'Case of the Missing Dog' Makes You Wonder

Once again the family was planning the summer's vacation. Road maps had been marked, routes selected, even some of the packing already completed. The car was made ready.

The only dark cloud in the otherwise sunny sky, for the children, was the statement father made when he said that Butch, the family dog, must be left at home.

Mother tried to soften the blow a little by adding, "Besides Butch will be better off with the Allisons, just like last year." For last year, in spite of the children's protest, the dog had been taken to the friend's house a few miles away across the city.

While all the plans and conversations were going on, the dog lay on the floor, ears pricked up apparently listening. Perhaps he remembered last year when he had been "boarded out" for the two weeks his family was away.

'Goodbye' to Butch

The night before the trip the children were put to bed early. Each one had said "Goodbye" to Butch for father was to take the dog to the friend's house the first thing in the morning.

The great day dawned. Father placed the last of the bags in the car. Mother hurried with breakfast. Father said: "I'll take Butch over and eat when I get back. By that time the kids will be up."

Then he added, "Where is the dog?" Mother suddenly remembered she hadn't seen the dog since she got up. Father called from the front porch. Mother and children looked in the back yard. No dog. Now father scoured the neighborhood. When he came back, breakfast was cold and father was angry. He was so worked up he couldn't eat and so went out to search again.

Still No Dog

When he returned he was angrier than ever. Everybody was ready but still no dog. "I'll call Fred and tell him not to wait around any longer and explain what the delay is all about," he said. "He was looking for me to bring that stupid dog over there at six o'clock."

He was so worked up he couldn't even remember his friend's telephone number, finally had to waste more time looking it up in the book. Fred answered, "I don't know what time we will get there. Fred, been looking for that silly dog since six o'clock."

"Hunting the dog?" asked Fred. "The dog is here, he came about six this morning. In fact he was here on the front porch when we got up."

HONOR BRITISH CITY

Norwich, England - (UPI) - Maj. Gen. Ernest Moore, commander of the U.S. 3rd Air Force, will present Norwich with an award Friday for its good relations with American airmen. Norwich will be the first British city to receive the Community Relations Award from the U.S. Air Force.

Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy Is Favored by Groups

Corvallis - Stepped - up peaceful uses of atomic energy by private industry and more state and local financing of education, rather than through federal aid, are favored by Oregon Great Decisions discussion groups.

Individual balloting by discussion group members in 22 Oregon counties also called for more information to the general public on what lies ahead in the "technological revolution."

Ballots were tabulated this week by Oregon State college extension service on the discussion topic, "The New Technology - For Destruction or Plenty?"

On the question of bolstering the nation's education system, only 15 per cent favored public aid to private schools and universities. More than three - fourths of the ballots supported more state and community financing of education with second choice going to increased federal aid to public schools and universities.

Two - thirds of the voters thought the U.S. must continue some nuclear weapons research until an effective control system is installed against radioactive fallout. The other one-third favored a ban on testing weapons having significant "fallout."

Three-fourths favored greater effort by private industry in peaceful atomic development at home and gave second priority for such development by the federal government.

Balloting on U.S. contributions to peaceful atomic development in the rest of the world showed three - fourths favored such contributions through United Nations rather than direct negotiations with nations concerned.

About 80 per cent favored more world - sharing of scientific and technological skills. Only one-third thought military technology was too complicated for ordinary citizens to understand and should therefore be left to government experts.

Search for Hunt In North Idaho

Boise - (UPI) - The search for Richard Allen Hunt, 26, wanted for wounding an Oregon police chief last month, has shifted to northern Idaho and eastern Washington.

Hunt has been the object of a wide spread search since the wounding of Brownsville Police Chief Robert Kemnow and the abduction of Harrisburg, Ore., police chief E. G. McPhee.

State police headquarters was advised that a man fitting Hunt's description was seen in Payette last Saturday trying to sell a Japanese camera, and equipment, saying he needed gasoline money. Monday, the same man was spotted in Coeur d'Alene driving a 1959 model car. He was last reported headed toward the Idaho - Washington state line on Highway 10.

