

League of Women Voters Past Activities Noted

A resume of the past year's activities of the Medford League of Women Voters was made this week by Mrs. John S. Day, League finance chairman in charge of the one-day finance drive to be held Tuesday, May 5.

Approximately 100 individuals who have shown interest in the non-partisan study of government and in other League activities will be visited by members of the group.

Mrs. Day explained that much of the coming year's program will be geared to the group's study of Jackson county government, which was termed "a major contribution to the community." Most sections of the government survey are completed and plans are being made for "presenting the completed study to the community," she said.

League members have gathered information on the county's administrative offices, including the county clerk, assessor and treasurer, and are in the process of preparing material on the roads, health, education and welfare sections.

Study units of the Medford League will discuss "The Administration of Justice in Jackson County" during May. Mrs. Ben Day, Sams Valley, is in charge of the section. It includes types of courts, juries, law enforcement agencies and correctional institutions.

The group plans to compile information into a booklet to be made available to all the county, Mrs. Day said.

League studies made last year concerned county government, water resources, foreign policy, state constitutional revision and ballot measures. Action was taken to promote the county home rule measure; to support the ballot measure for increase of legislators' salaries; and to maintain the Development Loan Fund and support the Mutual Security program and the World Bank, it was reported.

Membership in the organization is open to all women interested in the study of structure of government and its problems.
