

Tables Turned On Actor's Wife

Santa Monica, Calif. — Mrs. Rita Mohr, former wife of actor Gerald Mohr, went to court Wednesday seeking a $24 weekly increase in child support payments — but the judge ordered the payments reduced from $50 a week to $40.

Superior Judge Edward R. Brand made the order after Mohr countered he was a free lance actor and therefore his income was unpredictable.

George Liberace To Direct at Centennial

Portland — George Liberace, brother of the popular pianist by the same last name, will be the musical director of the rural extravaganza "Country America" at the Centennial Exposition opening here June 10.

The Centennial Commission said the show would play the Exposition arena from June 26 to July 5.

COLLISION HURTS

Jackson, Miss. — Seven persons were injured Wednesday in a collision between a city bus and a truck carrying chickens.

Information Booth Nearing Completion

Cave Junction — The Portal of Entry information booth for the Centennial is expected to be completed this week.

Construction of the 10 by 14 foot building, at the junction of Redwood and Caves highways, was started on Monday by Bob Ford. The exterior finish is to be of cedar bark to give a rustic effect.

Plans have also been worked out for hanging a banner across the Redwood highway which will indicate the information center to travelers.

Algerian Refugees Given Russian Food

Casablanca — Soviet Embassy officials Wednesday turned over tons of food to the Moroccan Red Cross for Algerian refugees.

The supplies included 1,000 tons of wheat, 50,000 boxes of powdered milk and 50 tons of sugar.

Ex-Gov. West Marks 86th Anniversary

Portland — Ex-Gov. Oswald West observed his 86th birthday Wednesday. Offered congratulations by a reporter, he said: "For what?"

Coed 'Chopped Up' By Ex-Roommate In Jealous Rage

Swannanoa, N.C. — A once-attractive coed, her face "all chopped up" by a hatchet-wielding ex-roommate, may be disfigured for life — if she lives.

"She may live, she may not live," Buncombe County Sheriff Laurence Brown said, Rose Watterson, 20, was hacked in the face by Patricia Dennis, 21, who said she was "in a jealous rage" because Miss Watterson had "taken my friends from me," Brown said.

The attack occurred shortly before 5 a.m. Tuesday as Miss Watterson slept in her room at Warren Wilson College, a Presbyterian institution here. Authorities said the hatchet left four deep gashes.

Another student, Betty Ferrell, 20, of Orgas, W. Va., narrowly escaped serious injury when she attempted to disarm Miss Dennis. She suffered several cuts on the arm but her injuries were not serious. Sheriff's officers said Miss Dennis told them she had planned to go to Miss Watterson's room at 2 a.m. but forgot to set her alarm clock and awoke at 4:40 a.m.

Armed with the hatchet, she said, she crept into the sleeping girl's room, quietly shut the door to the adjoining room and swung the hatchet. Miss Watterson's cries woke others in the freshman dormitory.

Brown said Miss Dennis, a plump, sad-eyed brunette, at first was "pretty close-mouthed" except to demand a lawyer. Later, however, she told a reporter, "I know what I've done and I'm going to pay for it. Whatever the court says."

Both girls were freshmen at the two-year liberal arts college here. Officials said they once had roomed together.

Miss Dennis was held without bond on an open charge in the county jail at Asheville.

Starkweather Scheduled To Die In Chair Friday

Lincoln, Neb. — Charles Starkweather's last chance to escape the electric chair apparently died Wednesday night when Gov. Ralph G. Brooks rejected a plea by the mass killer's girl accomplice for a stay of execution.

Caril Fugate, 15, sentenced to life imprisonment for murder in connection with Starkweather's rampage, appealed to the governor to delay the execution so she could meet with him in death row in an effort to clear her name.

The governor's refusal means Starkweather, 20, must go to his death in the electric chair as scheduled shortly after 6 a.m. Friday.

In a letter to the governor, Caril said she wanted to talk with her former boy friend so he could "at least confess to a minister that I am innocent."

"I believe there is a chance he may tell the truth about what happened," Caril wrote.

In a written reply, the governor said such a meeting would be against state law. He also said he believed Starkweather, who was the state's chief witness against Caril, has had ample time to reveal any information he might have.

Caril was convicted of helping Starkweather in one of 10 killings the red-haired former garbage collector committed during his January, 1958, murder spree. Starkweather later admitted killing another person in December of 1957.

The victims included Caril's mother, step-father and infant half-sister. Caril contended she was Starkweather's unwilling hostage during the mass slayings. Starkweather implicated Caril in several of the deaths.

Probation Revoked, Man Sentenced

Circuit Judge Edward C. Kelly revoked probation of George M. Yorton, 203 Fourth st., Phoenix, Tuesday and sentenced him to three years in the Oregon state penitentiary. Judge Kelly placed Yorton on probation for three years on April 21, 1958, for obtaining money under false pretenses. He was arrested by Josephine county sheriff's deputies on bad check charges.

Tommy Ray Laurance, 23, transient, pleaded guilty to charges of grand larceny. Judge Kelly ordered a presentence investigation.

Laurance was charged with taking a car from the Dick Knight company, Medford, on July 25, 1957. Laurance was extradited recently from the Utah state penitentiary where he had completed serving a sentence.

IV Chamber to Discuss New Road

Cave Junction — Robert VanLeer, Gold Beach president of the Selma-to-Gold Beach Road association, said there will be a large delegation accompanying him to the annual Illinois Valley Chamber of Commerce dinner at the Deer Creek Grange hall Saturday.

With the possibility of the Gold Beach $4,740,000 port being completed in 1961, boosters of the Selma to Gold Beach road are interested in the project becoming a reality.

The Edinburg, Tex., Consolidated School system, embracing 945 square miles, is the largest independent school system in the South.

Senators Offer Plan To Close Tax Loopholes

Washington — Four Democratic senators today proposed closing tax loopholes in four ways that would raise an extra $2 1/2 billion and help equalize the taxpaying burden.

Their separate bill would abolish many "luxury" business deductions, automatically withhold taxes on dividend and interest payments, repeal the credit and tax exclusive on dividend income, and slash the oil depletion allowance.

The four sponsors are Sens. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.), William Proxmire (D-Wis.), Eugene J. McCarthy (D-Minn.) and Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.).

They recommended using the additional revenue from these tax law changes to reduce the national debt, provide new public services and apply tax reforms benefiting high-bracket taxpayers and those hit hardest by excise levies.

"The basic purpose of our bills is to make our tax system fairer and more equitable," the four Democrats said in a joint statement.

"The principle which we are working to establish is that those with equal incomes should pay equal taxes in line with the pledge contained in the Democratic platform of 1956 that 'the immediate need is to correct inequities in the tax structure.'"

Proxmire authored a bill to withhold dividend-interest payments at the source, as is done with wages and salaries. McCarthy is sponsoring the tax credit repealer and Douglas the oil depletion allowance revision.

Brookings Youths Apprehended Here

Two runaway 16-year-old boys from Brookings, Ore., were returned to their parents yesterday after being apprehended by Jackson county sheriff's deputies Tuesday.

One of the youths was stopped at the intersection of Court st. and Central ave. when a deputy became suspicious of a boy his age driving a car loaded with clothing and personal articles.

The youth admitted he was a runaway and told the deputies where they could find his partner who had already found a job. Yesterday was their first day in Medford, deputies said.
