Cave Junction—More than 150 guests attended the Illinois Valley Chamber of Commerce annual dinner recently at the Deer Creek Grange hall in Selma.

Gordon White, chamber president, read a telegram received from Gov. Mark O. Hatfield in which he commented that the chamber was "attacking the road problem with intelligence and diligence."

A portion of the program which was in the nature of a booster meeting for the Selma-to-Gold Beach road association, was conducted by Robert Van Leer, publisher of the Curry County Reporter and Gold Beach president of the association. He told of the completion of sections of the road from Gold Beach to Agness.

Van Leer outlined the program which had been used in these developments and encouraged the inland part of the association to formulate a concentrated movement along similar lines. He said the road has already received the approval of the forest service and the bureau of public roads.

Robert Knox, chairman of the Port of Gold Beach committee, proposed a five county chamber of commerce economic council as a united approach to the transportation problem covering highways and deep water shipping.

The increased tourist traffic potential was pointed out by Don Cardwell, Gold Beach, as it would not only reduce the time and effort to gain the coast from the inland highways, but would also serve as the last link in the Winesap-to-the-Sea highway.

Arnold Ewing, Western Forest Industries association, worked with a large map of the area which pointed out the feeder highways which would be tied together with the Gold Beach proposal. He also stressed the importance of construction as near to forest service standards as possible in order to gain full support.

"Oregon is four points under the National average in industrial growth," Elmer McClure, state grange master, declared in his address. "The only way to survive this economic situation is to double the population of Oregon. To do this, we must step up our development program, with new roads, we gain new recreational activities, the first step in attracting more visitors to the state."

In endorsing the proposed highway, he advised soliciting the aid of everyone in the district to create the necessary pressure through public opinion.

TWA Signs Pact With Air Pilots

Kansas City, Mo.—UPI—Trans World Airline and the Airline Pilots Association signed an 18-month contract Thursday incorporating provisions for new jet flights.

The dispute over the agreement started last June. It was settled in mediation last Friday at Chicago.

J. O. Jarrard, chairman of the TWA Negotiation Committee, said the agreement establishes pay and working conditions for all TWA pilots, and stipulated that three pilots and a flight engineer must be in the cockpit during all jet flights.

He said substantial improvements were also made in retirement benefits and that 85 hours continues to be the monthly maximum flight time limitation on all pilots.

The agreement is retroactive to May 22 and extends to Nov. 22, 1960.

Crop Duster Plane Falls Near Madras

Madras—UPI—A single-engine Piper Super Cub plane crashed and burned in a field eight miles north of here Thursday about 2:30 p.m., killing its one occupant.

The pilot, Keith Knowles, about 23, Madras, was spraying a field owned by State Rep. Ben Evick of Madras, when the small craft stalled and suddenly dived from an altitude of about 65 feet.

The crash was witnessed by John and Henry Kollen, owners of the property on which the craft went down.

Knowles, a pilot for North Unit Aviation, Madras, had been spraying Evick's farm with fertilizer.

The plane exploded and became engulfed in flame on striking the ground.

Impotence in Men

Many women write, much concerned, because their mate by the age of 40 or so appears to have lost interest in sex or his potency. The wife may be much concerned over this—so concerned that she keeps begging the husband to go to a doctor and get examined, to see if something might be done to help him, but he refuses even to discuss the subject. Curiously, that is the reaction in almost 100 per cent of husbands who have failed sexually early in life. Naturally, if a man's difficulty is impotence and his desire remains he may go to see a physician, but often, if he has just lost interest and desire, he accepts what has happened and does not want to be bothered about it.

Often, this is just as well because, in so many cases, neither medicine or psychotherapy can do anything to repair matters. What has gone wrong? Many things can go wrong. Often there is a loss of love or a loss of response on the part of his wife. She may never have had any liking for sex, and may have used every excuse she could think of for getting out of it. Naturally, the man eventually got, first, angry and later, disgusted with being refused. After some years, as his sexual drive faded down, he was willing enough to quit. Also, much hard work may have taken away his interest. In thousands of cases the wife submitted, but she gave the man such a strong feeling that he was imposing on her and should hence be ashamed of pleasure was gone, and so he quit.

In many other cases the wife cannot be blamed because she suffers ill health, or she loses her interest in sex, or she is so tired every day that she cannot possibly enjoy anything.

