p.m. because of the Wednesday evening lectures.

The museum states that crowds are increasing and if the exhibition here follows the pattern of showings in San Francisco and Los Angeles, the peak attendance is at the end of the exhibition period. The museum is open at 12 noon daily including Mondays, until 5 p.m. and until 10 p.m. on Wednesday and Friday. The exhibition is on view through March 1.

Writers' Group To Hold Meeting

Writers' Session will be held at the home of Mrs. Alfred Gallacci, 2306 Table Rock road, Thursday, February 12, at 8 p.m.

At the last meeting of the group Mrs. Gallacci was selected chairman, and she will present a topic of open discussion.

The club extends an invitation to anyone interested to attend. Further information may be obtained by telephoning KEystone 5-1046.

chosen because of the long-standing support which he and Mrs. Carpenter have given the festival, but since the Carpenters were in Hawaii on vacation, Mr. Patton served in his stead.

Selection of Mrs. Patton was by chance, the committee having planned that the queen be chosen by way of the corsage boxes. The princess whose box held orchids with gold ribbons was automatically the queen. The other contestants were Mrs. Richard Hawkins and Miss Carol Lininger, the former having been nominated by Crater Lions club, Medford, and Miss Lininger by Ashland Rotary club. Mrs. Patton was sponsored by Ashland Kiwanis club. The Pattons are newly married, their wedding having been an event of the holiday season in Portland.

Mrs. Patton wore a green formal gown with white "snowflakes" added to the skirt and on her hair, since the ball is a costume event. A committee awarded Mr. and Mrs. Martel Peters, Ashland, first prize for the originality of their costumes. They wore hearts and apples on their clothing for the theme "You are the apple of my eye." Mrs. Edward Collins, wearing a black sheath evening gown, was judged the most attractive woman at the ball, and Richard Hawkins the handsomest man. All were awarded prizes.

Mrs. John Dellenback was general chairman of the event. The Dellenbacks were costumed as a pirate and his lady.

The Thunderbirds played for dancing, and a hunt breakfast was served at midnight.

Good Side Of Faces Explained

By RIC DU BROW
United Press International
Hollywood—(UPI)—The "better" side of your face is probably the side you don't sleep on, say make-up expert Bud Westmore and photographer James Wong Howe.

"Photogenically speaking, a person definitely has a good side and a bad side," said Westmore. "Generally, the bad side is the side you sleep on. Most people sleep about one-third of their lives, so it's bound to leave an impression."

Most people sleep on their right side, he added. "About 85 per cent of the actors and actresses I have worked with have a 'better' side, and most of the actresses are very sensitive about it," Westmore said. He described the good side as "full" and the bad side as "shallow."

You usually don't notice the difference until you take a picture or make a test. Sometimes sleeping has pushed the cheekbone a little higher. And birth may have left imprints.

Of the actresses he has made up, Westmore said: "Linda Darnell and Ava Gardner have almost perfect faces. "Marlene Dietrich knows exactly which side of her face to have in the right place at the right time. She is one of the most clever persons at being photographed."

"Some actresses just fall apart if you photograph their wrong side. There's one star who has to have a set built to fit her face so she can make her exits with her good side facing the camera," said Howe.

To determine the better side of your face for photographs, Howe suggested: "Look for the side that has the best bone structure and the least excesses. The full side always takes the light better. Actually, a woman's first choice after looking in the mirror generally will be the same as the photographer's."

President Is Speaker For Club

Dr. Elmo N. Stevenson, president of Southern Oregon college, was guest speaker for a meeting of Medford Garden club held Thursday in the courthouse auditorium.

Dr. Stevenson prefaced a talk on "Birds of Oregon" with information concerning the college. He spoke of the growth of the college, using charts, and said that it is now the fourth largest educational institution in the state. He predicted that SOC would be one of the state leading universities, and not just a college, by 1970.

Dr. Stevenson opened his talk on birds by stating there have been 343 different species of birds seen in Oregon, which is second largest for any state. California has the largest variety. Mrs. Thomas Cordona, club bird chairman, introduced Dr. Stevenson.

Mrs. Ira Fitzgerald opened the business meeting by reading a gardener's prayer. Mrs. Ralph Jones, Mrs. Florence Carleton and Mrs. Jessie Stagg were welcomed as guests.

Mrs. A. O. Floyd, president of the Oregon Federation Garden clubs and a member of the Medford club, was welcomed and she announced plans were being made for the regional and state conventions which are to convene in Portland from June 15-18.

Mrs. R. T. Nichols, Siskiyou district director, also a member of the local club, announced that Ashland would be the hostess club for the district convention with the date to be announced later. Mrs. Ira Fitzgerald announced that the Medford flower show would be titled "Reflections of the Century" and would be held May 23. Mrs. E. M. Wallin, civic chairman, reported that the two trees the club is donating to local schools would be dedicated February 12 at 10 a.m. at the Hoover school and later at the Wilson school.

