

Qualified Graduates Will Have No Trouble Finding Good Jobs

Corvallis - Qualified 1959 college graduates will find no trouble in securing a job with business on a slight upsurge after the recession scare a year ago, Oregon State college placement officials have reported.

Average starting pay for the 1959 graduates varies from $4,000 to $6,000 a year with the low in home economics and education and the high in physics, engineering, and mathematics.

Agriculture: Even with the number of farmers decreasing, the number of people working in agriculture is steadily increasing. Demand for the agriculture graduate will exceed supply by about 2 to 1. Graduates are needed in sales, processing and research.

Business and Technology: Hiring quotas for business administration graduates are up over last year. Sales and accounting opportunities are up over last year. Sales and accounting opportunities are most numerous. Starting salaries in accounting are $375 to $400. Sales jobs in larger concerns bring $400 to $425. Banking and merchandising firms are offering about $375.

Education: Starting pay for OSC education graduates this year will vary from $4,000 to $5,650. Shortage fields are girls physical education, elementary education taught by young men, women English teachers, industrial arts (metal and auto mechanics) and special education for teaching mentally retarded and handicapped children. Need greatest for high school librarians.

Engineering: Demand for engineers is up from last year's "depression scare." Shortage areas are electrical engineers for the air industry manufacturing jets and missiles and mechanical and civil engineers for U. S. road building program.

Data processing has brought a shortage for electrical engineers and mathematics majors. Chemical engineers in biggest demand the past several years have dropped to the bottom because the "oil industry is hurting." Geologists have also felt the oil industry cutback.

Forestry: All June forestry graduates have been placed with beginning pay between $4,500 to $5,000. Greatest shortage is in forest engineering and forest products.

Home Economics: The market for home economics graduates is always kept open because 70 per cent of the Oregon home economics teachers are married. The home economics women usually stop teaching after a few years to get married and raise a family.

Home economics teaching jobs pay from $4,000 to $5,200. Businesses take students with experience in extension or teaching.

Shortage in the home economics field is greatest in college teaching, especially in household life and foods and nutrition. For a masters and doctorate graduate, pay can be $4,200 to $6,000. Interesting jobs open on magazines.

Pharmacy: In pharmacy, demand far exceeds supply. Jobs as medical service representatives are going unanswered. A few graduates have not accepted employment because they are looking for better offers. Lowest acceptance has been $400 a month, highest $675, with the average $485.

Science: Demand for chemistry graduates "appears to be better than normal." Bachelors degree graduates get from $425 to $475 a month; masters $525 to $575.

Entomology, botany, physics, and chemistry graduates with a doctorate degree receive pay varying from $6,000 to $9,000 depending on experience and ability. Emphasis is on well trained people.

Fast-growing student enrollments and drawing off of teaching staff into research appointments have doubled requests for zoology graduates with doctors degrees. Starting salaries for college professors is between $5,000 to $6,500.

Physics graduates have no trouble in finding an excellent job. Pay for the bachelor graduate ranges from $485 to $525 a month. Pay for the doctorate graduate can up to $1,000 a month.

YREKA Juvenile Hall Planned

By BERTHA WILSON
Yreka-Siskiyou county residents should know by July 1 whether the $50,000 budgeted by county supervisors for a juvenile hall can do the job, County Probation Officer Jess Brewer said.

Brewer requested $125,000 for the hall. The board allowed the lesser amount with the understanding that the hall be constructed adjacent to the Siskiyou County General hospital to allow use of the hospital kitchen. The grand jury has urged that the hall be built immediately.

Brewer said the minimal hall as now planned will include four security cells, a boys' and girls' dormitory, living quarters for supervisory personnel, space for a future kitchen, and office space in case the probation office should be transferred there. A special room for small children will be provided adjacent to the supervisory personnel room, Brewer said.

No recreation or outdoor playground is planned for the hall for some time yet, Brewer said, unless local service clubs can be encouraged to donate equipment and work. Equipment for the dormitories will be purchased from U. S. government surplus whenever possible, he said.

International Paper company outbid 10 competing firms by paying $253,475 for 7 1/2 million board feet of timber about five miles west of Oak Knoll in the Yreka working circle of Klamath national forest, Auction Officer John Murry has reported.

The company paid almost 2 1/2 times the $88,620 advertised value placed on the timber.

Yreka High school's Future Farmers of America chapter has elected Stan Sears as president. He succeeded Don Stalder.

Other officers are vice president, Curt Harding; secretary, Rollie Elsea; treasurer, Bruce Root; reporter, Don Kreuzer; sentinel, Bob Jennings, and historian, Jerry Wreden.

Siskiyou Bowling alleys, the 12-lane recreation center built by Harry B. Millette adjacent the Yreka Drive-in theater, opened Thursday.

A grand opening, at which some of the nation's top bowlers are expected to demonstrate their skill, will be held June 6.

The Siskiyou Union High school board appointed John Hinns returning after a one-year leave of absence last year as vice principal of Butte Valley High school. Margery Harrison and Sylvia Herrera are new teachers at Yreka High school.

Resignations were accepted from Gene Berry, Ft. Jones; Joe DeLuca, Weed, and E. Charles Heinitz, Yreka.

Plodding Porcupine Chews Anything - Even Oars
It was a "lazy river," a lazy summer day and I fitted into it perfectly.

I had alternately rowed and floated for the past three hours. Now the heat and the constant drone of hundreds of summer insects invited me to pull to the near shore and take a nap. I tied the boat to a stream-side tree and pillow my head on my knapsack dropped off to sleep.

How long I slept I never knew but I was awakened by a steady gnawing sound. A sound that vibrated slightly on the gunwale of the boat. I opened my eyes. There not three feet from me was a large porcupine. He was calmly eating the handles of the boat-oars. At my sudden start he turned his head and blinked his eyes. He was willing to chew up the handles to get what little salt my perspiration-soaked hands had left on the oars.

ing the quills erect. At the same time the short, stubby tail lashes back and forth, driving the quills into anything foolish enough to be close.

Many of the larger quills may measure five inches in length, each armed with tiny, recurving barbs that make the extraction of the quills very difficult. Once imbedded in living flesh the muscular movements work the quill deeper and deeper.

The myth that the animal "can throw his quills" is one of the oldest. Of course he can't but the legend persists. Among many, too, is the belief that this animal is very stupid. Perhaps he only acts dumb to confound his enemies and perplex his friends. Behind his unwhipped actions his little mind may be pondering those puzzling problems that most certainly bother all porcupines.

Membership in Phi Kappa Phi is top campus recognition of scholastic achievement. To qualify for members, juniors must rank in the upper 5 per cent of their class and seniors and graduate students must rank in the upper 10 per cent.

Thirty-six juniors, 106 seniors, and 35 graduate students were selected for membership this year.
