Eggs Featured Food As Hens Set Records

Egg supplies this March are estimated at five per cent higher than this time last year. Just in time for the Lenten-Easter season and, of course, the celebration of National Egg Month which is March.

To a good cook, eggs are almost as indispensable in the kitchen as the stove itself. A famous chef once described eggs as "the cement that holds the castles of cookery together."

From the dietitian's standpoint, an egg is a combination of proteins (all amino acids needed for growth and body maintenance); essential fats; vitamins A, B1 (thiamine), B2 (riboflavin), niacin, D, E, and K; and the minerals—iron, phosphorus and calcium. All this in one of the neatest food packages ever designed.

Egg Storage

Treat a good egg right by storing it under proper conditions. Keep eggs clean, covered and cold. Store them in the refrigerator in a carton or in a covered bowl or pan away from strong-smelling foods. Without a cover, eggs lose moisture faster and are more likely to absorb odors. Stored at room temperature, eggs may lose as much in quality in three days as those kept two weeks in a good refrigerator.

If any of the eggs have cracked shells, use them first. To keep leftover egg yolks or separated whites until they can be used, place yolks in a dish or cup and add just enough cold water to cover. Put egg whites in a jar or dish and cover tightly. Be sure to keep them cold.

baking sheet. Bake in moderate (375 degree) oven 12 to 15 minutes. Remove from sheet immediately. Makes 12 to 15 three-inch cakes.

Mock Turkey Drumsticks

Lamb shanks look like turkey drumsticks and, if cooked in wine as they are in this recipe, they will prove so delicious that the family will ask for many a repeat.

For each four servings: Dust four lamb shanks with salt and pepper. Heat four tablespoons fat in heavy skillet and saute one thinly sliced onion until tender; remove onion and save. Brown lamb shanks thoroughly; return onion to skillet and pour in 1 1/2 cups California Sauterne or other white table wine. Cover tightly and simmer gently for 1 1/2 to two hours or until meat is very tender. Remove lamb shanks to hot platter. Add one can mushroom soup to liquid in pan; blend well and bring to a boil. Salt and pepper to taste. Thicken with cornstarch if heavier consistency is desired. Pour sauce over shanks or serve separately.

Price Right on Eggs, Poultry, Pork, Fruits, Vegetables

The big play this month from a national promotional standpoint goes to economical nutritious, versatile, pre-packaged by nature, (you guessed it) eggs, as we celebrate National Egg Month during March. This year it is estimated that there will be from four to five per cent more egg production than last year.

This means plenty for everyone at "good buy" prices.

Poultry. Hand in hand with eggs goes poultry as a best buy. Plenty of fryers, broilers, stewers. Spectacular prices often mark chicken backs and wings which are ideal for making tasty broths and soups, or to please the many people (particularly children) who truly prefer fried chicken wings to any other part. Turkey production is up and since it is packaged in such convenient forms, there is a just right size for every family. Newcomer to turkey delights, frozen barbecued turkey (halves and quarters), is increasing in popularity.

Pork is the leader in the meat department with lamb running a close second. Pork supplies will be heavy since slaughter is expected to range 15 to 20 per cent above last year's. Supplies of lamb will be somewhat larger than last year. Plenty of beef for all comers with quite a price span. When shopping for meat, remember to check the cost per pound of the edible portion. You may be surprised at the results.

Vegetable Department. California's navel orange industry is enjoying one of its best years in history with a corresponding upgrading in the quality of the fruit. With the quality and supplies of this golden fruit well above normal—the price should be right. Small grapefruit are in their best buy class as are a variety of apples. Delicately flavored, rich in food value avocados are in good supply. Bananas are available at their usual steady price.

Back Stairs: Eisenhower's Fly Catcher

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

Washington—(UPI)—Backstairs at the White House: President Eisenhower's cat at Gettysburg can look forward to warmer weather with less annoyance than many other bovine creatures. The Chief Executive has run a network of tiny electronic wires around the interior of a new barn and the system is designed to discourage the presence of flies.

Fly lights on the wire-dead fly. Sooner or later, the flies get the idea and depart for more conventional barns where self-respecting flies can buzz with abandon without fear of death in the walls.

May Reopen Home

With Mrs. Eisenhower returning from Arizona anytime now, the President's home in Gettysburg will be reopened shortly and he will start spending week ends there again. The house was closed during January and February.

The other day, when the President attended and spoke at outdoor ceremonies here honoring Simon Bolivar, the South American liberator, of 20 or more dignitaries on the speakers' platform, Eisenhower was the only one without a topcoat.

The sky was overcast, a light breeze was coldly penetrating, although the temperature was somewhere around 59. Yet the President stuck it out for 25 minutes without a coat, nor did he put on his hat until the program was over. He looked cold.

