Club Elects Carl Brophy President

Carl M. Brophy was elected president of St. Mary's Grade School Parents' club Monday night at the final meeting of the organization for the present school year.
Officers chosen to assist Mr. Brophy during the coming year are Joe Zarosinski, vice president; Mrs. James Pullman, secretary; Mrs. Robert Stewart, treasurer; and Dan Christianson, parliamentarian.
The Very Rev. Carl Mai, Sister Superior Gerard Mary, and Sister M. Michael Archangel, principal of the grade school, along with outgoing President E. John Rossi, and the chairman of the various special and standing committees addressed the group and pointed out the accomplishments of the club during the past year.

It was reported the black-topping and fencing of the playground, the replacement and addition of playground equipment, the fencing of the Sisters' yard and the tree and shrub planting program have drawn much favorable comment, especially from visiting state and parochial school authorities.

Book Reported

According to Mrs. R. E. Randolph, the Rogue Chef cook book, a project of the library maintenance committee, is now completed and available in sufficient quantity to fill all orders. Those who have not yet obtained a copy of the unique publication may do so by contacting any member of the committee, or by telephoning Mrs. Byron Dibble, SPring 3-6356, or in the evenings, Mrs. John O'Hara, SPring 2-6422.
It was also reported that the club-sponsored rummage sale netted about $550, $400 of which was presented to the school for the purchase of needed teaching aids. The library maintenance committee has given $150 of cookbook sale proceeds for library supplies.

'Strange' Story Names Ancestor Of Medford Man

A recent copy of "Strange As It Seems" in the Medford Mail Tribune sent H. H. Corliss, 938 South Holly street, on a search among family relics. The material in "Strange As It Seems" told how, in 1897, two women, Mrs. Mary Neff and Mrs. Hannah Duston, aided by a young boy, killed and scalped eight Indians who held them prisoner, thereby escaping and returning safely to their home in Haverhill, Mass.

Mr. Corliss recalled that the same story was recounted in a letter written by one of his ancestors, Hiram Corliss, in 1855, and printed in The People's Journal, Greenwich, N. Y., of which he has a copy. Mrs. Neff and the Medford man, as well as Hiram Corliss, are all descendants of George Corliss, who came to this country from England in 1639 and settled in Massachusetts.

Mr. Corliss also has in his possession a picture of Guy C. Haynes, first settler of East Boston, the Corliss and Haynes families having settled adjoining land. In the letter Hiram Corliss notes that he also visited the home of his grandfather, Joseph Haynes, who was a member of the first Provincial Congress at Salem, Mass., in 1774. Mr. Corliss also owns old engraved pictures of the George Corliss home, called Poplar Lawn, and of Joseph Haynes' home in Haverhill.

Vets Have No Grace Period on Loans

Despite what some veterans may believe, there is no grace period for the late payment of installments on GI loans, S. T. Brannock, contact representative, VA Domiciliary, Camp White, said today.
Brannock added that veterans should make their GI loan payments on or before the date they are due.
Failure to do so may prove costly, Brannock pointed out, since GI lenders may make an extra service charge when payments are received late.
Brannock warned that veterans who gain the reputation of being "chronic delinquents" will find their lenders taking that fact into account if the veterans should ever need an extension of repayment time on their GI loans.
In addition to their loss of credit standing, veterans who become delinquent in their payments may ultimately be faced with the loss of the property acquired with their GI loans, Brannock said.

Need for Home Economists Continues High, Says Dean

Corvallis - A steady demand for home economists continues to drain the resources of colleges and universities as many young college graduates delay entering the labor force for marriage and homemaking.
Although they may only leave temporarily to raise families or take other jobs, they move in and out of the working force and cause a never-ending demand for home economists, says Miriam Scholl, dean of home economists, Oregon State College.

Each year, she continues, there is a steady call for trained home economists from schools-nursery schools, high schools and colleges-for teachers and supervisory personnel, including school lunch supervisors.
Jobs are also available in research, extension, dietetics and food service, communications, business, and health and welfare.
Unless more girls continue their education beyond high school, either before or after marriage, the gap between supply and demand will continue to widen, Dean Scholl believes. Girls who marry without adequate preparation for marriage are also likely to short change themselves in marriage, she says.

Home economists provides a natural background for girls who want to enter rapidly-expanding science fields. By combining knowledge of home economics with a strong background in science, girls can prepare themselves for jobs in the scientific development of foods and their uses, household equipment and textiles, she points out.

Today, some high school and almost all college positions require a master's degree. Salaries usually keep pace with college training and experience, and home economists with advanced degrees have more job choices. Need for home economics teachers is felt in Oregon and across the U.S., says Dean Scholl. This spring she has received requests for candidates for colleges and university positions from California, Idaho, Texas, Washington, Arizona, South Dakota, New York, New Mexico, and Saskatchewan and British Columbia, Canada.

Opportunities are also offered in extension work. Esther Taskerud, state home economics coordinator, says that 4-H club and adult agents are needed in several Oregon counties. Ability to organize, develop people to help themselves, a thorough knowledge of home economics skills, and a willingness to learn, are requirements for extension positions.

The world's largest maker of hardwood floors recommends this clean-as-you-wax method as best. Just pour a little BRUCE on the floor and stubborn marks, dirt, old wax wipe away easily. The dirt comes up on the cloth. Buff very lightly and you're through in half the usual time. Try this better, easier method next time you wax. Use BRUCE CLEANING WAX for a rich coat of wax.