Mrs. Arthur Carrol, tea chairman, introduced her committee, Mrs. W. D. Durkee, Mrs. Charles Hobbs and Mrs. John Mansfield. The table was centered with an arrangement of red carnations, dusty miller and white candles. Mrs. Floyd and Mrs. F. J. Cook poured. Door prizes were awarded to Mrs. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Hobbs.

The next meeting of the Medford Garden club will be March 3 at the Girls Community club. Mrs. H. C. Smith of Cave Junction will be guest speaker on "Beautifying our gardens with perennials."

Gold Hill Unit Contributes to Flights, Dimes

Gold Hill—Gold Hill Health unit members approved cash donations to aid both Mercy Flights and the March of Dimes at recent meetings of the group. Mrs. Arthur Boyle was hostess for a dessert luncheon and business session of the unit held at her home, Tuesday, February 3. Co-hostesses were Miss Elizabeth McCallard, school health nurse, Medford and Mrs. Ted Schoenemann, president of the group, who also conducted the meeting.

Mrs. Delos Walker and Mrs. Wilmer Bailey, co-chairman for the recent Mother's March sponsored in Gold Hill by the Health unit, and the letters which were mailed out to persons in the community for donations to the polio fund reported that $68 was raised in the Mother's March which was carried on just within the local city limits. They said the report on contributions from the schools here and returns through the mail were still incomplete and will be announced as soon as possible.

The two women wish to express on behalf of the unit their appreciation to everyone in any way who helped in any way to aid the March of Dimes.

Arrangements are being made by the Health unit to sponsor an educational film on cancer, entitled "Time and Two Women." A doctor will be present to answer questions. The film, which is provided by the Oregon cancer unit will be shown at the Gold Hill Community church, Tuesday March 17 at 1 p.m. Mrs. Paul Molloy is cancer chairman for the unit. Mrs. Dale Smith is co-chairman. Mrs. C. Norman Gall has been named to work on the cancer committee and will have available for circulation various educational material on cancer.

Mrs. Sylvia Hill, Medford, former Gold Hill resident unit member was a guest at this meeting.

Mrs. Delos Walker will be hostess for the March 3 meeting of the group.

Two New Centennial Roses Introduced by Nurserymen

Portland—Two roses newly developed by Oregon nurserymen have been named in honor of the state's centennial, which is now being celebrated.

A bright red climber has been named "Centennial Sweetheart," and a crimson-red hybrid tea rose has been named the "Oregon Centennial."

Both are the result of years of development, and both are expected to bear the fame of Oregon's 100th anniversary of statehood to rose-lovers in all parts of the nation this year and commemorate it for many years to come.

The "Centennial Sweetheart" was developed by Herman L. Greene, nurseryman of near Portland, on a 40-acre nursery on which he has 400,000 rose bushes at Sunnyside, southeast of Portland.

The "Oregon Centennial" was developed by Gordon Von Abrams, hybridizer for Peterson and Dering, rose growers of Seaside, on the Columbia river northwest of Portland.

The "Centennial Sweetheart" is the result of a discovery in a cultivated row of "Alain" roses.

Greene describes the discovery thus: "I noticed that one of the plants was different from the others. The flowers were much lighter in color and much larger, and the plant itself exhibited a climbing habit."

That was in 1953, and for five years Greene experimented, taking scions from the rose and grafting them onto understock. By the fall of 1958, he felt sure that all the characteristics are permanent and that they can be passed on through succeeding propagations by budding. He applied for a patent in the fall of 1958.

The "Centennial Sweetheart," a floribunda, is one of the minority of climbers that bloom their first year. It is one of the earliest and latest roses to bloom, for the first flowers open in April, and it continues to bloom until November.

The rose blooms in clusters with several clusters of as many as 20 semi-double blooms on a long stalk. The blooms are up to 3 1/2 inches in diameter and have long, sturdy stems and a strong fragrance. The leaves are light green, big, shiny and satiny.

It resists both disease and cold, and in a test of floribundas near Milwaukee, Wis., it was the only type to survive a cold winter with no damage. In some cases it has reached a height of eight or 10 feet in the first year. It is well suited for growing on fences and the sides of houses.

The "Oregon Centennial" bloom is big, velvety and composed of 35 petals, lightly cupped at maturity. It was developed from Charles Malerlin and Peterson and Dering No. 5026-2 strain, and it seems to glow as though its heart were luminescent.

The "Oregon Centennial," too, blooms abundantly and continuously in the summer months and has a strong, sweet fragrance. It, too, is patented.

The two roses will be given a place of honor in the International Garden of Tomorrow at the Centennial Exposition, according to Edward L. Boatright, manager of the global floral project.