Protects Bald Head

Eisenhower takes no such stoical attitude early in the morning when he emerges from a breakfast conference to pose with his guests for pictures on the shaded north porch of the White House.

The President usually walks out on the steps sans hat and coat, but after the photographers snap a picture or two, he begs off and hurries back inside.

The other morning he said to the cameramen, "you fellows have on hats, but I don't want my old bald head to freeze."

Several Reasons

There seems to be several reasons behind John's station at the White House. One, the historic experience of serving at the side of a father and president. Other Presidents certainly have worked members of their families into the White House official machinery and other phases of government.

Another factor: John can be a highly effective buffer for his father. He'll see to it that the President gets enough rest, that he isn't overburdened by ceremonial duties, that his schedules are not unwise-ly rigorous. For example, young Eisenhower played an active role in working out the minute-to-minute schedule for his father's recent visit to Acapulco, Mexico.

No one has freer, at-any-time access to the President's office than John and his immediate boss, Goodpaster.

PHOTOGRAPHS LECTURES

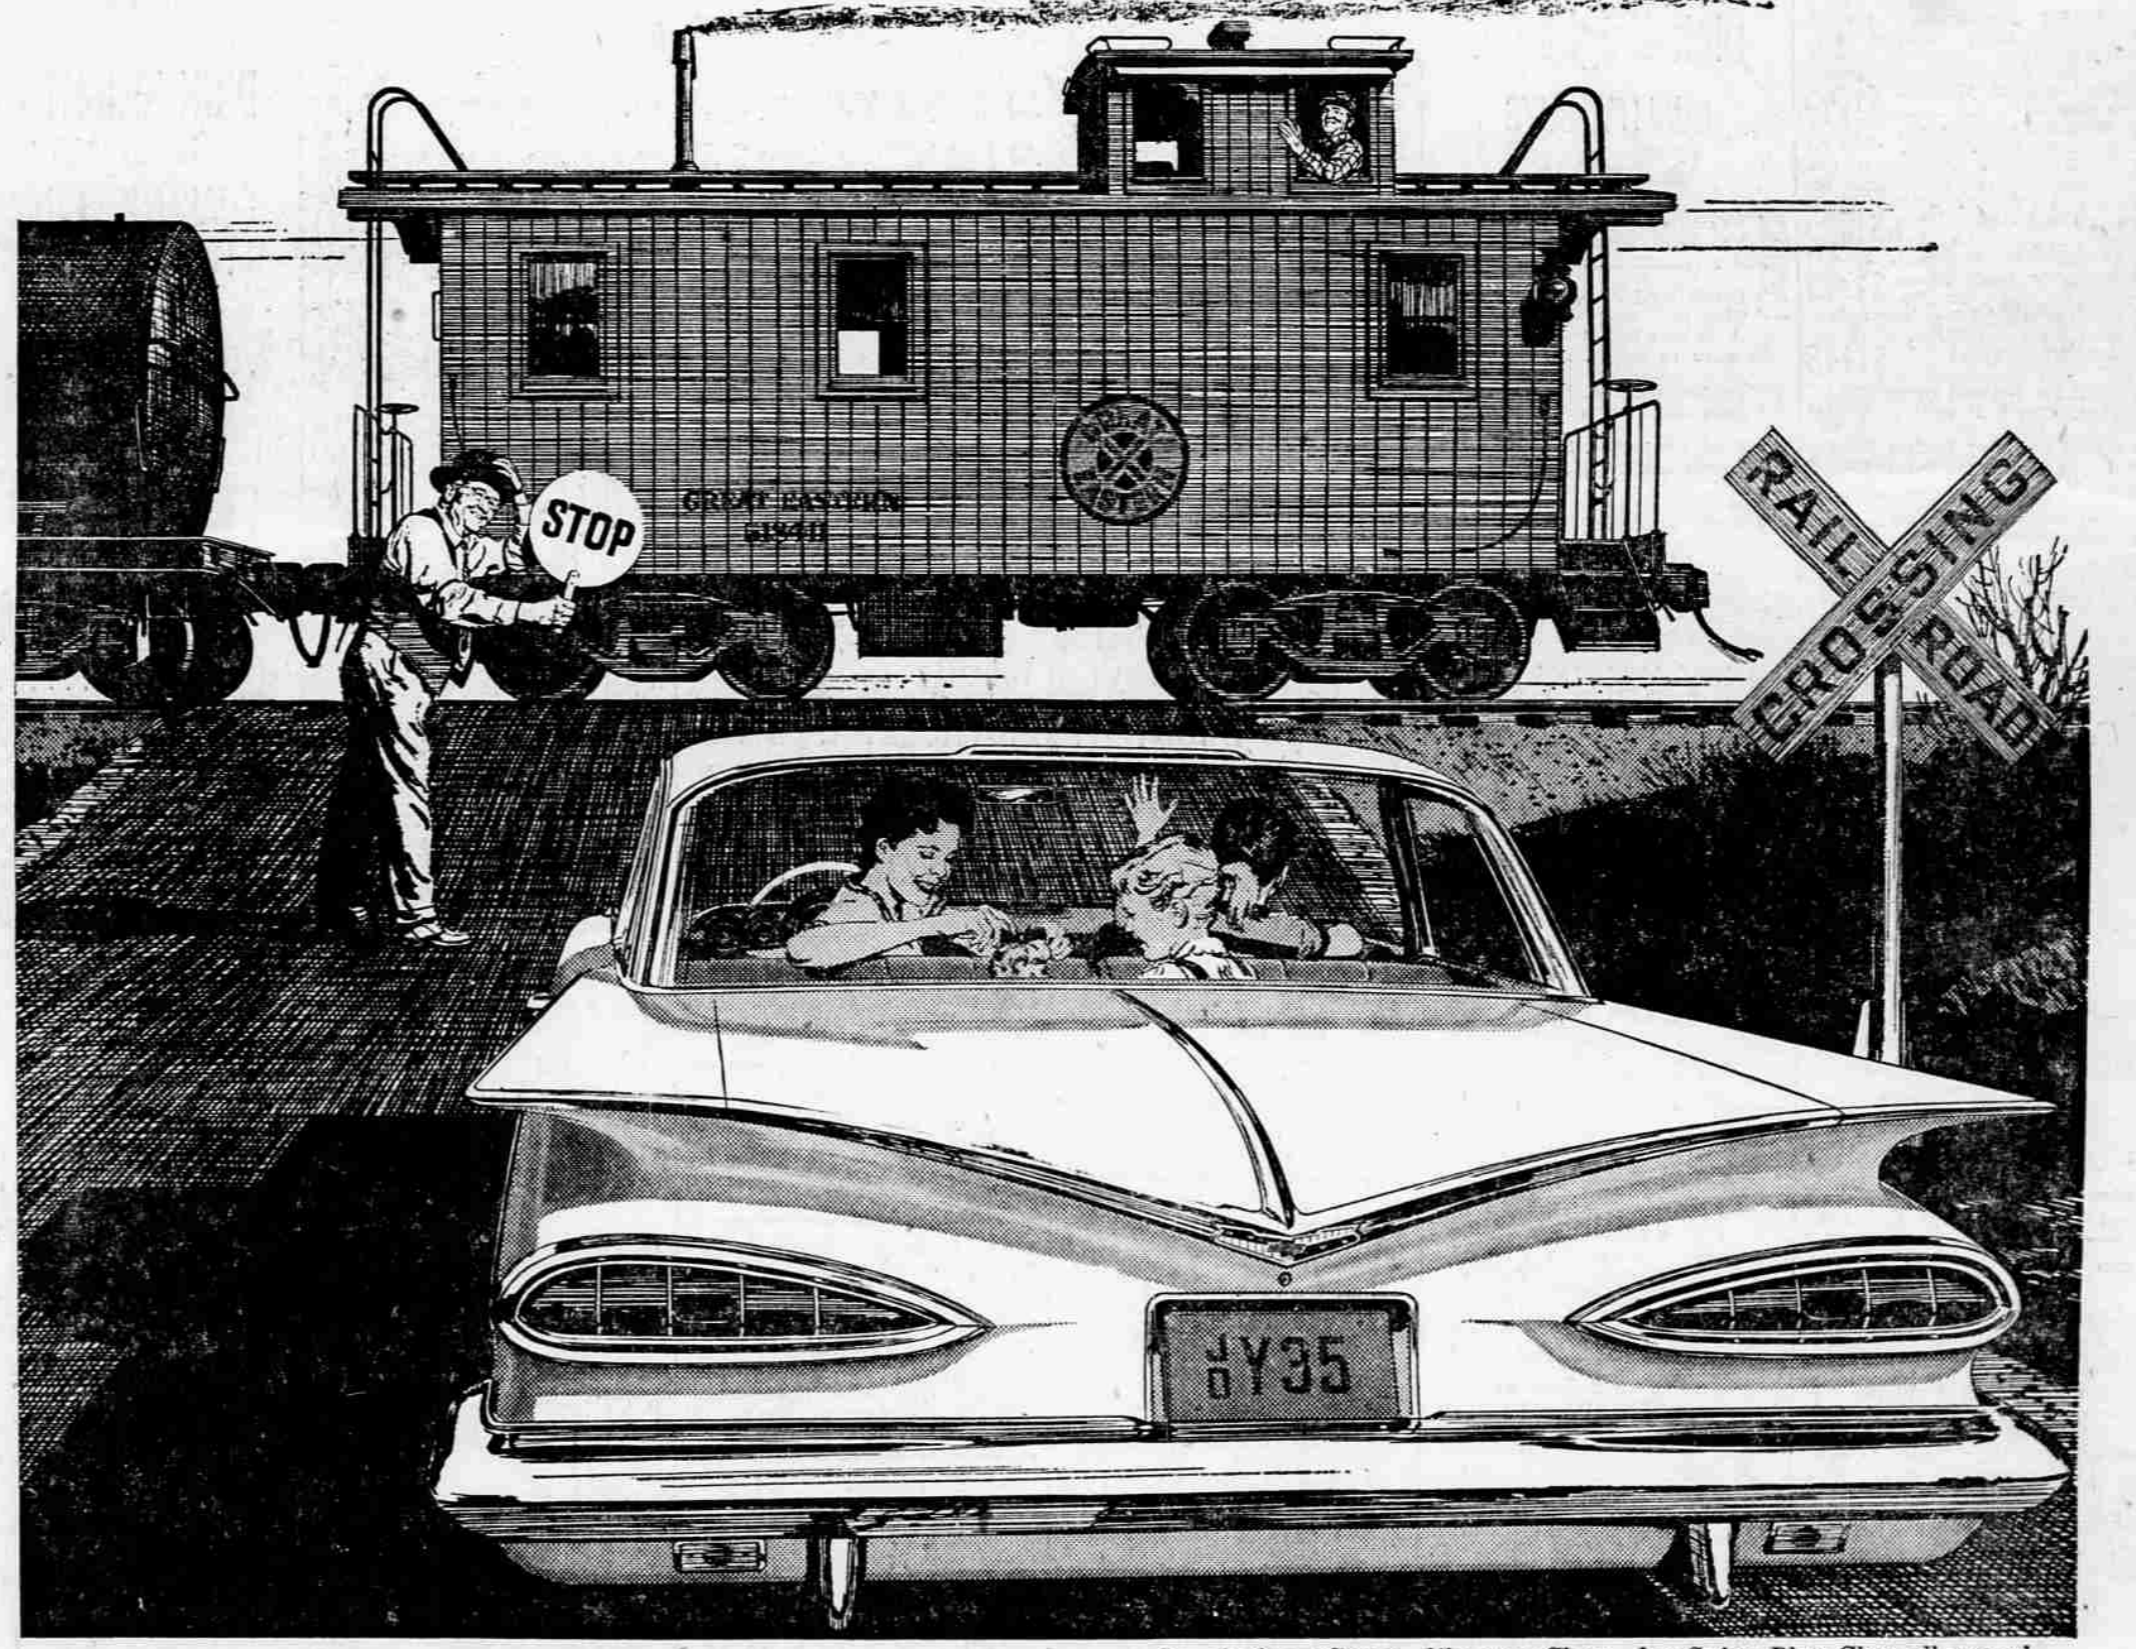

New York - (UPI) - Columbia University student Roger Field can sit calmly through his physics lectures while other students rapidly scribble notes. He photographs the blackboard work problems. Field says the demand for prints of his photographic notes pays his costs.

CIGAR SALES UP

Bonn, Germany - (UPI) - Sales of cigars are on the increase in West Germany due to a fad by German housewives to join their husbands in an after-dinner smoke.

Army friends of Maj. John S. Eisenhower, the President's son, say he noticeably pained behind the scenes when he reads or hears criticism of his assignment at the White House as assistant to Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, the White House staff secretary.

One officer who has known John since his days as a West Point cadet says, "he didn't seek out this job by any means." Another officer several grades above young Eisenhower also has this opinion: "The White House experience should make him a bet-

Chevy stops quickest ... goes farthest on a gallon!

Chevy showed the best brakes of the leading low-priced three in a test of repeated stops at highway speeds conducted and certified by NASCAR. Chevy also won over the other two in a NASCAR economy run—getting the most miles per gallon for 6's and V8's at normal cruising speeds of just over 55 mph.

Fresh as this car is to look at, it's inherited more than its share of those familiar Chevrolet traits—economy and dependability.

It's a car that knows how to get the most out of a gallon. And it's the only car in its field to bring you hydraulic valve lifters in all popular engines—

6 and V8. This mark of a modern engine means smoother, quieter performance for you.

There are many other benefits as basic as the efficiency of Chevrolet's engines and the dependability of its new brakes (with more lining area than any other low-priced car). But why not stop at your dealer's and let Chevy do its own sweet talking!
