Oregon State Selected For Geology Program

Corvallis — The National Science Foundation has selected Oregon State college to offer a special two-week summer conference for U. S. college geology teachers, June 15 to 27.

OSC was one of 19 schools in the country picked to take part in the experimental program of summer training conferences for college professors. It was the only Northwest college named under the program and the only one giving work in geology.

A grant of $12,100 has been received by the college from NSF to conduct the program. Dr. W. D. Wilkinson, professor of geology, will be conference director.

The summer conferences were organized by the National Science Foundation this year in the "interests of strengthening the teachers' mastery of the newer developments in science and towards increasing their capacity as teachers."

19 Conferences

The 19 conferences will be held for periods ranging from one to three weeks so that teachers who have summer teaching assignments on their own campuses may still participate.

Thirty geology teachers from colleges across the country will be chosen to participate in the OSC conference. Each teacher chosen will receive a stipend of $180 plus some travel allowance. To qualify, teachers must have had at least three years teaching experience.

The two-week conference will be a concentrated course on "stratigraphy and structural development of the Mesozoic period of Pacific Coast geology." Five of the nation's outstanding geologists will come to the campus to help with training. They include Simon Muller, Stanford University; Ralph Imlay and David Jones, U. S. Geological Survey; E. J. Eardley,

University of Utah, and H. E. Wheeler, University of Washington.

Much of the work will be done in the field. A one-day field trip is planned along the Oregon coast and a five-day trip in Central Oregon and the Columbia River Gorge to study various geological conditions and problems.

County Students Join Concert Band

Corvallis — Janet A. Carter, Medford, Johanna M. Dobrot, Central Point, and Kay L. McCorkle, Eagle Point, have been selected as three of the 60 members of the concert band at Oregon State college this year.

Miss Carter is a junior in the school of business and technology. Her home address is 1111 Reddy ave., Medford. Miss Dobrot, a freshman in home economics, lives at 2044 Scenic ave., Central Point. Miss McCorkle is a senior in business and technology, and lives at star route, box 45, Eagle Point.

The concert band is composed of outstanding student musicians, selected in auditions before music department faculty members. This year, the band will participate in the annual campus music concert, Feb. 25, and on April 23 will play for the OSC Centennial concert, "The Face of Oregon."

The concert will feature original music and story on the theme of the Centennial. Some 300 students from the college choruses and band will take part.

Coronation is no longer a part of Norway's royal ceremonial, but King Olav V who succeeded his father, King Haakon VII last year, will head the rare ceremony of the Blessing at Trondheim's June.
