Tours of Hospital Scheduled Friday

Tours of Rogu Valley hospital will be offered between 1:30 and 4 p.m. Friday during the annual tea and open house scheduled in recognition of National Hospital Week, Charles I. Gustafson, administrator, said today.

Theme for National Hospital Week, which is being observed this week, is "More Roads to Recovery."

Gustafson noted that Rogu Valley hospital spends an average of $35 for the care of each patient, and that medical and scientific advances in recent years have had an enormous impact on hospital costs.

Last year, 5,000 persons were admitted to Rogu Valley hospital, he pointed out. The total is 1,500 more than were admitted 10 years ago. There were 35,000 laboratory tests performed and 8,000 X-rays taken last year at Rogu Valley.

staff provides a ratio of 2.2 employees for each patient. A total of 90,000 meals, one-third of them "special diets," were served.

Small hospitals, he said, offer services that were unknown in even great medical centers a few years ago. Hospitals have been able to make dramatic use of labor-saving equipment common in other areas. Modern medicine requires talents of more and more individuals.

Rogu Valley hospital added 90 employees in the past 10 years. The administrator said about 72 per cent of the hospital's costs today are for wages and salaries.

Persons interested in taking the tours Friday are invited, he said, and refreshments will be served in the board and staff room following the tour.

Sackett Sounding San Jose Area For Newspaper

San Jose, Calif.—(UPI)—The public in this city is being asked whether it wants a new daily newspaper of a liberal, Democratic editorial policy.

The question is being asked in a six-page, newspaper-size circular now starting to be generally distributed in San Jose and the surrounding communities.

Sheldon F. Sackett, publisher of the Coos Bay, Ore., World, has issued the circular and has offered $10,000 in cash prizes for answers to the question.

The established daily newspapers of San Jose, the Morning Mercury and The Evening News, have not published for 87 days due to strikes by three unions, pressmen, stereotypers, and the American Newspaper Guild.

No Comment on Circulars
Joseph B. Ridder, publisher of the San Jose newspapers, had no comment on the circulars. Robert Hickey, head of the San Jose Local of the guild, said the guild had no part in the distribution of the circular.

Negotiations are continuing steadily for a settlement of the strike. The combined circulation of the Mercury and the News is 116,000.

Veto of Logging Truck Bill Rapped By Union Official

Portland—(UPI)—The director of political education for the Oregon AFL-CIO has charged that Gov. Mark Hatfield's veto of a bill involving logging trucks favored interests of a big lumber company over those of small business men.

The measure would have required log trucks to have certificates of convenience and necessity from the public utility commissioner.

Only Opportunity
George Brown, the labor official, said the bill "would have provided the only opportunity the small business man who owns one or two log trucks had to obtain an income that would have provided him at least a decent standard of living."

Brown said that during hearings on the bill many small business men produced records showing that at present log hauling rates they were getting as little as $3500 a year return on their investment. "There was indisputable proof that these people were actually living off the depreciation of their trucks," he said.

Wanted Present System
Brown said "it is very significant that the only real objection to this bill came from the Georgia Pacific Lumber Company..." He said the firm wished to retain the present system of contract hauling "for they find it cheaper than to own their own trucks and do their own hauling."

Proponents of the bill in the Legislature said it was intended for protection against cut-rate competition by Washington and California log haulers who come to Oregon during slack times in their own seasons.
