"How to Get A Raise" Tips Given by Magazine

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
New York—The subject for today is how to get a raise. Now that I have your undivided attention, let it be added that this, next to how to get a man, undoubtedly is one of the most important problems facing the young working girl. Or, for that matter the older working girl. Or, for that matter, just any person whose salary never quite keeps up with the cost of living.

The tips on how to get more moola come from an article in the current magazine "Today's Secretary."

The publication's guide to making the right pitch starts out logically enough, with tips on how to make the wrong pitch. It lists six approaches guaranteed not to extract more money from management.

How Not To Start
Don't start with: —The subtle hint. "It's so hard to make ends meet these days, isn't it, Mr. Blank. The cost of living has gone up again and I wonder where it will all end."
—Not in a raise for you, sweetie.

—The poor little me approach: "I thought I could go to California on my vacation, but I guess I can't afford it." (He gets enough of this from his wife).

—The petulant, you promised approach: "You said if the Smith and Smythe deal went through that . . ." You are imagining things; I mentioned a raise?

—The all other girls approach: "Betty told me she got a $5 raise this week and so did Mary . . ."

If you really want to know, dear, you aren't worth as much as either of 'em . . .

Old Dog Tray
—The Old Dog Tray approach: "You wouldn't remember of course, Mr. Blank, but then nobody has been around this office as long as I have." You do look tired. Why don't you go home, and send that cute blonde in to take some letters?

—The out and out blackmail approach: "I've been offered another job at a better salary and with electric typewriter and . . ." (Congratulations, I'm sure you'll be very happy there).

Now, for the accent on the positive.

"Today's Secretary" said that timing is important. "You would not, for example, pop the vital question just as he's about to dash off to a meeting with the big boss," it said. "Neither will you nab him when he's tired, hungry, annoyed with the big boss, with his wife, his best friend, his best customer, himself, or annoyed with you."

"It is better to ask for a raise when the company is doing well, not when a periodic economy wave shows business is bad."

Be Business-Like
"Be as businesslike in asking for a raise as your boss is in presenting a sales pitch to a prospective customer. Give him a summary of the year's work you have engaged in, setting down the most outstanding results . . ."

Point out what new skills you have added to your repertoire, editing speeches, making charts and graphs. And remind him that you've stayed a little while after hours in emergencies, or that you've put into effect dollar saving short cuts.

If all the above fails, you might put on further pressure by reminding him, and these are suggestions, NOT from "Today's Secretary," that the coffee for his coffee break is hot and always on time;

That each year you spend several of your lunch hours shopping for his children's Christmas presents;

That if it weren't for you, he would forget flowers for his wife on wedding anniversaries;

And that you are the one who fibs that he's "in conference" to an important telephone caller, when he in truth is right at his desk contemplating a hangover.

Woman as U.S. President Unlikely Soon, Say Leaders

By PATRICIA WIGGINS
Washington—The moon before a woman is elected president of the United States. That view, expressed by a top GOP woman politician, is the most prevalent one held by politicians of each sex in both major parties today, in spite of the growing number of women in the once all-male political field.

However, some, like Mrs. Clare B. Williams, author of the remark and assistant chairman and director of women's activities of the Republican National Committee, think the statement doesn't rule out a "Madame President" in the future.

But others, most males too wise in the ways of politics to be quoted by name, doubt that woman will ever hold down the nation's No. 1 job even if science does put a man on the moon.

Perhaps the most emphatic comment against the idea of a woman in the White House came from a world-famous capital figure (male) who, declining to be quoted, complained, "There are enough things in the world to worry about today without thinking of a woman as president."

Mrs. Williams sees "no possibility" of a president in petticoats for the next 50 years. But eventually, she said, "when an outstanding woman comes along, who has training for the job equal to any man's, the day will come."

That day won't arrive, she added, until women have increased their activity in state and federal governments, developed a "leadership potential," and generally built up a confidence in their own abilities.

Today, she said, women's confidence is undermined from the time they are little girls, listening to admonitions that only men can "use a hammer, fly an airplane, keep track of money"—or be president.

Group to Sponsor Dance at Camp White

The Department of Oregon, Ladies' Auxiliary of Veterans of World War I, plans a dance at the Camp White Domiciliary Monday, March 30, at 8 p.m. in the theater.

Music for the dance will be provided by the Musicians union, Local 597, of Medford. Those wishing transportation may take the bus at the Trailways depot at 7:30 p.m.

Split Personality
New York—Crispy cabbage is good as salad or a spread. Sieve 2 hard-cooked egg yolks. Combine with 1 cup mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, and 1/2 teaspoon sugar and blend. Add 3 cups finely chopped green pepper and salt and pepper to taste. Mix lightly. Makes about 3 cups.

Wine Sauce
Thin honey with a little sauteur wine to make a thin sauce for French toast. Use California Sauter for part of liquid when making lemon sauce. It's particularly refreshing spooned over gingerbread or bread pudding.

Anchorage, Alaska, is more than 1,300 miles closer to Tokyo than Seattle, Wash.

Cheese-Apple Cake Makes Good Dessert

New York—Cheese and apple cake go together like cheese and apple pie.

Sift 2 cups flour with 2 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt. Add 1/4 cup milk, 2 beaten eggs, and 1/4 cup melted butter and mix until just blended. Spread over bottom of greased 11-by-7-by-2-inch baking pan.

Top with 4 medium apples that have been pared, cored, sliced and mixed with 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon and 1/4 cup flour. Cover with 1/4 cup (about 1 1/4 ounces) crumbled blue cheese. Bake in 375-degree oven 45 minutes or until cake tests done. Serve warm or cold with cream.

Bean Salad
Marinate canned blue lake green beans in tart French dressing with a little instant minced onion. Drain, and serve as a luncheon salad with deviled hard cooked eggs, pickled beets and a scoop of cottage cheese. This hearty salad is a whole meal when you add hot biscuits and glasses of milk.

Raisin Relish
A cup of sweet, sunny-flavored raisins, a few drops of mint extract and some India relish make a memorable accompaniment to roast, lamb, baked ham or chicken. For extra flavor, chop the raisins using a French knife. Blending them with a few drops of oil before chopping will help prevent them from sticking to the blade of the knife.
