Camp Fire Girls To Plant Trees At Hoover Lakes

About 300 girls of the Rogue Camp Fire Girls' council are planning to plant about 1,500 tree cuttings starting at 10 a.m. Saturday near Hoover Lakes in the Camp White area, it was announced.

The girls, parents and members of the Eagle Point Grange, acting as supervisors, will meet at the corner of Gregory and Table Rock rds. at 10 a.m. Saturday, C. C. Hoover, owner of the area on which the trees will be planted, said.

The girls will plant Golden weeping willow and weeping willow trees along Whetstone creek on the C. C. Hoover property, Hoover said. Included in the willow trees will be several cuttings from one of the first willow trees planted in the Rogue valley and which grew on the old Hanley farm near Jacksonville, one of the county's "Century Farms." The cuttings will be contributed by Mrs. Claire Hanley.

A jubilee celebration or ceremony will be held either on Saturday or soon after the trees are planted if the plantings are not completed in one day, Hoover said.

The tree planting is part of the Camp Fire Girls' national Golden Jubilee project to be carried out for 2½ years.
