Articles Filed for Milk Sales, Inc.

Articles of Incorporation for Oregon-Washington Milk Sales, Inc. an Oregon agriculture cooperative corporation, were filed in Salem this week, according to Dick Westerburg, president of Oregon Milk Producers, and Ashland area dairy farmer. The new organization is designed primarily to provide marketing facilities for those milk producers who desire to use it, Westerburg said. "The organization hopes to perform the necessary liaison between producers and handlers to prevent further demoralization of producer's price structure," Westerburg explained. "It has been caused by unwarranted manipulation by various segments of producers in the Oregon and Washington areas." The organization resulted from area meetings and activities of study committees during December, January and February, the OMP president said. Oregon Milk Producers will furnish managerial assistance and clerical help for the new cooperative. Member units desiring to join, he said, should produce satisfactory proof of the ability to perform any and all functions required for representing needs and product, Westerburg said. Directors of the new corporation are Tom Hall, Skamokawa, Wash.; Lawrence Geraghty, Merrill, Ore., and Ray Nickerson, Portland. Need for the new regional marketing cooperative arose early this year when milk producers were being hurt by the concentrated buying power of the chain stores and the "under the table" dealings of fellow dairy farmers who were abusing the practice of giving volume discounts, Westerburg said. This came at a time when dairy farmers were already hard hit by the earlier than usual fall feeding costs caused by the abnormally dry pastures, he said. The practice of giving more than the usual volume discounts occurred mainly around the larger metropolitan areas, and does not apply to southern Oregon area milk producers, according to Westerburg. Since markets are inter-related due to fast transportation it directly or indirectly affected all of Oregon, southwestern Washington and northern California milk producers, he added. A price war in Portland was predicted in February during a meeting in Grants Pass by Ray Nickerson, former Illinois valley dairyman, and OMPA field representative. This, he said, could happen unless the milk producers can join forces to put up strong opposition to the unethical bargaining.

Michigan Flounders In Financial Chaos As Payrolls Skipped

Lansing, Mich. -UPI- Michigan floundered in fiscal chaos today, unable to meet such basic government costs as payrolls, telephone bills or travel expenses. Hope of heading off the state's worst financial trouble since the Depression was dimmed by a bitter political struggle between Democratic Gov. G. Mennen Williams and GOP lawmakers. Williams, the lawmakers and 28,000 other state employees face payless paydays under a priority system drafted Wednesday by the Administrative Board, which warned of a $116,900,000 deficit by May 15. There appeared to be no immediate danger that Michigan Bell Telephone Co. and other utilities would cut off service to their big customer. State Controller James W. Miller said "people like to do business with us. They have confidence in the state." Maps Payment Schedule The Administrative Board, meeting to map a timetable for what Williams called "a great public disaster," halted all payments from the general fund except those to be made under this schedule: Welfare-Today's $4,500,000 bill will be paid and future obligations will be met as long as "humanly possible." Schools - Michigan's 2,360 school districts, which have borrowed $70 million since July, will get the $35,500,000 primary school interest due them by May 15 "or as soon thereafter as funds permit." Payrolls - This week's pay for the legislature and courts will be skipped. It was virtually certain the May 7 payroll of $5,100,000 will not be met, unless the political impasse over a solution to the cash crisis is broken. Payments to universities will be made on the same priority as state salaries. They will be paid after money goes to welfare and schools. Fight Over Taxes Those selling goods and services to the state will not be paid for the duration of the order - nor will hospital costs for TB patients and crippled children. The action came at a time when the state had $177 million salted away in 45 earmarked funds which because of the constitution, laws and contracts cannot be tapped for general use. The state's plight has resulted from lack of new tax laws to provide money for growing expenses. Williams has advanced a plan for a personal income tax on a graduated scale, a move opposed by Republican legislators as a "soak the rich" scheme.

State Police Budget Approved

Salem -UPI- After a prolonged debate, the Senate on Wednesday approved an $8,544,840 budget for the State Police department. This appropriation includes $905,050 to provide state police officers with a five day work week. Opponents of the bill declared that with the state in a precarious financial condition this was the wrong time to put state police on a shorter work week. Sen. Alfred Corbett (D-Portland) said the issue was clear. If the Senate wished to put the state police in a special category from other state employees who now enjoy a five-day week it would have to take the responsibility, he said. Senators were told further by Sen. Dan Dimick (D-Roseburg) that if they refused to grant the state police a five day week it would be a shameful act that would remain on their conscience for the remainder of their lives. Lead, zinc and silver comprise the chief products of northern Idaho mines.

Voice Recognized; Youth Arrested

Portland -UPI- A school principal recognized a voice Wednesday and a 13-year-old boy was arrested for telephoning a false bomb threat. A caller to Alameda school said the bomb was set to go off at 10 a.m. The secretary who got the call motioned for Principal Ralph Wampler to listen in and asked the caller to repeat the statement. Wampler thought he recognized the voice and found the boy was absent from school. Police said the boy admitted the call when questioned at his home.