A state police officer was sent from Coeur d'Alene and a U.S. marshal drove east trying to find the car, but the man apparently gave them the slip.

When seen in Coeur d'Alene, the man fitting the description was accompanied by an unidentified woman.

Elstrom said he was particularly interested in Senate bill 369, an anti-coercion bill introduced by himself and Sen. Anthony Yturri (R-Ore.).

He said the anti - coercion bill had been "bottled up" in the Senate Labor and Industries Committee chairmanned by Sen. Dan Dimick (D-Roseburg).

"Up to this time, Sen. Dimick has not allowed a fair hearing on this bill and I believe it is legislation that should be given serious consideration," Elstrom said.

Republican House Minority Leader Robert Elstrom, Salem, said Wednesday he was "disappointed in the reluctance of the Democratic majority to give fair consideration to several Republican-sponsored bills designed to eliminate undesirable features of labor union management."

Gradual Basis

The changeover would be on a gradual basis as recruits are trained. A 44-hour week would be set by January of next year and a 40-hour week by July, 1960.

Bill Putting State In Power Business Receives Approval

Salem - (UPI) - The bill putting Oregon into the power business has been approved by the House Judiciary Committee by a vote of five to three.

The bill, which carries the names of many Democrats, provides for setting up of a State Power Commission with extensive powers to generate, produce or purchase power and resell it at wholesale rates.

Rep. Al Flegel (D-Roseburg), a chief sponsor of the bill, said it calls for establishment of a three-man Power Development Commission to be selected on a non-partisan ballot. The Commission would give priority to public bodies and cooperatives in distribution of its power.

Gas Tax Bill Approved

Flegel said the bill would enable Oregon to take advantage of the preference clause in the Bonneville Power Administration act which also gives preference to public bodies in the distribution of federally generated power.

Other major committee action saw the bill increasing the state gasoline tax from six to seven cents a gallon taken from the table by the House Committee on Highways and sent to the House floor with a "do pass" recommendation.

Vote on approving the bill for passage was 7-2.

Officials in the State Highway Department declare that the additional revenue from the gas tax is needed to match federal funds for construction of highways in Oregon.

Bill Re-Deferred

The House by a 33-26 vote re-referred to committee a bill establishing a $1 minimum wage in Oregon and overtime pay for more than 40 hours work.

A bill which would have permitted 15-year-olds to drive motor scooters and light motorcycles went down to defeat by a 38-20 margin.

Opponents objected to the bill as a "killer" which would result in more accidents.

A Ways and Means subcommittee recommended a five-day week for state police.

Rep. George Annala (D-Hood River), chairman of the subcommittee, estimated the five-day week would cost $870,000 during the present biennium. In future bienniums the increased cost would be about $1 million dollars, he said.

The changeover would be on a gradual basis as recruits are trained. A 44-hour week would be set by January of next year and a 40-hour week by July, 1960.

CENTRAL POINT Open House Scheduled

By DORIS HUGHES

Central Point-Preparations are underway at Central Point elementary and junior high schools for annual open house, which will be held April 28, according to Charles A. Meyer, principal.

On that evening, beginning at 6:30, the teachers will be in the rooms and parents are invited to visit and see their children's work, which will be displayed. Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria during this period.

Beginning at 8 p.m., in the junior high gymnasium, there will be an hour-long band concert under the direction of Marry Meyers. This concert, which is free to the public, will feature both the beginners band and the junior high band.

An Easter party was given Wednesday afternoon, March 25, for the little children at the Friends church. The party was given by Mrs. Eunice Jones, superintendent of the department, Mrs. Louise Malott, Mrs. Harold Allen, and Mrs. Roger Carpenter.

Mrs. Jones teaches the five year olds, Mrs. Malott teaches the four year olds, Mrs. Allen, the two and three year olds and Mrs. Carpenter tends the nursery. There were 67 children and 34 adults attending the affair which took place on the lawn of the church and in Harmony hall. Mrs. Jones had decorated the small tables with garlands of Easter grass and tiny Easter baskets, and hidden bags of Easter eggs about the room.

