

Dulles Backed by Competent Echelon, President Declares

Eisenhower said Dulles is backed up by a competent second echelon at the State Department. He said that as long as Dulles' heart and mind remained at the service of the American people, negotiation details were not dependent on the secretary's condition.

On the Berlin crisis itself, the President said that if there is any shooting on this issue it will be the Russians who start it.

He said the U. S. and its allies are firmly determined to carry out their responsibilities under 1949 agreements for the independence and welfare of the people of West Berlin. If any force is used, the President said, it would have to be the Communists exercising it in an effort to block the allies from carrying out their duty to the West Berliners.

that the Russian leader must be talking about shooting to stop the U. S. because the western allies have not said anything about shooting their way into Berlin.

In discussing Dulles' health, the President denied reports that the secretary tried to resign last week after he learned that he had cancer again.

Eisenhower said that as long as Dulles wants to carry on and believes he is in shape to carry on, he is the man the President wants. He said he has not had any specific discussions with anybody about a successor.

Eisenhower emphasized that he would rather have a sick Dulles as secretary of state than anyone else he knew in good health.

Sam Levenson's Talk on Teen-Age Activity Favors More Control by Parents

By WILLIAM EWALD
New York - (UPI) - Strange things, hoo-hee, were happening in the CBS mail room last week: Arthur Godfrey's morning TV show was papered under by its greatest volume of mail in five years. The response was triggered by a talk from comic Sam Levenson about today's teen-agers. "Teen age is the age of revolt. And some of them can be pretty revolting..." is the way Levenson uncorked his attack and from there he went on to talk about such things as sexual activity, autos, curfews, rock 'n' roll and last of parental discipline.

Telescoped Talk
Tuesday night, Levenson appeared on the Godfrey nighttime show and telescoped his five days of morning talk. I must confess I almost jumped ship at the start of the show when Godfrey leaned his face into my TV tube and leered something like:

"How would you like to talk about sex... teen-age sex... in automobiles..."

However, Levenson survived that graceless introduction and went on to make some unlearned talk about early dating, early marriage and the teen-agers' worship of mediocrity and material things. Over his six sessions, Levenson has managed to fling out a fair quota of bonbons and I have collected a few:

On revolt: "Teen-agers have a natural urge to be different—so they all dress alike."

On autos: "This is a generation that's forgotten how to walk completely—unless it's downhill."

On sex and autos: "More girls have gotten into trouble in cars in America in the last 10 years than have gotten into trouble in bedrooms a hundred years before... I think more girls have been converted in convertibles than any other place."

On responsibility: "TV has a moral responsibility which it doesn't always adhere to. The rock-and-roll musicians have a moral responsibility which they have junked completely. The disk jockeys have a moral responsibility which I question sometimes..."

Takes Courage
On parents: "The parents have to have guts too—to be parents. It takes a little courage—to face up to a kid who you know is wrong."

Karl Hayes Speaks At Lions Meeting

Eagle Point - The need for training children who are retarded below the public school level was stressed before the Eagle Point Lions by Karl Hayes, director of special education for mentally retarded children.

Hayes is affiliated with the Jackson county school superintendent's office, and appeared as a guest speaker for the Lions Monday.

He pointed out the need for training such children in the simple processes of living with each other and outlined the nature of the instruction employed and of the program in general.

"Many children," he said, "can be taught these things without the need to be institutionalized in the Fairview home."

He also pointed out how far the county has yet to go in meeting the whole need adequately. Hayes gives a part of his time to instructional work in one of the two such groups being now trained at Talent.

President Says Federal Budget Can Be Balanced

President Eisenhower insisted that with current prosperity, the federal budget could and should be balanced this year.

—He said he was looking forward to his visit with the President of Mexico in Acapulco. The President leaves this afternoon on this trip.

Labor Legislation
—He reiterated his firm belief that legislation to ban so-called "blackmail picketing" and secondary boycotts should be included in labor legislation passed by Congress this year.

Eisenhower's discussion of the unemployment situation was touched off by a reporter who pointed out that even with the economy on the rise, there still remained serious unemployment in some areas of the country.