Drive Diminishes
Often, when a man's sexual drive is excessive, he will keep wanting it, but if his drive diminishes in his forties, he will no longer make demands of a tired or frigid or unloving wife. From talking to many men I have reasons for believing that the man who never had a strong sex drive easily can lose all interest in his forties, even with an affectionate wife. If the wife is not affectionate and tries to avoid sex, the man with a strong drive may continue—while the man with little drive will quit.

In talking to scores of men who lost sexual interest early, I find many come of families in which there are persons who are asexual, with little if any sex interest. Many—both men and women—never cared to marry. Others of the men who have little sex drive or who lose what they have early in life have psychotic or epileptic forebears.

Many are a bit psychotic themselves, and especially when depressed or in a flare-up of schizophrenia they have no sex interest. Many men, after years of hard drinking, will find themselves impotent. Many a time, when a woman complains of her husband's early loss of sexual interest, one look at him tells me what is the trouble. He is somewhat homosexual, and what ability he had to love a woman was lost in middle life. There can be other troubles. For instance, I recently read that out of 198 diabetic men recently studied one in four was having sexual difficulties by the time he was 35. Because some of these men became impotent before they knew they had diabetes, it behooves every impotent man to get his blood-sugar checked. Every man who gets impotent early should have a good general examination, and especially what is called a neurologic examination, also a test for syphilis.

Better Care For Laboratory Animals

All animal lovers will be glad to hear that great efforts are being made now by a panel of scientists to improve the living conditions of animals which are kept in laboratories. Last December this panel held a meeting in Chicago at which time over 500 men came, representing all walks of scientific life. There were research scientists, veterinarians, laboratory superintendents, animal breeders, technicians, and manufacturers of laboratory supplies.

They had a three-day symposium devoted to the study of all advancements that can be made in the giving of good care and comfort to laboratory animals. If many anti-vivisectionists really cared anything for animals they would have been well represented at this meeting and would have contributed large sums which could be used to improve the comfort of the many thousands of white mice and white rats upon which most of the work in experimental laboratories is now done.

What Is Encephalitis?
Quite a few people, much disturbed, write to say that the doctor says that their small boy has had an encephalitis. Now they want to know what to do. Obviously, I can't do any guessing, because I don't know exactly what kind of encephalitis he has had, or how seriously ill he is. In some forms of the disease we can hope for a complete cure, and in others we cannot. All I can say to correspondents is that if they have a doctor skilled enough to make a diagnosis of encephalitis, they had better stay with him and take his advice. I am sure I cannot give any advice by mail.

Khrushchev May Stop in Hungary

Moscow—UPI—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev may stop in Hungary on his way home from Albania, Tass news agency said today.

Tass gave no reason for the visit just as it was silent about the meaning of Khrushchev's trip to Albania.

Tass gave no reason for the visit, just as it was silent about the meaning of Khrushchev's trip to Albania.

He warned Italy that the missile bases it agreed to accept from the United States "can be annihilated by rockets launched from the territory of the Soviet Union."

"And from the territory of Albania, which is friendly to us, it is possible to cover the whole of Italy even with ordinary winged rockets," he said.

Khrushchev once more brought up his appeal for an atom and missile-free zone in the Balkans. He said Yugoslavia supports the idea.

Portlander Freed In Fatal Shooting

Portland—UPI—Karl Leopold Metzberg, 26, was cleared by a grand jury Thursday in the fatal shooting May 15 of Larry Maurice Bolton, 19, here.

Bolton was shot and killed in the Caffe Espresso coffee house. Metzberg, proprietor of the cafe, had been held without bail on a second degree murder charge since the shooting. He was released from jail shortly after the grand jury returned a not-guilty bill.

Deputy District Attorney David Robinson Jr., who presented the case to the grand jury, said grand jury deliberations are conducted in secrecy. But he said, "It is clear from the evidence that the real question presented by the case was whether the homicide was justified by self-defense."

Metzberg told police after the shooting that Bolton had lunged at him and had threatened him.

The firm will build and install swimming pools.

It is possible that she is really physically under par and she certainly should check this with a doctor. If he finds that she is well, she can assume that her excessive tiredness comes out of her fear of handling her own responsibilities. Once she gives herself a chance to learn and to do, she will find that her confidence and her desire to do the work will give her pep. She'll approach her tasks with joy.

Tom has not helped matters at all by withdrawing himself from the scene. If he showed some enthusiasm about helping out with the new baby his wife would feel very differently about things. She would not get the idea that family life for her is going to be a heavier and heavier burden imposed by a careless husband.
