Chance To Hand President Setback On Veto Seen

Washington—UPI—Congressional Democrats figured today they have a good chance of handing President Eisenhower his first setback on a veto.

They said they believed they could muster the two-thirds vote required in both the Senate and House to override Eisenhower's disapproval Monday of a Rural Electrification Administration bill. Never Overridden Congress never has overridden an Eisenhower veto in his more than six years in the White House. In most cases, the legislators haven't even tried because of the odds against success.

But Democrats served notice they were prepared to fight over his rejection of the measure to strip Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson of authority over REA loans. The Senate gets first crack at the presidential veto. The Senate Democratic Policy Committee has not decided whether to move to override, but backers of the bill were confident the attempt would be made.

Hard Fight Seen Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) told newsmen there was a good chance the House would vote to override the veto. Democratic Whip Carl Albert (Okla.), agreed, but said he anticipated a hard fight.

The Senate originally passed the bill by a vote of 60-27, or more than a two-thirds margin. The vote in the House was 254-131, a little under two-thirds.

But absentees could change the picture. Eleven senators and 50 House members did not vote on passage of the bill and their stand could determine whether Eisenhower's veto stands up.

The bill amends both 1939 and 1953 reorganization plans for the REA. In vetoing it, Eisenhower said the REA has worked well and progressed efficiently under the present setup.

Insanity Faked For 27 Years New York—UPI—A 47-year-old man told a Brooklyn court Monday he had successfully faked insanity for 27 years to avoid trial for a 1932 burglary slaying.

For all those years he was a prisoner in the Matteawan State hospital for the Criminally Insane, preferring its known horrors to the chance of death in the electric chair. "In my opinion," King's County Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz told him, "twenty-seven years in Matteawan is worse than a thousand years in Sing Sing."

William F. Dunn was apprehended after a gun battle with police who had surprised him and three accomplices breaking into a pawn shop. Two of the robbers and one policeman were killed. Dunn was wounded. The other man got away.

Dunn said he had fooled the lunacy examiners who had determined he was unable to stand trial because of insanity, and had continued to fool state psychiatrists until last month when they finally declared him sane.

Because witnesses were no longer available, he was permitted to plead guilty to first degree manslaughter, which carries a possible penalty of 20 years in jail.

Judge Leibowitz ordered him remanded to jail while he studies the record. He set no date for sentencing.

Portland Meadows Strike Threatened Portland—UPI—The threat of picketing today faced the Portland Meadows horse race track which is scheduled to open its season Friday.

The Multnomah County Central Council Monday night voted to place Portland Sports Service on its "unfair" list. The service operates the dining rooms, bars and concession stands at the track.
