State Meeting
Mrs. Rankin of the State Council on Aging reported on the recent meeting in Salem of the council. She explained recent legislation and mentioned that the ways and means committee had reported favorably on the proposed budget for the next two years. Pending legislation includes a bill which prohibits public officers from using a maximum age as a criterion for employment instead of capabilities, and the deference or cancellation of taxes on property of persons over 65 years of age with a limited income. She said that a recommendation that the state public health department budget be increased to allow a field worker to work with nursing homes and to train volunteers in the communities working with older persons was defeated.

Panel Discussion
Dr. Jessie Brodie of the state health committee arranged for a panel discussion regarding the need for a geriatrics wing for the Damish state hospital which would alleviate the crowded conditions at both the state hospital at Salem and the Eastern Oregon state hospital. Announcement was made of plans for the first Oregon State Conference on Aging to be held next year. In order that Oregon may participate in the national congress on aging to be held in January, 1961.

Organizations of councils in each county will be continued under the direction of Mrs. Rankin, chairman of the community services committee. It was reported that 24 counties had been visited with 19 expressing interest in organizing. Jackson county, she explained, has been the first to have activity in housing, employment, health, and recreation for older people.

Youths Arrested By City Police
Two Medford youths were arrested late Saturday night for stealing an automobile and a third youth, from Central Point, was arrested for trying to steal gasoline from it after the theft, Medford police reported.

All three were lodged at the Jackson county juvenile detention home after admitting their respective parts in the incident, according to the report. The two Medford youths, 16 and 17, took an automobile belonging to Bert Preston Luman, 706 Whitman pl., from its parking spot on J st. between Whitman and 12th st. at about 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Other Reports
Soon afterward Wesley Alexander McKenzie, 373 Holmes ave., called the police station to report several suspicious persons in a vehicle near his home. Police found the youths in the process of trying to siphon gas from the stolen car to the Central Point youth's vehicle.

At about this time Willis Wendell Williams, 1409 South Ivy st., informed the desk officer at the police station by telephone that his garden hose had been cut. A hose section had been taken by the two Medford youths for siphoning the gas.

Police said the three other teenagers were released afterward since they were not aware the vehicle had been stolen. The two Medford youths who admitted taking the car were booked at the police station for auto theft, while the Central Point youth was booked for petty larceny.
