

Worker Undaunted By Space Trip

Oakland, Calif. — Bill Bell was knocked off the fifth floor of a new office building under construction here Wednesday — and returned to work on the 19th floor in less than 30 minutes.

Bell, 34, was installing refrigeration pipes at the new Kaiser Center office building when he was struck by a swinging boom. As he plunged over the edge, he grabbed a rope and slid safely to the ground.

His heavy gloves prevented rope burns so Bell went right back to work.

IT'S NO RECORD
Princeton, N.J. — The Princeton University freshman hamburger eating contest was won Wednesday by Thomas D. Frankel of New York City, who downed six and a half hamburgers in five minutes. Last year's freshman winner consumed nine.

The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Ring in The Ears

Many times a week people ask me what they can do to cure ringing in their ears, and I am sorry to say that usually there seems to be no good treatment. The best thing is to go to a good ear specialist if he can find any sign of disease in the ear, and especially any disease which he could help by treatment. In many cases the ear man finds disease that he cannot cure; in other cases, usually of old people, he cannot find anything wrong in the ears, and then the chances are that the person has suffered a little injury in his brain — what I call a "little stroke" — due to the plugging-up of a little artery.

The doctor can be sure of this when he hears that the noises followed a bad dizzy spell, perhaps with some wooziness. Perhaps, after this, the patient was so changed mentally that he could no longer do much work at the shop or the office. Perhaps at home he became irritable and grouchy and hard to get along with, and perhaps quite a bit of his memory went. In such cases there is usually little that a doctor can do — he cannot remake the little bit of brain that was destroyed. Fortunately, in many cases the effects of the little stroke wear off in a few months.

Bad Nervous Inheritance

Whenever I talk to people about the importance of a poor nervous inheritance in producing nervous troubles of various kinds, someone in the group is likely to say to me, angrily, "You mean that because my grandmother was insane, I have to be insane?" No. No; most certainly, not; I did not mean any such thing. I did say that, and I don't intend to say that. I remember a number of fine men and women who, in spite of the fact that they were born with a terrible mental heredity on both sides of the family, still managed to live out their lives as sane and well-adjusted persons.

I have done much thinking about this problem since Christmas time when, among the scores of letters I got from old patients and friends, I received one from a woman who must now be in her middle sixties. I saw her first when she was a lovely girl about 18, disturbed mentally, and seriously considering suicide. She was then a shy sensitive person who, I knew, would probably be too schizoid all her life ever to marry. Her father, although a fine, well-educated man who had done much for his city, was so poorly adjusted that he had taken his own life.

Through the years I have kept in touch with my old patient and today I am proud of what she has done. Bravely, she has fought off her inherited tendency to mental disease, and has kept doing a magnificent job of running a good-sized and important business. She has never married. A few years ago, when I had a chat with her, I found her a fine, sensible woman. I imagine her life has not always been easy or happy. I feel sure it has been a long hard fight in which she has hung onto her sanity.
