

Family Council

Mrs. R. S.—People will say Linda is cradle-snatching.

Linda S.—It's purely platonic.

Mrs. R. S.—I am the mother of a grown family. A son and daughter are married and the youngest, Linda, now 28, is still at home.

Linda is an attractive girl, but has never been very popular. She has gone out with a few men who have been quite serious about her, but she has always said she finds she can't care for them very much.

Recently Linda has taken to dating a 21-year-old boy she met in a college where she was taking a course. This boy is extremely homely and is clumsy in his mannerisms. Linda seems to delight in his company, but she says nothing serious is going on. I feel that she makes herself foolish by going out with a youngster. I am sure people make remarks about her "cradle-snatching."

Linda S.—I've had more fun with this boy Steve than I've ever had with any of the other men I've gone out with. We seem to have just the same interests.

I don't see why I can't have a platonic friendship without "people" having something to say about it. Far from snatching the cradle, I am trying to help this boy—to be a kind of big sister to him. He comes from a very unhappy home and, before he met me, never found anyone he could really talk to. I also feel I can talk to him more easily than many mature men.

Steve says I've helped him more in the short time I've known him than anyone has in his whole life. He always felt that people were laughing at him because of his clumsiness, but with me he is less self-conscious and awkward.

The Council: Mrs. R. S. is naturally concerned about any outsider's criticism of her daughter, but we think more is at stake here.

Whether she realizes it or not Linda has involved herself in a relationship from which it may be very difficult to extricate herself. It will certainly be hard on the boy who has grown very dependent upon her kindness and companionship, but it could become equally hard for her.

Linda and Steve are both now filling a gap in one another's lives and filling it in a way that is comforting for the moment, but that does not bode too well for the future. The sister-brother relationship they now enjoy could fill many of their emotional needs and prevent each of them from going out to find more satisfactory life-time partners.

There is, of course, a strong possibility that the sister-brother relationship will finally bloom into romance. Such relationships sometimes work out fairly well, but there are certainly some complications. Some women are made most uncomfortable and unhappy by the fact that their hus-

EAGLE POINT Baccalaureate Slated

Eagle Point High school baccalaureate will be held in the high school gym Sunday, May 31, at 8 p.m. with 66 students receiving diplomas.

The processional will be by Miss Yetta Olson; doxology by the Rev. Troy Cambron; scripture reading by the Rev. Joseph Munshaw; baccalaureate address by the Rev. Joseph Munshaw; benediction by the Rev. Ernest Evers.

The class motto for the 1959 graduating class is "Pioneers of the Future." Class colors are Centennial red and white, flowers are the Centennial rose and white carnations.

The gray gowns, who are honorary juniors, will be at tendants at baccalaureate and graduation exercises. They are Molly Gregg, Beverly Tresham, Lana McGraw, Mack Lemmon, Duane Anderson, JoAnna Malloroy, Glenda Root, and Steve Carroll.

Commencement exercises for the graduating class of the Eagle Point High school will be held Wednesday, June 3, at 8 p.m. in the high school gym.

The processional will be the Eagle Point High school band, the invocation by the Rev. Joseph Munshaw, salutation by Carole Lee West, valedictory by Carol Scott.

bands are younger. Others don't mind that so much as the fact that they must continue playing the role of mother or big sister after the marriage. They want husbands whom they feel they can lean upon.

However, another type of woman is drawn powerfully toward this role and is happiest if she can go on playing it. Linda should try to be more aware of her own feelings and of what she really wants in life. If the possibility of marriage to Steve goes against her deepest inclinations, she should be very careful to avoid getting overly involved with him.

Central Point Unit Holds Final Meeting;

Central Point-Central Point Home Extension unit held its final meeting of the season at the home of Mrs. Maynard McKay. A report on the convention held recently in Corvallis was given by Mrs. Wesley White and Mrs. George Dunphy. On display were centerpieces, place cards, and favors which the women had brought back from the convention. Some were in the international theme in honor of the International HEU convention which will be held in Scotland; others were themed to the Oregon Centennial.

Mrs. Myrtle Stockton of Stockton Beauty salon gave demonstrations on hair cutting, styles of setting hair and hints on hair care.