Mrs. Wayne Roberts gave the devotion and prayer was led by the Rev. Clynton Crisman. Mrs. Dean Roberts and Mrs. Clynton Crisman sang an Easter song and the children sang action songs. Punch and cookies were served. The cookies were furnished by the mothers.

The Central Point city planning committee met Monday night at the city hall. The men discussed new sub-division ordinances which they plan to adopt soon. Bud Hoover and his father from Camp White presented a preliminary

The Crater Lions club is installing a drinking fountain on Pine st. in Central Point. Many people have expressed appreciation of the fountain and pedestrians stopped to watch the laying of the Roman brick which form the base of the fountain.

Working on the fountain have been Verne Bowers, Wendell Panter, Leo Cellura and Grant Day. Money for the project was raised by a rifle raffle.

Friday and Saturday, the Central Point Lions club operated their hamburger wagon at the Retrievers trials in the Hoover lake area and at the Military bridge.

Working on this project were the club's president, Grant R. Day, and his son and daughter, Roscoe and Ruth, Wendell Panter, Dick Imbach, Al Johnson, Leo Cellura and Jim Higinbotham.

Four practice teachers from Southern Oregon college are taking class room training at Central Point elementary and junior high school. Practice teachers and teachers they are working with are Stan Dew, with Mrs. Viola Laird, sixth grade; Frank Scott, with Mr. Jack McCoy, seventh grade; Marlene Addington, with Mr. Richard Traylor, seventh grade; and Alice Benka, with Mrs. Catherine McDonald, fourth grade. Miss Addington and Stan Dew are former Central Point students.

W. P. Bowen, Central Point police chief, attended police training school March 24 at Chehalis, Wash.

The Central Point city planning committee met Monday night at the city hall. The men discussed new sub-division ordinances which they plan to adopt soon. Bud Hoover and his father from Camp White presented a preliminary platt for a new sub-division in that area and it was approved by the planning committee. Serving on the committee for the first time since he was appointed by the mayor was Frank Bruce.

Bruce was appointed to take the place of Jerry Blomquist who moved recently from Central Point to Sams Valley.

The missionary society of the Friends church met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Margaret Hagen on Bigham dr. The women spent the morning sewing baby layettes for the Bolivian mission. A pot-luck dinner was served at noon. The devotion was given by Mrs. Jo Wolk-Janiewski. About 15 women attended the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Paul and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Yarnell, spent Easter at a Paul family reunion at Gardiner, Ore. Attending were Mrs. Martha Paul, her eight children and their families including 25 grandchildren, totaling 41 members of the immediate family.

Also attending were an uncounted number of relatives and friends. A lodge hall was rented to hold the large gathering. The Lyle Pauls and the Yarnells returned home Sunday night.

Mrs. Homer Conger and son, Ross, of Central Point and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Purcell of Medford, returned last week from San Mateo, Calif., where they visited the Purcell's daughter, Mrs. Betty Hooper. Mrs. Hooper and Mrs. Conger are sisters. They also visited in Sausalito, Calif., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Hopper. Mrs. Hopper is the former Miss Anita Conger.

Mr. and Mrs. Burl C. Johnson moved to Central Point this week from Eureka, Calif. They are living in the Harold R. Hughes home on Oak st. The Hughes family moved last month to Portland. The Johnsons are former Central Point residents.

Miss Caroline Cober returned Monday to Cedarville, Calif., after visiting a week with Miss Beth Hildenbrandt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hildenbrandt, of 24 Ash st., Central Point.

Billy Dolan of Klamath Falls spent from Friday to Monday visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Dolan. Also visiting at the Dolan home was Miss Marilyn Schadler of Lake City, Calif.

Henry Hildenbrandt of Eugene, Ore., spent a few days recently at the home of his brother, Floyd Hildenbrandt, of Central Point.

The Crater Rockets 4-H Rock and Mineral club will meet at 4:30 April 6 at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Leonard of Snowy Butte rd. A special program on safety will be given by Danny Leonard, safety chairman. Gladys Schwabs will be in charge of entertainment.
