Church Retains Minister By Congregational Vote

At a business meeting of the Congregational church following the morning service last Sunday the congregation refused to accept the resignation of the Rev. Thomas McCamant.

In presenting his resignation, McCamant stated that he felt that after five years a change in leadership would be stimulating to the growth of the church. Since the congregation rejected this idea he accepted their decision and will continue as pastor.

Gatewood Smith is chairman of a committee that was appointed to make plans for extending and strengthening the over-all program of the church. It has met and made suggestions which will be passed on to the members after being considered by the boards of deacons and trustees.

Delegates Elected

The congregation also elected as delegates to the annual meeting of the Congregational Conference of Oregon, Mrs. Henry Padgham, Mrs. Clarence Miller, Carl Elhart and Richard Henselman. The meeting will be in Portland, May 18 through 20.

The church continues to hold church school and its morning service at 10 a.m. For Mothers Day in this Centennial year the minister will take as his theme, "Pioneer Mothers". Sunday evening the Pilgrim Fellowship will continue their discussions of "Genesis and Science".