Officers were installed with Mrs. Paul Snook of Shady Cove acting as installing officer. The new officers are Mrs. Charles Klutensbeker, chairman; Mrs. George Dunphy, vice-chairman; Mrs. Donald Faber, secretary and Mrs. Wesley White, treasurer. Certificates were presented to each of the new officers.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester McFall and family have expressed their appreciation to their friends, neighbors and the Eagle Point volunteer firemen for all the kind deeds, money, furniture, clothing and work and the care of the eight children and also all the friends that have sent cards, flowers and visited my father-in-law, Clarence Webster, who has been confined in the Sacred Heart hospital since the day before the fire.

Quotes From the News

By United Press International
Washington—Rep. Wayne L. Hays (D-Ohio), on East German Communist Leader Walter Ulbricht's rejection of the West's Berlin plan:
"If free elections were held in East Germany tomorrow, Ulbricht couldn't be elected dog-catcher."

London—A British foreign office spokesman, on the request for asylum by Mrs. Nina Dmitriev, wife of the assistant Soviet naval attaché in London:
"Mrs. Dmitriev is free to get in touch with the Soviet embassy to return there, or, indeed, to return to the Soviet Union, whichever she likes."

Washington—Sen. Lister Hill (D-Ala.), in urging an expanded government fight against cancer:
"What more fitting, more meaningful or more reverent memorial to the contributions which John Foster Dulles made to our beloved country than a higher resolve... to redouble our research efforts against this killer?"

Little Rock, Ark.—Gov. Orval E. Faubus, on the school integration controversy:
"If the federal government will get out of the thing and leave it up to the state and local school districts, the problem might be solved."

Wall Street Chatter

New York—UP—Further sidewise movement is likely to develop in the stock market, says Bache and Co.

Van Alstyne, Noel and Co., believes that there is a measure of consolidation taking place here and there and while stocks are not moving higher in the aggressive manner they had previously tended toward is there a tendency toward any pressure on the selling side.

Moody's sees no call to withdraw from stocks that are solid but feels the logic of the situation suggests that investors should be willing to reduce risks in the stock market during the course of the year.

J. W. Sparks and Co., lists General Tire as its trading recommendation of the week. American Viscose sales should exceed $240 million and earnings are expected to range between $5.50 and $6 a share, against $2.83 in 1958, according to J. R. Williston and Beane.

May Department Stores 1959 earnings should better last year's $2.95 a share, says Josephthal and Co.

Walston and Co. estimates Westinghouse Electric's earnings at $4.75 a share against $4.25 in 1958.

Speakers Named for Youth Conference

Ashland—Gov. Mark Hatfield and Dr. Elmo N. Stevenson, president of Southern Oregon college, will be featured speakers at the second State-Wide Youth Conference Aug. 29, in the state capitol building, Salem. Two student delegates from each Oregon high school will attend.

The conference has been called to provide an opportunity for the representatives to express their opinions on counseling in the high schools. The discussion topic was selected by the Oregon Youth Council, a representative youth group sponsored by the governor's state committee on children and youth.

Results of the conference will be used by the governor's committee as part of Oregon's official report to the White House conference on children and youth in Washington, D. C. in March, 1960. Mike Mills, president of the Oregon Youth Council, will preside.

The Oregon Youth Council is a group composed of representatives from most of the state-wide youth serving organizations. Dr. John Schulz serves as chairman of the Youth Council Advisory committee and is the liaison person with the governor's state committee on children and youth.

Principals of each Oregon high school have been asked to see that two youth delegates are selected. Housing will be provided for delegates who must travel long distances to attend the conference.

Flower Committee Announced for Camp

Mrs. Arthur Johnson, Mrs. Irvin Patten, Mrs. Dave Fraysher, Mrs. I. V. Lawrence Jr., Mrs. Carl Pearson, Mrs. W. H. Arnold, Mrs. Ora Lawrence and Mrs. Nora Glascock make up a committee for Mistletoe camp, Royal Neighbors, to arrange memorial service flowers.

At the last meeting of the camp it was reported that the skits performed by camp members in Grants Pass and Klamath Falls will be presented here June 18. The public is invited to attend.
