

In the Day's News
By FRANK JENKINS

From Berlin—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's first apparent major concession in the Berlin crisis may open the way for a face-saving deal with the West to prevent a war, Western observers said today.

HMMMMM. What did Mr. K. say?

Well, in a speech in the communist sector of Berlin he dropped his previous uncompromising demand that Western allied troops GET OUT of the city's free Western sectors after May 27 and suggested that a "minimum" of U.S., British, French, Russian and perhaps neutral troops remain in the "free city."

His only condition, he added, is that these troops shall not "meddle" in West Berlin's internal affairs.

WHAT'S he up to? Is he just moving to get a toe in the West Berlin door?

Is he stalling along in the hope that we'll relax our vigilance and thus make it possible for Russia to hit us when we aren't looking and put us out of business?

Or IS he really looking for a way to save face and let things quiet down?

ANYWAY—Mr. K's proposal brings a smart counter-proposal from Senator Mike Mansfield, of Montana—who suggests a four-power control of ALL OF BERLIN.

If the Russians want to bring troops over to our side, he says, suppose they permit us to send a corresponding number of OUR troops over to THEIR side.

That sounds like good horse trading. If we can keep the horse trade going long enough, maybe the situation will quiet down again.

If, that is—We convince the Russians we're too tough to tackle.

AT THIS point, a word about Senator Mansfield. He enlisted in the navy in World War I at the age of 14. He subsequently enlisted in the army and later in the marines. He worked as a miner first and a mining engineer later in Butte. He attended Montana School of Mines and Montana State University, receiving B.A. and M.A. degrees in 1933. From 1933 until 1943, he was professor of Latin American and Far Eastern history at Montana University. Then he was elected to the house of representatives and served two terms. He was elected to the senate in 1952.

In the senate, he has given considerable evidence that he is a patriot first and a politician afterward.

Higher Level of Education Urged

Pendleton-UPPI-Ewald Turner of Pendleton, president of the National Department of Classroom Teachers, said Wednesday night that unless this country raises the level of trained, intelligent people and turns to new techniques of selling education we are doomed.

Turner said he was impressed with an increase in education in this country during the past year. But he told an audience of teachers that "we are just not doing as much as we should be doing" to keep up with the Russian surge of education.