No Useful Purpose

The reporters referred to a suggestion by Reuther that the unemployed of the nation march on Washington. The President also was asked whether he thought Congress should lengthen the period of unemployment compensation coverage as it did during the worst of the recession last year.

The President answered first by expressing doubt that people on sunny beaches were about to march on foggy Washington. He added that he did not think a demonstration of this type would serve any useful purpose.

Time Not Right

And as for a new extension of the coverage period of unemployment compensation benefits, Eisenhower said he thought this was not time for the federal government to go barging into that—now that the nation is in a period of rising prosperity.

United States To Bill Russia For Downed Plane

Washington - (UPI) - The United States will send Russia a bill of about $3 million for the Air Force transport plane destroyed in Soviet Armenia last Sept. 2, officials said today.

But these officials conceded chances of collecting were virtually nil.

Since World War II, damage claims totalling nearly $8 million have been filed with Russia for five American planes shot down by Soviet fighters. Russia has paid only $724,947 - half of one claim.

Refused Jurisdiction

The United States took two of the claims to the World Court but Russia refused to submit to the court's jurisdiction.

A claim for the transport plane, which this country charges was shot down by Soviet fighters, hasn't been figured yet. The plane, less its extensive communications equipment, originally cost about $2,450,000.

State Department officials declined to speculate on damages that would be asked for the 17 airmen aboard the plane. Russia has returned six bodies but maintains it has no information on the other 11.

Close Cooperation Sought by Timber Group of SOCTFA

The timber committee of the Southern Oregon Conservation and Tree Farm association has been meeting regularly in an effort to reach closer cooperation with governmental agencies, Dick Swan, Medford, chairman of the group, reported at a meeting of the association last night.

Aim of the committee is to get out more of the dead and dying timber which can be utilized by the mills. This would relieve the pressure on the log demand, Swan said.

Members of the committee, besides Swan, are Bud LeRoy, Medford; Ed Pease, Al Smith, Bob Kline, Steve Wilson and Duke McQueen, all of Medford; Bob Kelso, Grants Pass, and Paul Workman, Ashland.

Members of the county court have a standing invitation to attend the meetings since 70 per cent of the county income comes from timber sales receipts, a committee spokesman estimated.

Gives Service Tips
Myron Savage, representative of Motorola Communications and Electronics, Inc., Portland, gave service tips to association members who belong to the group's mobile radio network.

One of the main points, he said, is to have the mobile radio installed in a truck or car by a competent technician. Excess cable should be eliminated since dangling cables contribute to the noise in transmitting and receiving.

Radio interference should be eliminated further by having the car or truck engine well grounded to the frame.

A good solid, clean clamp on the battery helps maintain maximum voltage, Savage advised. One volt lost at the connection with the battery means a loss of 50 volts at the other end, he said.

The battery should be kept clean, and full of water and the clamps clean, he said. The radio antenna should be mounted at the highest point on the vehicle to produce the maximum signal. The coaxial cable should be kept out of the way where it won't be stepped on and sharp bends in it should be prevented.

The unit should be checked regularly since the real expense is not so much as in repairs but not having the set in operation when needed, Savage concluded.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Grand Ledge, Mich. - (UPI) - Balanced breakfasts might keep a couple out of the divorce court, according to a nutritionist who lectured to Seventh Day Adventists here.

"Much dissension, strife, discord and impatience in the home can be traced to wrong eating habits," said Dr. U. D. Register, of the staff of the College of Medical Evangelists, Loma Linda, Calif.

Non-Surgical Method Cures Hemorrhoids Painlessly

A relatively painless, non-surgical method of treating hemorrhoids (piles) is working therapeutic miracles for thousands who suffer from rectal and colon disorders.

A recently developed electronic treatment is proving more effective than surgery, with none of the after effects of surgery.

The relatively new technique requires no hospitalization or confinement. Patients show marked improvement almost immediately, and uncomplicated cases can be frequently corrected in as little as 10 days.
