

Frances Langford Show Called Partly Mediocre

By WILLIAM EWALD
New York — (UPI) — Frances Langford Presents, a special NBC-TV hour Sunday night, was an uneven show: Partly mediocre, partly dismal.

It was a patchwork affair into which all sorts of strange filmed snippets had

William Ewald

Bob Hope monolog in Alaska, Edgar Bergen exchanging wooden talk with his wooden friends, George Sanders hovering around the edges, a few songs from Julie London and Miss Langford popping in and out of this weird hash in an attempt to impose a fake unity on it all.

Some of its parts had the ticky-tick gloss of a cheap movie of the 1930s — one of those things made up of make-believe people, coiffed and slicked and grinning with all of their human benignness enameled over. With the entire mess, there were only a few entertaining moments — those provided by Miss London and the Four Freshmen.

Miss Langford, a performer of small skills, tried to carry the burden of the show. It was a misplaced act of confidence on her part.

Back Stairs: Macmillan and Camp David

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter
Washington — (UPI) — Back stairs at the White House:

Today or Tuesday, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan will be packing his bags in London for the flight to Washington and his conferences with President Eisenhower on the Berlin crisis.

The two leaders will meet Friday at Eisenhower's special woody hide-away, Camp David, in the Catoctin Mountains of Maryland.

Since it is highly unlikely that the urbane and polished Prime Minister's previous summit conference experiences have led him into such sylvan surroundings, there are some things he should know about Camp David.

For one thing, he would be well advised to wear that white fur cap that caught the fancy of the Russians when he wore it in Moscow recently. Spring still is some time away on the chilly Maryland summit, and the weather can be quite sharp until mid-April or later.

The Prime Minister should know that a walk in the Catoctin Woods is fine in daylight but risky business after dark. The camp is guarded by a well-trained detachment of U.S. Marines and when darkness falls, there's a sharp-eyed leatherneck behind more than a few of the trees.

Otherwise, Macmillan won't need too much in the way of heavy clothing — except for his arrival and departure, probably by helicopter. The president's cottage where he'll be a guest is snug and well-heated.

Movies in Mess Hall

Night life? It's very limited. Sometimes there are movies in the Navy mess hall. The nearest town in Thurmont, a bit on the smallish side. Its entertainment facilities include Camp Cosby, a roadside dining spot with tourist accommodations, one movie and a snake farm (unfortunately the cobra constrictor and the cobra are appearing currently in the south). There are no bars. Beer is sold over the counter, liquor is available only in a package store.

Seat Belt in Use Ups Survival Chance

Albany, N. Y. — (Science Service) — Riding in your car with a seat belt strapped around you can spell the difference between life and death, reports Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe, New York state health commissioner. A person's chances of surviving a serious accident are far greater when he is not thrown from the car. Studies show that the risk of death to occupants who are thrown from the car is about five times as great as those who remain inside the car.
