Truck Damaged In Neil Creek Accident

Floyd Victor Collins, 38, Farmersville, Calif., drove his truck over a bank at Neil creek on Highway 99 Sunday to avoid hitting the rear of a farm tractor, state police report.

Collins was not injured, police said but the tractor and trailer he was driving was heavily damaged.

The accident occurred about 11:30 a.m., Sunday, when the tractor and trailer driven by Collins came up behind the tractor towing a two-wheel trailer loaded with wood. It was operated by Steven Robert Stewart, 15, of 1149 Neil Creek rd., who was accompanied by his father, Victor Vance Stewart, 39.

Both vehicles were northbound on Highway 99 and the truck was unable to stop because of snow on the road, state police said.

Jean Laussier plunged successfully over Niagara Falls in 1928. Where his competitors had used steel drums and similar devices, Mr. Laussier placed himself in a large rubber ball and bounced over the falls with little damage.

The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Clinic

Dr Alvarez

We Musn't Be Too Sensitive

Many persons who suffer from manifestations of severe nervousness tell me that one difficulty with them is that they are too sensitive, or too thin-skinned; some carry a chip on their shoulder; and some are terribly annoyed by things that the rests of us wouldn't bother to notice. Many of these unhappy people belong to some racial group that is discriminated aganist; others suffer greatly from hypersensitiveness produced by the fact that they have at home a mentally disturbed or a mentally retarded child, or an epileptic child. They suffer so much that some flare in anger at anyone who, in all innocence, even mentions epilepsy or idiocy or insanity.

I am always marveling as I read the comments that are sent to journals such as Time, or Newsweek, or Life, in regard to articles recently published. One person will be so enraged over what he says was a vile, unfair, prejudiced and vicious attack on his particular racial or religious group, that he will demand that the journal promptly cancel his subscription. But right alongside of this man's letter may be three or four others from people who say that never did they see a more fair, generous, unbiased, and understanding discussion of a difficult subject!

Sometimes when I see a touchy patient whose blood pressure shoots way up over 200 every time he "blows his top" over a little annoyance I have to beg him to grow a thicker skin. Often I tell him that some wise person once said that the mental and spiritual stature of a man can be judged by the size of the annoyance that can get him fighting angry.

Should Certain People Have Children

Today, thousands of intelligent and well-educated young people, who know that they carry genes that may produce a terrible illness in any children they may have, are hesitating about getting married or having children. Some now are seeking out the few expert genetic councelors that can be found in the great universities of the land, and are getting the information they need. In some cases, the counselor will have to admit that he cannot give a definite opinion.

For instance, I was just reading in an article by Professor Laurence H. Snyder how a couple recently came to him, saying that of their five children, two were afflicted with a horrible and hopeless disease called progressive muscular dystrophy. With this disease, the muscles get weaker and weaker until the child can hardly get up off the floor. Now, the parents want to know if their apparently normal children can pass on the terrible disease to any children that they may have in the future.

Questioning soon showed Dr. Snyder that a brother of the apparently healthy mother had died of the disease when he was 14. The trouble appears to be due to what is called a recessive sex-linked gene. This means that only children of one sex–in this case, boys—can get the disease. Accordingly, the normal sons of these parents are not likely to possess the gene, and hence Dr. Snyder told them they could marry and have children. But the daughters could be carrying the defective gene. Neither of them would ever get the disease, but if one of them carried the gene, she could pass it on to half of any sons that might be born to her.

As I have said before in this column, rapidly now, experts are working out methods for testing the children of families affected with some hereditary disease to see which ones are carriers of the trouble, For instance, there are several tests which may show which children of a diabetic may get the disease in his later years.

A while ago I saw a woman who came from a family in which there has been much insanity. She was unfortunate enough to marry a man from an alcoholic family. As a result, all of their four children have been nervously defective and hence a terrible sorrow to them.

Osteoporosis of the Spine

One of the tragedies of old people—often women past 70 or 80 years—is a loss of calcium (lime) in the vertebras which make up the upper part of the spine. As a result, the person rapidly becomes very round-shouldered. The head may even get bent over so that the person keeps looking down at the floor. I have seen a person like this rapidly lose six inches or more in height because of the caving-in of the spine. Also, I have seen these people suffering from abdominal pain which was due to pressure of the caved-in vertebras on the nerves that come out of the spine and then run obliquely down toward the abdomen.

If the process were to start in me, I would want immediately to have an orthopedist make me a plaster corset such as might keep my spine from caving in quite as badly as it otherwise would. It usually doesn't do any good just to take lime pills. Most doctors give these patients sex hormones, but in my experience, this treatment commonly has no effect. I fear we doctors as yet do not understand enough about the problem.

Dr. Alvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would be impossible for him to answer requests for information or to attempt to diagnose by mail.

Italy Swears in Pro-West Premier

Rome – (UPI) – Pro-Western Premier Antonio Segni was sworn in at the head of a Christian Democrat minority cabinet today to end Italy's 20-day-old government crisis.

He promptly scheduled his first cabinet meeting to discuss the program for economic reform he will place before Parliament next week.

President Giovanni Gronchi signed the decree making Segni premier Sunday. The act formally ended the reign of fellow Christian Democrat Amintore Fanfani, who resigned when he lost the support of the right wing of his own party.

The new premier included only Christian Democrats in his government despite a lack of a majority in Parliament. He was assured, however, of enough non-government support from center and right-of-center parties to hold his own against the strong Communist and Socialist opposition.

Mamie Taking Health Treatments

Phoenix, Ariz. – (UPI) – Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower begins a series of treatments today at a health and beauty resort. Secret Service agents guarding her on the trip came under fire by a Texas reporter as being "pushy."

The nation's first lady, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. C. Gordon Moore, arrived aboard the President's special railroad car Sunday for her second visti to Elizabeth Arden's Maine Chance beauty and health resort. The resort specializes in weight reducing, rest and beauty treatments.

She and Mrs. Moore were flown here a year ago by the President.
