Terrorism Curbs Algerian Voting

Algiers –UPI– A wave of rebel terrorism appeared Tuesday to have succeeded in its purpose–keeping voters away from the polls in the third day of Algieria's municipal elections.

The rebel terror joined forces with political apathy and confusion to place doubt on outcome of the elections. Voters stayed away in droves and there was no clear-cut indication of whether President Charles de Gaulle or his extreme right-wing opponents were winning.

The political confusion arose from the unprecedented number of competing right-wing tickets. Most candidates campaigned bitterly against each other on nearly identical platforms calling for Algeria's "integration" with France.

The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Clinic

Each week I get many letters which distress me because I cannot answer the questions a worried person asks. For instance; before me is a letter from a mother who says that her son of 18 has been found to have a loud heart murmur. She wants to know whether she should take the lad to one of the country's great clinics, or should she find an eminent heart specialist, or should she have the boy's heart operated on? I cannot give a word of advice because I do not know even if the lad is sick. Perhaps he isn't handicapped at all by his heart murmur. Perhaps he never will be.

Dr. Alvarez

I remember a man of 76 who came into my office a while ago to see me about some arthritis. When I went over him, I heard a tremendous heart murmur, but on speaking to him about it, he said, "Oh, don't pay any attention to that. That was found 56 years ago. At that time several of the leading consultants in San Francisco told my father that I would probably be dead in six months. Accordingly, I went to Paris to have a last fling. But I soon tired of that, and went back to work in my father's factory. I have been working hard ever since, and my heart has never bothered me." Evidently, he had a congenital abnormality of the heart which interfered so little with its functions that he never was handicapped by it.

Children Operated On

Today, hundreds of children with a loud murmur and a severe type of congenital heart disease are being operated on because they are badly handicapped. Maybe they cannot exercise at all; perhaps their lips are always blue, and they are always short of breath. If you have a child who cannot run around or who cannot walk with you along the street without asking to be carried, and if his lips are blue and he is short of breath, your doctor will probably get you in touch with an expert heart specialist who will soon tell you if an operation is necessary. Then he will help you choose a heart surgeon.

Dr. Alvarez' new booklet on heart trouble may be obtained by sending 25 cents and a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. MMT, The Register and Tribune Syndicate, Box 957, Des Moines 4, Iowa.
