Occasional Pieces for the Modern Home

by Ruth W. Lee
home-furnishings consultant

TO A BLEND of the best in modern materials—wood veneers, anodized aluminum, plastic upholstery fabrics, and glass—add straightforward design, and you have an inkling of the kind of occasional pieces created by young designer William Sherman.

Walnut-veneered chests and tables in combination with brass-finished aluminum framework give contemporary pieces warmth of color with good, clean lines. Storage pieces have lots of usable space, and cleaning is simply a matter of a damp cloth, thanks to the plastic-coated tops.

Of special interest are a graceful cushioned bench and the large square or round coffee and end tables with glass tops set on aluminum frames. They have a nice airy quality to them.

An inviting hallway is created by the buttoned-cushion bench with arms and a graceful, single-drawer console table.

Storage and study space for bedroom or living room are provided by double and single chests with a corner desk unit.

A Far Eastern lamp and folding screen are smart accents for this contemporary group consisting of rattan sectional pieces, end table, and generously sized coffee table.
