Central Point Curtain Callers To Present Play

Central Point - The Curtain Callers of Crater High school will present "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" Friday and Saturday, May 1 and 2, at 8 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

The three-act comedy adapted from the book by Mark Twain revolves around Hank Bennett, portrayed by Kent Randahl, a young man of our times, who mysteriously finds himself in the age of King Arthur and his court. Hank is forced to face a myriad of situations created by typical Mark Twain characters such as Sir Sagramor, the "fearless coward," played by Allen Barnes, who is aided by the heroic Sir Launcelot (Herschel Mack). Nagging Queen Guenevere and henpecked King Arthur are brought to life by Jean Scalberg and John Burns.

It seems that from the magic of Merlin, played by Shariette Hale, come the players Sandy (Arvella Prom), Elaine (Betty Jones), Clarence (Brian Von Buskirk), Morgan LeFay (Margaret Taylor), Mrs. Bennett (Margaret Pendleton), and Marion Bennett (Nancy Dillon).

The play is under the direction of Bill Russell. He is assisted by a production staff of over fifty students, including Herschel Mack, assistant director; Bob Gardner, technical director; Jim Hays, business manager; Howard Meister, stage manager; Margaret Pendleton, house manager; Fetti Straus, publicity director; Louella Rone, costume chairman; Mel Smith, make-up chairman; John Jakash, properties chairman; and prompters, Marilyn Hixson and Gay Jones.

Housewives in Danger

Urbana, Ill. - (UPI) - Hurried homemakers in the kitchen may be headed down the road to the hospital, a University of Illinois safety specialist says.

"Many women never drive over 35 miles per hour on the highway," O. L. Hogsett said, "but you'd never know it by the way they speed around the kitchen."

Slow down and take it easy. Rushing and carelessness causes many accidents, he added.

Using a box instead of a sturdy kitchen stepladder to reach top shelves is a quick ticket to a hospital. So is storing jars on a stair-way instead of buying shelving.

Take time, Hogsett warned, to turn handles of pans on the range out of the way so that you won't bump them and spill hot food.

Invest a little time and money in safety, Hogsett advised. The hospital bills you have by planning for safety will more than cover the cost.
